Il Duce Gets ParisDemand To Withdraw Aid to Rebels

France Insists Foreign Volunteers Must Be Recalled.

Blum 'Gives Lie' To Italy's Charges

Denies His Government Has Intervened in Civil War.

War and Peace.

Premier Leon Blum of France maintained that his government's attitude of neutrality in Spain "gives the lie" to Italian charges of French intervention in the Spanish war.

Premier Mussolini of Italy, believed near an open break with anti-Fascist France and Russia, pondered difficulties confronting the Spanish rebels.

Heavy slaughter of insurgent troops was reported in loyalist claims of continued victories on the Spanish fronts.

Bitter attacks on Austria in the German press were believed to endanger relations between the two nations.

Prime Minister Baldwin told the British House of Commons that American Secretary of State Cordell Hull's plea for economic cooperation may be taken up at the British imperial conference in May.

Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg of Austria, declaring restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy was a matter for the future, asserted world rearmament is preparing the way for disarmament.

France Protests.
By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 8.—Premier Leon Blum reminded Italy tonight that France asks "insistently" the withdrawal of foreign volunteers in Spain and maintained that his government's attitude of neutrality "gives the lie" to Italian charges of French intervention in the civil war.

As the widening breach between the two nations apparently extended to sports with cancellation of an Italo-French football game here, the premier's office issued the statement that "it is only too easy to guess what the reasons are for these accusations and what their goal is. Their untrue character readily appears."

French officials earlier had held that Italian press charges that French army officers were aiding Spanish government troops were a "counter-maneuver to offset the presence of Italians in Spain."

"Foreign newspapers, even some French newspapers which in a campaign of systematic opposition feed certain foreign campaigns in dragging their own country through the mud, have published stories relating to alleged dispatch of war materials and volunteers from France to Spain," the statement from Blum's office said.

"Such charges are refuted by the consistent attitude of France toward the Spanish conflict."

Reminding of French urgings that all foreign volunteers be withdrawn from the civil war, the French statement set forth that "the loyalty with which France is applying the engagements she assumed has been recognized by impartial observers who are investigating on the spot."

The foreign office announced it had no part in cancellation of the Italo-French football game to have been held here Sunday, but an apparent Italian fear of anti-Fascist demonstrations was advanced as a reason.

Business in Madrid Goes On To Guns' Tune, Wendelin Says

Trolleys in Rifle Shot of Insurgents, Charge d'Affaires Asserts.

By Liam Lenihan.

Madrid—a proud capital ringed by flames and steel, its inhabitants living through a veritable hell such as few cities in history have endured . . .

White nights along the Gran Via. Strolling Madrilenos, unmindful of the fierce obligato of artillery and machine-gun fire. The sudden shrieking of sirens, the red-streaked spitting of antiaircraft guns, silvery wings over the capital. Then death, destruction, terror and the mangled forms of 100 dead . . .

Such was life in the embattled Spanish capital as seen through the eyes of Eric C. Wendelin, youthful former charge d'affaires there, now back to the easeful quiet of a desk in the State Department. Wendelin left Madrid for Valencia just 19 days after Franco's forces hammered their way through the Tagus valley and crouched, coiled like a steel spring, at the capital's very gates.

"The shattering crescendo of artillery fire never let up," he said yesterday. "The low rumble of hungry guns shattered our sleep. But we got used to it. In Madrid you get accustomed to almost everything. Life and death walk hand in hand through its streets."

As for the Madrilenos, "Those extraordinary Madrilenos," he said, "prefer to remain in the open and watch the raiding planes. In fact, they pride themselves on the fact that business goes on as usual. Even trolley cars operate within rifle range of the enemy."

Food was the big problem for the 200-odd refugees who crowded the American Embassy, Wendelin declared. They managed to have meat

New NRA Bill Is Drafted to SurviveCourt

Lawyer Tells Senators President Studied Measure.

'Bombproof' Proposal Was Written for Roosevelt's Co-ordinator.

By Sidney Olson.

President Roosevelt and the Department of Justice have been studying a new NRA bill, "bombproof as to constitutionality," since last November, a New York lawyer told the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday.

Siegfried Hartman, the witness, appearing in opposition to the President's court reform program, revealed he had drafted the bill for Maj. George L. Berry, the President's industrial co-ordinator; that Berry had submitted the plan to the President, who studied it during his South American trip, and that the Justice Department is scheduled to report to the White House on the measure in a week or two.

Hartman cited the measure, which gets around both the "due process" and "interstate commerce" clauses of the Constitution, as conclusive evidence that the Administration has been defeated in the Supreme Court because of "inferior" draftsmanship of bills, rather than through "reactionary" justices.

He said: "The trouble is not so much with the court and the 'defeatist lawyers' who are championing the court, as with the 'defeatist lawyers' who failed to draft the Administration's legislation so that it could be upheld by the court."

O'Mahoney Rebels.

Meanwhile, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, announced he had refused to go through with scheduled participation in a round-table radio blast against the President's plan, arranged by the American Bar Association, on Wednesday night, in which Senators Edward R. Burke, Nebraska; William H. King, Utah, and Tom Connally, Texas, all Democrats, participated.

O'Mahoney said he had rebelled at delivering a radio speech handed him by the bar association. He said he had been "billed" without his permission.

"I'm not going to accept the bar association or any one else as my ghost," he added. Burke, Connally and King went through with the program, but Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), North Dakota, also did not choose to join the program under the circumstances. The speakers were introduced by Frederick B. Stinchfield, president of the association, a strong opponent of the President's plan.

Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, predicted yesterday the President's bill will arrive on the Senate floor early in May, basing this belief on conclusion of public hearings next week and two weeks of executive sessions by the committee.

Senator James H. Hughes (Democrat), Delaware, who is anxious to conclude the hearings on the basis that all the arguments have long since been threshed out, has moved to conclude hearings at the end of next week. The committee will decide this probably Saturday morning by a vote.

Chairman Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, debonair guide of the President's bill in the Senate, said:

"It looks like I'm outvoted on the committee. I wanted to go on with the hearings. If I had my way we would continue until the middle of May."

"There are two reasons for continuing hearings: On a bill of this importance the American people ought to be given every opportunity to know what is in the bill and to understand it; and the fact that this bill gets stronger every day. When it was first introduced I was at the bottom of the well. but we have been going upward every day."

Ashurst said that the Sumners bill, passed by the House Wednesday, which would speed up the decision as to constitutionality of laws by allowing the Attorney General to appeal directly to the Su-

Canada Hit by C. I. O. Strike When 3,700 Quit G. M. Plant; House Blocks Sit-Down Study

Dies Proposal Is Tabled After Stormy Debate, Fist Fight Threat.

Laughter Greets Sponsor's Defense

Dickstein Bill Rejected; Rules Committee Is Flouted.

By Robert C. Albright.

The House in an unruly session yesterday broke away from the leaders and thundered refusal to investigate sit-down strikes, determine their cause and fix responsibility for them.

Without a record vote, a resolution by Representative Martin Dies, Texas Democrat, for an "impartial inquiry" was tabled, after riotous debate, scenes of disorder and one threat of a fist fight.

An eleventh-hour effort to permit members to go on record alike against sit-downs and "unfair" industrial practices was blocked by a single objection to a unanimous consent request.

It was Representative Lindsay C. Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, who moved to table the Dies resolution, following an overwhelming vote to throw it open to amendment.

His motion carried by a loud voice vote. Warren immediately asked unanimous consent to call up the concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate Wednesday, condemning sit-downs, employer-fostered company unions and the so-called industrial "spy" system.

An objection by Gardner R. Withrow (Progressive), Wisconsin, blocked this maneuver, and the House speedily was adjourned.

Vote Twice Against Test.

Earlier the House on teller and record ballots had twice voted down motions ordering the "previous question," which automatically would have barred possibility of amendment. The motion was rejected, 117 to 179, on the teller vote, and 236 to 149 on "ayes and noes."

It was the second time yesterday the strong House Rules Committee, which reported the Dies resolution, had been upset. In the early afternoon the Dickstein resolution to investigate "un-American" organizations operating in this country—also favored by the Rules Committee—was rejected, 184 to 38.

A last-minute appeal by Representative Dies for the sit-down inquiry failed to stem the tide, even though Dies said in effect that a vote against his resolution was a vote for sit-downs.

"The real issue presented by this resolution, so far as the general public is concerned, is whether we approve or disapprove the sit-down strike lawlessness," Dies said.

"If we defeat this resolution we may explain until we are black in the face, but there is only one explanation that the thinking people of America will accept and that is that we are unwilling to meet this bold challenge which has been hurled into our very face."

Dies was greeted by laughter when he said his resolution was "not directed against labor unions." He said labor should "welcome an investigation to vindicate itself in the eyes of the public."

Strikes Not Defended.

Leaders said yesterday's sidetracking of the Senate resolution denouncing sit-downs and "unfair" industrial practices alike does not mean it will not ultimately be approved.

Chairman William P. Connery, of the House Labor Committee, said the Senate resolution may be taken from the Senate table today and referred to his committee. If this is done, he said, he will attempt to report it back to the House Monday.

No word of defense of sit-down strikes was offered in the running verabl attack on the Dies resolutions. Even the most bitter opponents condemned the sit-downs but objected to the Dies investigation as Congressional "meddling" into affairs better left to the States and communities, hinting it would bring "labor baiting" and "snooping."

"The American people are big enough in character to take care of

Children's Bureau Is Praised By Roosevelt on Anniversary

First Lady Is Present as Staff Celebrates 25th Year With Dinner at Mayflower; Miss Perkins Predicts Amendment.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

Pointing to its enormous strides in the past quarter of a century and predicting even greater achievements in the future, President Roosevelt, by letter, and Mrs. Roosevelt, in person, joined 500 men and women last night in congratulating the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, on its silver anniversary celebration.

At a dinner at the Mayflower in honor of the bureau staff, Senators, socialites, heads of Government departments, friends and former and present co-workers of the bureau heard Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins read the President's message.

Terming the bureau "an instrument for all to use" the President also referred to it as "the agency through which the Federal interest in the health and welfare of the children of the Nation may be best expressed."

"As a research center, the Children's Bureau has demonstrated the integrity of its work, and as a counselor its advocacy of the needs of children is known to be based upon unchallengeable facts," the President's message continued.

"At a time when so many of the Nation's mothers lack the care necessary to insure their own health during the period of maternity and the health of their new-born infants, when so many of the Nation's children are ill fed, ill clothed and ill housed, I am grateful for the vision and statesmanship of Julia Lathrop and Grace Abbott, who, with their coworkers, and their successors now responsible for the administration of the Children's Bureau, have developed so fine an instrument for us all to use in our efforts to advance the day when all children will have their fair chance in the world."

Act Called "Enabling."

Predicting the ultimate passage of the child-labor amendment, Miss Perkins declared in her address that the 13-year-old campaign for ratification would go on to obtain "favorable action from the eight States now needed to protect children from exploitation in commercial employment."

Adoption of the amendment will mean no invasion of home or parental rights, no conscription of youth and no Federal dictation as to the education and upbringing of children, which some opponents of the measure had feared, Miss Perkins asserted.

"The amendment is an enabling act, not a statute, and will give Congress power to pass such legislation as is demanded by public

Oil Field Drive to Open Thursday; Rebel Unions' Expulsion Nears.

By William V. Nessly.

American Federation of Labor officials moved militantly against John L. Lewis' rival organization yesterday along two lines.

Defying a threat of death, contained in a letter received from Houston, Tex., John P. Frey, president of the federation's metal trades department, announced he would open his organization's drive to unionize the oil fields of the Southwest at a mass meeting at Houston Thursday.

At the same time William Green, president of the federation, was making plans for a special meeting of the federation's executive committee to consider expelling the unions affiliated with the C. I. O., ten of which already are under suspension. The date has not been set for the council meeting, but the call is expected to be sent out within a few days.

While these developments were being announced, Lewis was on his way back to Washington from a fresh triumph in the automobile field, conclusion of an agreement with the Chrysler Corporation which ended the protracted sit-down strike in that company's plants. At Pittsburgh yesterday, on his way home, Lewis was quoted by the Associated Press as saying that "within 60 days we will exceed the A. F. of L. membership of approximately 2,250,000, which means the C. I. O. has become the representative labor organization of America."

Frey said his organization campaign would be centered first among refinery workers of southeast Texas. Already Harvey C. Flemming, pres-

Dominion Menaced by 'Agitators,' Ontario Premier Asserts.

Hepburn Cites U.S. 'State of Anarchy'

Hudson Sit-Down and Tractor Walkout Are Settled

Toronto, April 8 (Canadian Press). Premier Hepburn of Ontario declared today the General Motors strike at Oshawa is the result of efforts by "foreign agitators" who have "brought the United States almost into the state of anarchy" to dominate Canadian industry.

He warned that police will maintain order, and that if the strike continues for an indefinite period, relief will be withheld from strikers.

Union workers picketed the Oshawa plant as a sudden general strike threw more than 4,000 workers into idleness.

Walkout, Not Sit-Down.

Describing the strike as "an old-fashioned walkout" and not a sit-down, union leaders declared General Motors would not build another car in Canada until it signed an agreement with the union.

The strike, called by the United Automobile Workers of America, an affiliate of the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization, brought out 3,700 employes in the Oshawa plant, including between 300 and 400 non-union workers. At Windsor, Ont., 500 employes of the Walker Road plant of General Motors of Canada were laid off as a result of the Oshawa walkout.

The government regrets, Premier Hepburn said, that the employes of the Oshawa plant have followed Lewis' "paid propagandists from the United States" and struck when both the employes and the industry itself were in a position to enjoy a prosperity not known since 1929."

Lewis' "First Attempt."

"This is the first open attempt on the part of Lewis and his C. I. O. to assume the position of dominating and dictating to Canadian industry," the statement said.

"The government completely concurs in the attitude of the company that it is going to remain clear of the domination of professional labor profiteers of the C. I. O., who are making an effort to exact their monthly toll from the pay envelopes of the Oshawa workers.

"We believe the time for a showdown is at the start and in this regard we ask the sympathetic co-operation and support of all law-abiding citizens of Ontario."

Negotiations among employes, company and Government had proceeded peacefully, Hepburn said, until the demand that they be limited to company and "the Lewis agitators who have at present brought the United States almost into the state of anarchy."

"After reviewing the activities of these foreign agitators, and the chaos created by them in the United States, I am satisfied that the policy as dictated by them will be one of ever-increasing and impossible demands, culminating * * * in the entire loss of * * * export trade."

Company and government, he said, have "exerted every reasonable effort" to settle disputes which resulted in the strike.

Picketing Banned.

Observing that "it seems rather an anomaly that in the centers to be affected, we have paid out millions of dollars of public funds keeping on relief those who today are enjoying an average wage of over $165 per month," the Premier said:

"Should this strike continue for an indefinite period the cabinet, at a special meeting today, decided that no relief will be granted in any form whatsoever."

He cautioned also "there will be available sufficient police to maintain law and order" and that "there will be no illegal sit-down strike or illegal picketing and all persons desiring to resume their duties will be given adequate protection."

Resources of the province will be utilized, "if the occasion warrants, to prevent anything in this country resembling that which is taking place at the present time across the line due to failure on the part of constituted authority to take adequate action."

Hudson Strike Settled.

Dentist Draws 16-Year Term In Girl Killing

Miller Called Weakling; Cleo Sprouse's Mother Is Satisfied.

By Edward T. Folliard.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., April 8.—The walls of Virginia's penitentiary in Richmond awaited Dr. Richard G. Miller, 53-year-old dentist and sportsman, tonight.

Earlier today, after his attorneys had described him as a weak-willed individual "who couldn't say no," Dr. Miller was sentenced by Judge Lemuel F. Smith to 16 years behind those walls, there to atone for the death of Cleo Sprouse, 18-year-old high school girl, who died from an overdose of chloroform while he was preparing to save her the disgrace of a fatherless child. That unborn child, the prosecution said, was Dr. Miller's.

In the jammed courtroom were men and women whose teeth Dr. Miller had pulled or drilled—old cronies, who, about this time of year, would be getting out their tackle to go fishing with him and others who used to win his money in Charlottesville poolrooms.

They saw "Dick" Miller stand up for the sentence, his broad shoulders drooping, his eyes red with tears.

They saw his devoted wife, Mrs. Mozelle Miller, a choir singer, crying now, but gripping his hand to give him courage, and on the other side Miss Elizabeth Miller, his 18-year-old coed daughter, calling him "daddy" and urging him to be strong.

They saw across the room the other victims of the tragedy—Mrs. Lula Sprouse, Cleo's mother, and Mrs. Alice Poole, Cleo's dark-eyed, brooding sister. Both said they were satisfied with the verdict, although there was a time when they thought only the electric chair was the proper penalty.

The law said that Judge Smith could sentence him to 5 to 20 years. In making it 16 Judge Smith knocked off 4 years, because Dr. Miller had confessed to second degree murder. If Dr. Miller now behaves himself at Richmond, he may win his freedom in 8 years.

It was one of the most unusual trials in the long history of this home town of Thomas Jefferson, a juryless trial that at first brought criticism from some of the townfolk, but the outcome of which apparently has satisfied all concerned.

Attorneys for both sides call it a "pitiful case." They differed only

Boost in Taxes Or Relief Slash Faces Congress

Additional Imposts Remain Definite Possibility, Is Leaders' Belief.

A choice between general tax increases or substantial slashes in relief spending, to meet unexpected declines in Treasury revenues, faced the Administration's Congressional leadership yesterday.

On the eve of next week's submission of the President's relief estimates, expected to be considerably below the anticipated $1,500,000,000 figure, leaders were wondering where to find money for relief and additional pending programs, not yet budgeted.

Although Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson suggested new activities might be financed out of relief funds, rather than new taxes, it was learned in other quarters additional taxation remains a definite possibility.

"I don't know of anybody who wants to increase taxes," said Robinson. "The President does not. But presumably there would either have to be additional revenue or a reduction in other expenditures, if education, housing and tenancy legislation is passed."

The majority leader indicated he did not expect any new tax proposals at this time. President Roosevelt expressed a similar view at a recent press conference, and chairmen of both the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee have said new taxes are not now in prospect.

Nevertheless, general concern was manifest yesterday at revenue declines under estimates, coupled with added demands on the Treasury. Unofficial estimates placed the drop below estimates in all revenues for this fiscal year at between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000, including income receipts, social security taxes, inheritance and gift taxes. The income tax loss alone for the fiscal year was said to be between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000. In addition, a loss of about $100,000,000 from railway carrier taxes was said to be projected, as a result of a recent carrier-labor understanding.

It is known that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Treasury tax experts are giving serious study to new tax proposals, but whether they will be put forward late this session or early next, has not been disclosed. The whole subject is said to be a matter of controversy between Treasury officials and some Congressional leaders.

It is understood that Roswell Magill, Undersecretary of the Treas-

Col. James Roosevelt Gets Military Decoration For Service on Latin-America Trip With Father

As a military man, Lieut. Col. James Roosevelt, Volunteer Marine Corps Reserve, has already made his mark, it was learned yesterday. He has been awarded a medal, and a foreign decoration at that.

Of course he has not actually received the medal, but the Senate has concurred with a House amendment adding his name and some others to a list of military men authorized to accept decorations from foreign countries.

The President's eldest son, who was made a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve on November 13 of last year, didn't waste any time in getting a decoration for the front of his dress tunic because it is a result of his South American trip with his father to the Buenos Aires peace conference.

Which country had awarded the decoration or the title of the decoration could not be learned last night. Persons, both in the Marine Corps and the State Department, were sure that the country honoring the young officer was either Brazil or Argentina.

Nor could it be learned exactly what act of young Roosevelt had prompted the giving of the decoration. A foreign decoration, knowing persons explained, does not always mean that an act of gallantry (on the battlefield) is receiving its reward.

Foreign decoration, it was explained, in addition to being given for war service, may be given in recognition of achievement in many lines of endeavor or may be awarded merely as a courtesy to the "visiting firemen" at an international conference.

The bill which authorizes the award of the decoration to Lieut. Col. Roosevelt, was Senate 1455. After passage in the Senate it came to the House where Tuesday it was passed after two amendments adding several names to the list had been added. On Wednesday the Senate concurred with the House and the bill was through the legislative mill.

Neither persons at the State Department nor the Navy Department could remember about the Roosevelt award. They said that each year a list of many such awards is sent to Congress for authority to permit the Army, Navy and Marine Corps men to receive the decorations. They promised that information as to what country had honored Lieut. Col. Roosevelt would be available this morning.

Defendant Weds Plaintiff During Trial in Virginia

Fredericksburg, Va., April 8 (AP). Love took the right of way over the law in Hanover Circuit Court yesterday when trial of a criminal case was halted so that the defendant and the plaintiff could be married.

A man from Henrico County was being tried before Judge Frederick W. Coleman and a jury on a statutory charge involving a 22-year-old Hanover County girl. Evidence for the prosecution had been completed when attorneys informed the court that the principals had decided to marry.

Judge Coleman ended the trial, a marriage license was secured, and the wedding ceremony was performed in the court room while judge, jury, attorneys, and spectators looked on.

Cloudy, Cool Weather Forecast At Cherry Fete's Second Start

Cloudy skies and cool weather, with probably a gray April rain in the morning, will greet the Japanese cherry blossom festival today, the forecaster said last night.

Chilled and rained out yesterday evening, the fete was postponed until tonight, in the face of the dreary prediction.

Within an hour after rain began to fall about 4 p. m., Charles Columbus, secretary of the festival committee, announced, following an emergency meeting with Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and other members, that the celebration had been set back 24 hours.

The original time schedule will be followed tonight—Marine Band concert at 7:45, followed by the coronation ceremonies, dancing by the Evelyn Davis group, and fireworks.

Ten-year-old Sakiko Saito, daughter of the Japanese Ambassador, was not disappointed by the rain's intrusion upon her prospective reign. She will be crowned festival queen tonight by Commissioner Hazen.

Sakiko and her two attendants, Sister Musaku, 8, and Barbara Caldwell, 10, were cavorting at a garden party given in their honor at the Wardman Park Hotel, when they were sent indoors by the shower.

Though the grass was dew-laden and their feet were bare, the Evelyn Davis dancers bravely presented the legend of the Sun God and his beloved, the Lady of the Cherry Blossoms, at the Tidal Basin sunrise program yesterday.

Substitute Bill To Aid Tenants Gets Approval

House Group Backs Plan to Provide Loans at Low Rates.

By Russell Smith.

Restricted to low-income farmers, a miniature farm credit administration, to be set up within the Department of Agriculture, was approved yesterday by the House Agriculture Committee as a substitute for the farm tenant program proposed by President Roosevelt.

Authorizing a loan program to establish tenants and sharecroppers on the land and to assist them over a two-year period afterward, the tenant bill also carries an appropriation of $10,000,000 for retirement of non-cultivatable land in the next fiscal year, to be followed by similar $20,000,000 appropriations for the three succeeding years.

The two sections of the bill devoted to the tenantry problem specifically authorize $50,000,000 annual appropriations for five years wherewith the Secretary of Agriculture will make loans to chosen tenants for the purchase of land and $75,000,000 annual appropriations for two years for rehabilitation loans, also to be made by the Secretary.

Enactment Predicted.

Enactment of the bill, which bears the name of Representative Jones (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the committee, in virtually the form it will be reported, probably today, was predicted yesterday by Chester Gray, representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Speaking as a representative of the Tenant Farmers Union, however, Gardner Jackson said the bill would be of no benefit whatever to the class that union represents, and predicted a radically different bill, embodying land purchase clauses, will be passed by the Senate.

"The House bill is merely a bill for the making of business loans," he said, "and has no relation to legislation proposed by experts on the subject. It makes no mention of co-operatives, excludes the fellow who's really down and out, and will be used mainly to enable farmers to retain their farms rather than to give tenants a start."

Proviso Eliminated.

He called attention to elimination by the House committee of a phrase which he said provided that no beneficiary under the act who was able to pay taxes and support a family should be eligible to its benefits. Striking out of this proviso Jackson termed "significant."

Jones last night said after conferences with other Democrats that an effort would be made to reinstate the land-buying provision from the House floor.

Questioned as to possible friction arising from discrimination between classes of farmers in making these loans, Gray pointed out that such differentiations already exist. Farmers who apply through national loan associations for loans pay 3½ per cent interest, whereas those who go direct to Federal Land Banks are charged 4 per cent, he pointed out.

Loans for 30 Years.

The tenant loans authorized in the Jones bill for land purchase will be 30-year loans at 3 per cent interest, but Gray did not regard this as likely to produce trouble because of more difficult terms for other farmers.

The rehabilitation loans provided in the Jones bill will run for five years, but appropriations for them are authorized for only a two-year period. They will be obtainable for purchase of equipment, livestock, machinery, supplies for family subsistence and for debt refinancing.

Questioned as to the Farm Bureau view of the method of selecting tenants provided in the bill, that is to say, by means of county committees, he indorsed that plan, but added that selection of tenants "will be one of the most difficult features in the bill to make function properly." He felt local recommendations would aid the Government greatly in the effort to restrict such loans to tenants of character and capacity.

"There is one fault in the bill," he said. "It ought to be administered by the Farm Credit Administration, which is so ably conducting other farm financing. But the FCA doesn't want it and there's no use making any to-do about that now."

Spiers Quits Race for Attorneyship

Radford, Va., April 8 (AP).—The race for the Democratic nomination for attorney general was narrowed to three candidates today by the announced withdrawal of John Spiers, member of the House of Delegates from Radford and Montgomery County.

Spiers said he would seek reelection to the House of Delegates.

The contest is now among Attorney General Abram P. Staples, of Roanoke; John Gallicher, of Leesburg, and former State Senator W. Worth Smith, of Louisa.

New Faces in Congress.

REPRESENTATIVE HARRY R. SHEPPARD.

California's 'Baby' Likes to See 'All the Evidence;' Interested in Child Welfare; Emerald Isle Written on His Face.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

As Harry R. Sheppard sees it, a Congressman who makes up his mind on important issues before he knows all about them is a kind of jack of all trades who masters none.

The affable Irishman from California's Nineteenth District is determined not to be one of those jacks. "Take the Supreme Court question," he began. "I haven't decided how I stand on it because I haven't finished looking at the problem from all points of view. In other words, I don't intend to give my verdict until all the evidence is in."

By way of collecting "evidence," he is making an intensive study of important court cases. He likes to discuss them point by point and to weigh them in the balance of issues at stake today.

"Now take this, for example," he says, as he thumbs through a thick volume crammed full of legal facts. "This Ogden vs. Gibbons case came up in 1824 and precipitated a stiff argument on interstate commerce rights and regulations. The decision originally handed down has been reversed a number of times since—which shows our Constitution is already a bit more elastic than some people seem to think. It shows, also, that decisions by our highest court need not be swallowed whole, without question."

That point established, the "baby" Representative, who has the Emerald Isle written all over his round face, sat back and said there were other subjects that interested him just as much as the Supreme Court fight. For a number of years he has been keenly concerned about curbing juvenile delinquency. Convinced the seeds of crime are sown when boys and girls are not given the benefit of proper counsel and wholesome environment, he places the blame for the increase of juvenile delinquency on "broken homes and the lack of a normal chance. American family life has been wrecked in many instances by the economic storm that has swept throughout the country," he said.

Looking after wayward youngsters and taking care of needy old people have been among Sheppard's chief interests for several years. He will favor legislation designed to benefit either or both of these groups.

Born in Alabama by an Irish mother and an Irish-English father more than half a century ago, Sheppard attended public school and college. He studied law three years and then got a job in the transportation department of the Santa Fe Railroad. Later, he was engaged by copper interests in Alaska; then traveled extensively in North and South America and Asia. Then he moved to Yacaipa, Calif., where he now lives. Meanwhile, he developed King's Beverage and King's Laboratories Corporations, of which he served as president and general manager until 1934, when he retired from active business.

He is the only Representative elected in 1936 who brought to Washington as his secretary one of his opponents in the last election.

He is married, has no children, numbers baseball, football and boxing as his favorite sports.

Bill Is Introduced To Protect Potato Buyers in District

A bill labeled "to protect buyers of potatoes in the District of Columbia" was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Brewster (Republican), former Governor of Maine and now a member of the House District Committee.

The measure forbids the sale or display of potatoes by grocers or other merchants unless they have been graded and labeled or else marked "unclassified."

Maine, it will be recalled, is one of the largest potato producing States in the Union.

Cape Henry Celebrants To Get Roosevelt Note

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt expressed regret yesterday he would be unable to make a pilgrimage to Cape Henry, Va., on April 25, but promised to compose a message for the celebration of the landing of the first permanent English settlers in America.

He received an invitation from Representative Norman R. Hamilton, Portsmouth; Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, and Mrs. Frantz Naylor, representing the Assembly of Tidewater Virginia Women, organizers of the celebration.

'Fill' for Highway To Await Survey

A high earthen "fill," now being considered to support a new East-West highway, may soon blot the green beauty of Rock Creek Park.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, said yesterday, however, that before such a "fill" can be built, there must be a complete topographical survey. Nature lovers, who have previously condemned the plan, may tak hope from that.

The new highway, though its exact location still remains undecided, is part of a Park and Planning Commission plan to provide more direct crossings throughout the District. It will connect the section east of Sixteenth street with the section west of Rock Creek Park.

Ruhland Calls Meeting For Child Health Day

May Day-Child Health Day this year may result in a movement to bring about health protection for every child. A meeting, called by Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, will be held Monday to discuss the day's program.

The day, established by a Congressional resolution of may 18, 1928, and sponsored by the U. S. Children's Bureau, is in the charge of Miss Edith Rockwood. She will be present at the meeting.

Textile Parley Work Praised By President

Roosevelt Sees Move for 40-Hour Week as Correct Step.

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt yesterday assured 200 delegates of the World Textile Conference that in seeking a universal 40-hour work week, they are proceeding in the direction of better social conditions.

"The millennium will not come next year, or in the next 20 years," he said, "but you are proceeding along proper lines."

The President's remarks were made when he and Mrs. Roosevelt received the delegates at an informal White House tea. Agents of 27 governments, and of employers and workers from 25 governments are attending the conference, under auspices of the International Labor Office.

The Chief Executive said he believed the conference already was a success. Progress in the world depends upon getting to know each other, he said, observing that the delegates were in accord with this belief.

Chinese Delegate Bitter.

Earlier yesterday the conference was thrown into confusion by a bitterly worded attack upon foreign interference in Chinese politics by Z. T. Ing, official delegate of the Chinese government.

Japanese spokesmen at the meeting, who inferred that Ing's remarks were principally directed at their nation, prepared to answer his charges that "certain unscrupulous foreign nationals" were smuggling "their goods into China under the protection of armed forces with connivance of their own government authorities."

Although the conference had been scheduled to go into secret committee session today, it was believed that further speeches would be heard first to give Japan opportunity to answer.

Ing hammered at foreign interference with his native industries and politics, saying:

"China can be a great purchaser but the purchasing power of her people cannot be developed due to foreign exploitation. China desires to keep her door open to all but foreign forces are keeping it shut even to China herself. * * *

Says Laws Overridden.

"I am sorry to say that there are still nationals of several countries who enjoy the privileges of extra-territoriality in China and have caused the authorities in the settlements and concessions to evade and override the Chinese laws, preventing them from being enforced and thereby creating an unfair basis of competition.

"Moreover, certain unscrupulous foreign nationals have even gone so far as to smuggle their goods into China at the connivance of their own government authorities, and in such enormous quantities that China has been losing in the amount of the uncollected duties at a rate of over $1,000,000 a week.

"When foreign smugglers in China are protected by foreign guns all legitimate business in China is bound to fail. It is an issue of right against might, law against anarchy, and merchants against pirates."

Republicans Urged To Defend Court

New York, April 8 (AP).—William R. Castle, assistant to Republican National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton, said today it is time for the party to "fight in the open" sit-down strikes and "dictatorship," dividuals, to "go through our own dividuals, to "go through out own precincts and districts stirring up feeling" against any change in the Supreme Court.

Castle, speaking at the Women's National Republican Club, said he hoped the party "will not speak officially as a party quite yet" on the subject of the Supreme Court.

Discussing sit-down strikes, Castle declared:

"Is it not high time that Republicans throughout the country, the Republican Party as such if you wish, take a stand against such terrible invasions of the rights of the individual as these sit-down strikes? If the sit-down strikes are allowed to continue, it means the end of civilization such as we know it in America."

Reich to Refuse Pay for Blasts During Wartime

By the Associated Press.

German officials disclosed last night their government has decided not to ratify an agreement to pay $22,474,783 on American claims growing largely out of war-time explosions at Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J.

Spokesmen at the German Embassy said the agreement had been worked out "provisionally and conditionally" as "the first step in an energetic effort to improve German-American relations" and under the impression that Germany would receive beneficial concessions.

Since the agreement was signed in Munich last July, they added, it has become apparent that those objectives would not be reached. A German agent, it was said, will renew opposition before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission to the 153 claims resulting from the explosions. The claimants contend the blasts were the work of German spies.

Debt Discussion Invited by Cuba

The Cuban government recently appointed a commission to study the so-called public works debt.

The Cuban Embassy at Washington has received instructions to invite the various public works bondholder groups to send one representative for each group to Havana to start the study after April 20.

According to the debt commission, it will not accept nor will the Cuban government accept other representatives than those duly accredited by the above-mentioned groups.

Federal 'Bribe' Is Questioned By McReynolds

Inducements to States Enter Argument on Ala. Security Act.

By the Associated Press.

Supreme Court Justice McReynolds raised the question yesterday whether the Federal Government can "bribe States to take part in the Federal social security program.

During arguments on the act, an attorney said that 90 per cent of a pay roll levied by the Federal Government is turned over to States if they have approved unemployment compensation laws.

McReynolds interjected:

"Can you bribe a State to pass such legislation—that is the question, isn't it?"

"That is the question," replied William Logan Martin, of Birmingham, attorney for the Charles C. Steward Machine Co. of Alabama, challenger of the act.

Earlier Justice Brandeis said the more money the Federal Government refunds to the States the less it will need to care for the unemployed.

"If the States take care of the unemployed, the Federal Government won't have to," he commented.

Unemployment Discussed.

"I cannot agree that it would have to do so," Martin replied.

"But it has been doing it," the justice remarked.

Martin argued that the Federal act "coerced" the States, deprived them of their constitutional rights and took property without due process of law.

Charles E. Wyzanski, jr., special assistant to the Attorney General, began a speech in behalf of the legislation by contending that it came within the power of Congress and did not deprive employers of property without due process.

Arguments will be finished this afternoon.

They started after the justices heard concluding debate on the Alabama unemployment compensation act—one of the measures enacted by 42 States to supplement the Federal law.

Called Public Burden.

Peyton D. Bibb, assistant Alabama attorney general, argued that employers are obligated to help care for the jobless. Forney Johnston, Birmingham attorney for the Gulf States Paper Corporation, contended unemployment relief is a "public or social burden" which can not be imposed on employers.

While Martin was arguing, Justice McReynolds inquired:

"Where do you find any duty imposed on the Federal Government to pay old-age pensions?"

"That duty is on the States," Martin replied.

"Is there any duty at all?" McReynolds went on. "We have 150 years without it, haven't we?"

Justice Stone then commented:

"You don't mean that it is not permissible."

Court Plan Held Menace to Liberty

Baltimore, April 8 (AP).—Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, told the Baltimore Kiwanis Club today that should the President's proposed Supreme Court plan go through "the liberties of the citizens would be placed in immediate jeopardy."

Speaking of arguments concerning the efficiency of the Supreme Court, Holt said the President had appointed more Federal judges over 60 years old than "Harding, Coolidge and Hoover combined."

"Even President Roosevelt," he said, "has had to retreat from his original position that the business of the Federal courts suffered from age of its members and from congestion."

7 Men Arrested, Alleged 'Numbers' Slips Are Seized

A two-man raiding party yesterday seized seven men and a quantity of alleged "numbers" slips when they entered a grocery store at Twenty-third and M streets northwest.

Capt. Arthur E. Miller and Detective Roy E. Blick arrested the men, who were charged with disorderly conduct and released when they posted collateral. The suspects gave their names as Barney Susser, 38, of 1100 block Twenty-third street northwest; Glasco Blunt, colored, 2200 block Claggett street northwest; Isidore Katz, 27, 1400 block North Capitol street; Benjamin Brooks, colored, 47, 1200 block Twenty-second street northwest; Paul S. Roberts, 54, 2200 block M street northwest; Jacob Goldberg, 78, 2100 block Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and Ne Kolidis, 36, 1300 block Oates street northwest.

Detective Blick said a large quantity of the alleged "numbers" slips were seized. Inability to make plays in the place, Blick said, hindered police from charging the men with operating a lottery.

Inquiry Opens In Shooting of D. C. Detective

Mahaney, Suspended, Faces Charge for Assault on R. E. Williams.

Two police inspectors and two captains last night were attempting to penetrate the mystery that surrounds the shooting Tuesday night of Detective Richard E. Williams, 33, by his fellow officer, Detective Sergt. Michael Mahaney.

Meanwhile, Mahaney's superior, Detective Chief Bernard W. Thompson, conferred with the chief clerk of the Police Department, Howard E. Crawford, relative to charges that will be preferred against Mahaney.

Thompson ordered the sergeant suspended Wednesday afternoon when Mahaney refused to tell the chief why he was riding with Williams on the Defense highway, where the shooting is supposed to have occurred. Williams is recovering at George Washington Hospital.

Inspectors Thompson and Edwards and Capts. Ira E. Keck and James E. Bobo were investigating the case yesterday. Thompson refused to make any statement, saying the shooting "is a departmental matter."

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said he is expecting a full report of the shooting, but so far had received none. He declared, however, he thought something strange about the case, due to Mahaney's failure to make any report.

Hurried Building Blamed for U. S. Balloon Troubles

American engineering tends to be too much in a hurry, with a consequent slighting of thoroughness, contended Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the National Bureau of Standards, in a lecture last night at Maryland University.

Dr. Briggs illustrated his criticism by referring to early experiments in balloon ascents to the stratosphere. He talked on "Stratosphere Flights and Their Engineering Lessons," speaking to 300 persons at a meeting of the Washington section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

The failure of the first National Geographic Society-Army Air Corps ascension, in the Black Hills, S. Dak., in July, 1934, might have been prevented if scientists had been more thorough in their examinations of another unsuccessful trip, made earlier by the balloon Century of Progress, Dr. Briggs stated. Adhesions between inner rubber coatings were responsible in both cases, he added. In the Century of Progress ascension, the balloon changed shape, pulling a control rope out of reach of the gondola. In the second flight the balloon covering ripped, with hydrogen gas later exploding.

Dr. Briggs traced the history of balloon and airplane altitude flights from earliest experiments in Germany the beginning of the century to the second, successful ascension by the National Geographic-Army Air Corps balloon. In his illustrated lecture he also described the various scientific instruments used to measure cosmic rays, distribution of ozone and electrical conductivity at high altitudes.

Investigation Set On Coal 'Violence'

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee announced yesterday it would open Wednesday an inquiry into "the long history of violence in the Harlan County, Ky., coal mining area."

Investigators said they would summon Theodore Middleton, Harlan County sheriff, and officials of "about a dozen coal companies" to testify about the "suppression" of union organizations.

The killing of Bennett Musick, 19-year-old son of a United Mine Workers' organizer, M. A. Musick, on February 9, will be one of the first incidents investigated, they said.

Miller Gets 16-Year Sentence For Slaying of Cleo Sprouse on the question of what the punishment should be.

Former Bible School Teacher Metes Out Penalty to Charlottesville Dentist; Relatives of Girl Are Satisfied.

J. Tinsley Coleman, jr., who had been hired by Mrs. Sprouse to assist Commonwealth's Attorney W. O. Fife, was first to accuse Dr. Miller of being the father of Cleo's unwanted baby. Who else, he asked, does a girl turn to in such a situation except the man who is responsible? He recited the history of the case, telling how Dr. Miller took Cleo to a lonely wood, how she died under the chloroform, and how he then dumped her body outside the University Cemetery, hoping that University students would be held to blame.

Defense Counsel Leith Bremner opened by justifying the agreement whereby Dr. Miller was allowed to plead guilty and escape a long jury trial.

"Before my God," he cried, "I think Dr. Miller, though wrong, tried to help a girl out of trouble. She didn't go to her mother; she went to him, and he tried to do something that would prevent her from becoming an outcast and perhaps bringing another outcast into the world.

"He did it with kindness in his heart, but with bad judgment in his head."

Defense Attorney E. V. Walker said that Dr. Miller was a weakling, but a generous weakling.

Commonwealth's Attorney Fife, repying to this argument, cried out: "They say he was weak, easily swayed; that he bowed to the importunities of this girl. Mrs. Miller said in a written declaration that he was a man who couldn't say no.

"If that is true, he is a menace to society. He should be locked up for the rest of his life. Ah, this is a pitiful case. Here is a man three times the age of Cleo Sprouse. He takes her out to perform a crude operation that might maim her for life. He lacks the proper instruments or lights. He is going to perform the operation in the back of an automobile.

"I say he showed a callous and wanton disregard for her life. She died under the chloroform, and now he comes into court and has the audacity to ask for mercy."

That was the last of the arguments. A moment later Judge Smith launched on a Philnpic against the "horrible crime of abortion" and asking why the public so easily tolerated it.

Tonight Miller was preparing for removal to Richmond.

DetectiveCaton Improves; Boy Is Near Death

Bandit Trio Investigation Awaits Outcome of Wounds.

Investigation of the activities of the youthful bandit trio who opened fire on Detective John A. Caton in an ice cream shop Tuesday night lagged yesterday while police awaited the outcome of bullet wounds suffered by Caton and one of the youths.

Caton, confined to Walter Reed Hospital with four bullet wounds, was reported "steadily improving" after spending a restful night.

Louis Knight, 18, 1404 Columbia road northwest, one of the bandits shot in the fight in a High ice cream store at 806 Upshur street northwest, remained near death in Emergency Hospital. He was struck in the lung by a bullet from Canton's gun.

Louis' brother, William Knight, 17, shot in the chest, was reported recovering in Gallinger Hospital.

A third bandit arrested with the Knight brothers and two alleged associates seized Wednesday remained under arrest. No charges have been placed against them.

John J. Simpson, 29, 2133 G street northwest, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday charged with receiving stolen property. He pleaded not guilty and was held for the grand jury under $500 bond.

Police accused him of acting as "fence" for Ferguson Thiebolt, 19, and Robert Sands, 21, and the Knight boys, and disposing of hundreds of dollars' worth of property allegedly taken from 13 business places which Thiebolt admitted burglarizing. Thiebolt implicated the other youths in his confession.

Irwin 'Found' All Over U. S.; Police Baffled

Suspect in Triple Slaying Eludes Search; Case in 13th Day.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 8.—A will-o'-the-wisp tonight led the triple murder mystery of Beekman Hill toward its thirteenth day—along as fantastic a trail as ever was followed by the New York homicide squad.

Robert Irwin, eccentric, 29-year-old sculptor and former divinity student on whom investigators centered their interest when the swashbuckling little father of beautiful "Ronnie" Gedeon was eliminated as a suspect, continued to elude an eight-State police alarm.

As reports placing Irwin—or some one resembling him—in various parts of the country flowed across his desk, Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine predicted he would be "caught within a reasonable time."

Valentine's investigators want to ask the talented young sculptor what he knows—if anything—about the throttling of Miss Gedeon and her mother and the stabbing of their lodger, Frank Byrnes, in their Beekman Hill apartment some time before the dawn of Easter Sunday.

Although the head of St. Lawrence University, where Irwin was a divinity student for a few weeks, declared the missing youth was being "damned without evidence," Assistant Chief Inspector John A. Lyons insisted he had secret evidence tending to link Irwin with the crime.

The missing Irwin was reported seen in such widely separated places as Stroudsburg, Pa.; Battle Creek, Mich.; Pleasantville, N. Y., and Kenosha, Wis.

The latest report was a telegram from Lock Haven, Pa., police saying they were holding a man there who bore a marked resemblance to the fugitive. Inspector Lyons said New York detectives would be sent to investigate.

Barleycorn Is Praised, Blamed In Article by Health Official

Demon Rum Does Not Ruin Livers, Dr. Spencer Holds, but Causes Carelessness in Autos and Shortens Lives of Drinkers.

John Barleycorn receives a thorough going over in the article, "Alcohol and Health," which has been written by Dr. R. R. Spencer, Public Health Service microbe hunter.

He—Mr. Barleycorn—is exonerated as a causative factor in cirrhosis of the liver and eulogized as a blessing to old age. But he is shown up as the diabolic producer of auto accidents, shortener of life and ground breaker for infectious diseases.

Dr. Spencer's article is based not on original research, but on available literature by physicians, pharmacists, chemists, neurologists and others.

Alcoholic intoxication varies with the individual, according to experimental evidence. Thus a jigger of rye may put one person under the table and exert no apparent effect whatever upon Drinker No. 2. In the former case, there has been a greater concentration of the alcohol in the imbiber's bloodstream.

Variability of effects may be due to differences in inherent sensitivity, previous experience with the demon rum, rate of absorption from the stomach, size and weight of the individual, rate of excretion through lungs, kidneys and skin, metabolism and possibly other unknown factors, according to Dr. Spencer.

Not a Stimulant.

Liquor is a depressant rather than a stimulant, contrary to popular belief, he points out. It may make one feel satisfied with himself, but nevertheless it benumbs the motor and sensory functions so that clear thinking is difficult if not impossible and muscular skill is decreased. That's where the highway hazard comes in.

The usual "shot" for snakebite might just as well be given the snake as the victim for all the good it will do, Dr. Spencer concluded. Nor is there any satisfactory evidence either for or against the efficacy of alcohol in treating acute infectious diseases.

On the other hand, Dr. Spencer points out that germs of pneumonia, tuberculosis, etc., thrive nicely in the bodies of habitual drinkers.

While British and American insurance companies mark drinkers, even those in the "moderate" or "occasional" groups, as poorer risks than abstainers, Prof. Raymond Pearl, of Johns Hopkins University, is cited by Dr. Spencer as one who found lower mortality rates and a greater life expectancy among moderate drinkers.

Occasionals" Warned.

But Dr. Arthur Hunter, of the New York Life Insurance Co., warns:

"Those who drink occasionally to the point of intoxication or have a few protracted sprees are distinctly shorter-lived than the average."

Dr. Spencer, however, takes note of those qualified experts who defend the practice of washing down a dinner with a quantity of beer or wine. Also the physician who writes:

Either as a food, as a medicine or for its comfort-giving qualities, alcohol properly administered is one of the greatest blessings of old age. Properly used in this period of life it is probably more useful from all viewpoints and probably more beneficial than for any other purpose."

Soviet Dictator Orders Cleanup Of Trade Unions

Moscow, April 8 (U.P.).—Dictator Joseph Stalin, denouncing widespread corruption throughout the Soviet Union, tonight ordered a sweeping "top-to-bottom" cleanup of all trade unions, which he said are controlled by racketeers, criminals and bureaucrats.

Thousands immediately feared the order heralded nation-wide arrests and dismissals as the party began to carry out Stalin's decree.

The move was merely the opening drive in a sweeping reorganization of the Communist Party and a long-delayed campaign to winnow out counter-revolutionaries in every Soviet organization.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 8 (AP).—In swamplands and dingy city alleys, officers tonight sought 14 colored men, three of them killers, who escaped early today from Duval County Jail.

Seventeen men climbed out through a sawed dormitory window, but three were soon back. Alvin Baker, who, with James Tyler, admitted the slaying in an attempted holdup last November of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Surrency, was recaptured. Two others surrendered after a few hours' freedom.

Officers took bloodhounds to a swamp where they believed Tyler, one of the fugitives, was hiding.

Justice Department Receives 7,000,000th Fingerprint Card

The 7,000,000th fingerprint card has just been received by the Identification Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice.

Inaugurated in 1924 with a nucleus of 810,000 fingerprint cards, to provide law enforcement agencies throughout the country a central clearing house for identification data, the division's files present a real who's who in crime, serving 10,394 law enforcement agencies. In addition, fingerprint identification data are exchanged with 81 foreign countries.

The last fingerprint card received was that of an unidentified individual who died in the Los Angeles General Hospital March 27 as the result of injuries suffered in a traffic accident.

When the dead man's fingerprints were hunted in the file of the Bureau of Identification, he was found to be Harry McGillivray, arrested in Rochester, N. Y., on a charge of intoxication several years ago, and later arrested in San Luis Obispo, Calif., for investigation.

Identification immediately was telegraphed to the chief of police in Los Angeles.

Hitler Parents' Grave Guard in Austria Fought

Bitter Nazi Press Attack Threatens Friendly Relations.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 8.—Berlin's newspapers began a concerted attack on Austria this afternoon for what they contended was the placing of gendarmerie guards at the graves of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's parents at Leonding, Austria, and the punishment of a pensioned Austrian official and his wife for placing a wreath there.

The unusual tenor of the newspaper criticism indicated that amicable Austro-German relations, cemented by a treaty of friendship last year, might be at stake.

The Boersenzeitung called it a "cultural disgrace in Austria." The Tageblatt added: "There is no explanation of the act of the Austrian government in barricading the resting place of the parents of the head of a state, unless Vienna has taken a lesson from Moscow, where the grave of Lenin's first wife is guarded closely by the GPU. The Vienna action exceeds Moscow's barbarism."

"Under no circumstances must this incident be taken lightly," it said. "It urgently needs clarification."

The Lokalanzeiger: "The Austrian government must decide quickly on this particular case, whether the desired Austro-German understanding can be safeguarded against similar occurrences or whether the unhappy differences between the two German countries shall be resurrected to the joy of all enemies of Germandom."

Austrians Deny Charge.

Vienna, April 8 (AP).—Austrian police authorities insisted tonight that anyone could visit the graves of Adolf Hitler's parents at Leonding.

Describing German newspaper attacks on Austria as "just another German press campaign," they declared there were guards at the graves only on occasions such as Memorial Day, when there were numerous visitors, and asserted anyone could place a wreath if they refrained from provocative demonstration.

The Chancellory Press Bureau said a retired railroad worker, Franz Bruckner, of Linz, had his pension cut about 35 per cent, not because he placed a wreath on the Hitler graves last November 1, but because the wreath bore a ribbon which said in cold letters: "Honor the father of the man who saved Germany and will free Austria."

Ambassador Bullitt Is Dubbed Knight

Paris, April 8 (U.P.).—American Ambassador William C. Bullitt tonight accepted knighthood in the famed French wine bibbers organization known as the "Knights of Wine Tasting."

He will be knighted formally during a ceremony in the wine cellar at Uuits-Saint-Georges, in the heart of the famous Burgundy vineyards. For the ceremony he will wear a red robe with ermine trimmings and a square hat—the official costume.

The ceremony itself consists of extensive bibbing.

Eden Is Planning Visit to Brussels

London, April 8 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will go to Brussels April 25 to "renew personal contacts" with Belgium's leaders and learn more about that nation's future foreign policies, the foreign office announced tonight.

His visit will return those made to England last year by Premier Paul van Zeeland and Foreign Minister Paul Henry Spaak.

Eden is expected to inquire into the role Belgium intends to play after she is released from obligations incurred last year following German remilitarization of the Rhineland, repudiating the Locarno Treaty.

Berlin, April 8 (AP).—The German Ambassador to Warsaw complained to the polish foreign office today against resolutions by a Congress of Polish patriotic societies advocating annexation of parts of German East Prussia as "unredeemed Polish territories."

Fear Il Duce Planning Coup In Spain Grows Over Europe

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

London, April 8.—The rising fears of Europe centered tonight upon Venice palace in Rome where Premier Mussolini, believed near an open break with anti-Fascist France and Russia, pondered difficulties confronting the Spanish rebels.

Upon Il Duce's decision—whether to respond to British pleas that he "reconsider" his defiant attitude or to plunge openly into the Spanish embroglio—may depend the peace of Europe, in the opinion of most diplomats.

Mussolini appeared to be laying the groundwork for some bold move as his puppet press condemned what it termed "flagrant violations" by France and Russia in support of Spanish loyalists.

Some newspapers warned that the British must recognize Italian rights in the Mediterranean "rather than fight them."

The statements emphasized Mussolini's decision that any neutrality violations by other powers would force him to "reconsider the Italian position."

The international non-intervention committee virtually admitted tonight that it was powerless to carry on with its established plan in view of Italy's refusal to discuss the withdrawal of her rebel volunteers.

Rome Renews Charges.

Rome, April 8 (AP).—Charges by the authoritative Giornale d'Italia of French and Russian violations of the Spanish neutrality pact were renewed tonight.

Virginio Gayda, editor of Giornale d'Italia, charged a Soviet army staff had been formed at Toulouse, France, to superintend arms shipments to Spain.

The editor, who has repeatedly asserted France and Russia have violated the "hands off Spain" accord, published a list of 14 steamers which he said had left the Russian ports of Sebastopol and Odessa, carrying war supplies to Spain, since the nonintervention agreement went into effect February 20.

Cargoes of these vessels, the newspaper declared, included 28 airplanes, 245 cannon, 220 tanks, 130 trucks nad 1,200 tons of munitions.

Six Russian submarines, it was charged, often visited Barcelona, Spanish government port. Two light cruisers and four destroyers, the paper added, now are preparing to go to the Spanish coast.

Roberto Cantalupo, Italy's ambassador to the insurgent regime, was expected, meanwhile, to provide Premier Mussolini with first-hand information on the civil war, Cantalupo arrived yesterday from Spain and was understood then to have made a full report on Insurgent Gen. Franco's activities to Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Gayda, in an earlier attack, charged the Spanish steamer Mar Negro was en route to Valencia from Odessa, Russia, with 25 tanks, 20 planes, 30 trucks and 800 tons of war supplies.

Gayda's charges against France included one to the effect that nation was permitting trans-shipment of war material made in the United States. This included, he said, 62 cases of unmounted machine guns, 66 cases of airplane motors, and a projectile-making machine.

Plan Appeal for Troops.

Gibraltar (Friday), April 9 (U.P.).—Juan March, financial adviser to the Spanish rebel generalissimo, Francisco Franco, will sail for Italy tonight, reportedly to plead with Premier Mussolini to send more troops to Spain.

Informed persons said Mussolini's indecision as to his future policy in Spain might be broken by March's report of the progress of the war and need for more troops to wipe out insurgent defeats on the Pozoblanco and Guadalajara fronts. The financial adviser also may visit Germany, where he holds large interests in the Krupp armaments works, it was reported.

British Parley May Study Hull Economic Plan

By the United Press

London, April 8.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told the House of Commons tonight that Secretary of State Cordell Hull's plea for world economic co-operation to avert war may be taken up at the British Imperial Conference, to be convened soon.

The questioner asked Baldwin if, in view of Hull's suggestions in a New York speech Monday night, the British government would extend the agenda of the conference to permit consideration of the American proposal.

"The scope of the agenda," Baldwin said, "is sufficiently wide to permit any discussion of this question which the representatives concerned might desire."

The Imperial Conference, bringing together high dignitaries of all the empire's dominions and colonies, will be held after King George VI's coronation May 12.

Hull's cautious invitation for an economic settlement of world troubles which hold a constant threat of war was applauded tonight by David Lloyd George's council of action, which warned that unless England takes prompt action the "offer" might be withdrawn.

"This is the third occasion in recent years that America has put forth suggestions for co-operation and if this should meet with the same refusal as occurred in the cases of the Japanese aggression and the Disarmament Conference, it will put an end to all hopes for American intervention," the council said.

Nazi Paper Lauds Hull.

Berlin, April 8 (AP).—The Diplomatische Korrespondenz, semiofficial organ of the German foreign office, complimented Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, today on his efforts to restore world trade between nations.

"The important declarations of Mr. Hull," the organ said, "evince an extraordinarily active interest in foreign trade problems and meet with full agreement here."

a united front today some 70 miles north of the highly important insurgent-held city of Seville.

The union was accomplished by government troops driving west from the Cordoba province mining region to contact troops in neighboring Badajoz province and close a gap which had existed for many months.

The maneuver materially strengthened government positions in that section of the country 150 miles southwest of Madrid, where the struggle has been going on for months to control some of Spain's richest coal fields and world-famous mercury mines.

Moors Slaughtered.

Bayonne, France, April 8 (AP).—Basque reports from the Bilbao front tonight told of the slaughter of a brigade of Moorish insurgent cavalrymen, mowed down by government machine guns in the Mount Urquiola sector southeast of Bilbao.

"Row upon row" of hard-riding Moors were cut to pieces, the report stated, when Basque militiamen rose to meet a cavalry charge with machine-gun bullets.

Insurgent tanks, which flanked the Moors' charge, were reported blasted out with hand grenades. Six of the lumbering war machines were captured. The charge repulsed, government troops began an immediate counter-attack, which resulted in a gain of nearly a mile of contested ground.

Several squadrons of heavy bombing and fast pursuit planes arrived at Bilbao from the Spanish government seat at Valencia to aid in defending the beleaguered Basque capital.

Britain Gets Apology.

London, April 8 (AP).—Two British warships collected a speedy apology today from Spanish insurgents for two air attacks against the destroyer Gallant.

Insurgent air commanders and port authorities at Palma, Mallorca, one of the Balearic Islands, told officers of the British vessels "it was conceivable we made an unfortunate mistake."

The destroyer Garland and the cruiser Shropshire anchored in Palma Harbor while their officers called upon the insurgents.

Beatty Is Absolved Of 'Cruelty' Charges

New York, April 8 (AP).—Charges Clyde Beatty, animal trainer, resorted to cruelty in the mastering of his performers, were dismissed today by Magistrate Anthony F. Burke. Beatty was arrested yesterday on complaint of Humane Inspector Jacob Jacobs and was released under $500 bail pending hearing today.

once a day, and fresh eggs brought from the country from an American-owned farm. But in the city proper food was rationed by the defense junta and meals there consisted almost daily of beans, lentils, cauliflower, pickled sardines and fruit.

Comic Relief.

"Sometimes comic relief lit up the brooding tragedy," he said with a laugh. "Once a pet dog disappeared from the embassy and word got around we had him for dinner the day before. Of course, it was not so, but you should have seen the grimaced faces of our credulous colleagues."

But of all the days of terror and the nights of fear, November 7 remains the most vivid, the most terrible. Fear was in every heart. Fear nervously clutched the triggers of loaded rifles. Fear manned the barricades. Fear captured sleep.

"And then something happened," Wendelin reminisced. "A defense junta took control of the situation, brought order out of chaos and the crisis passed."

Women Among Militia.

Wendelin described Gen. Jose Miaja, government commander in central Spain, as "stocky, bald, wears gold-rimmed spetacles, has quiet, kindly eyes." And he met a few American members of the International anti-Fascists, who fight in a unit called the Abraham Lincoln Brigade.

Do women number among the militia? Wendelin was asked.

"Yes, they do," he said. "I have seen many of them. In the first mad days of siege they manned the barricades in scores with their comrade brothers. Now many have been weeded out, but there are still quite a few in the ranks."

The withdrawal of the American diplomat closed the embassy at Madrid. Some Americans still remain—nationals with Spanish ties. The Valencia road was not then under rebel fire, so he motored in safety to the emergency capital.

"Life was absolutely normal throughout that government-held territory," he said. "About 10 miles from Valencia, however, we ran into armed guards. It was the first sign of a country in arms since we left shell-shattered Madrid."

But if Madrid still holds out, one third of it is in ruins. University City, where millions of pesetas worth of buildings formed one of the finest campuses in the world, is now a shambles, the diplomat said. Gaping holes dot most of the city's thoroughfares, and Madrid's Times Square, the Puerto del Sol, is flanked by empty shells.

Jay Gould's Casino Damaged by Flames

Juan-Les-Pins, France, April 8 (AP).—The fashionable Casino of Frank Jay Gould, youngest son of the late Jay Gould, was damaged by fire today just before the start of a gala tea dance.

Under Gould's personal direction, the crowd was evacuated safely after the flames burst from the stage. Damage was placed at $20,000.

"AMERICANS ACQUIRING REAL BEER TASTE" SAYS FAMOUS BRAUMEISTER

Dry "beer-y" beers outselling sweeter beers in St. Louis, Detroit, Philadelphia, and other cities as well as here in the Baltimore-Washington area

There's no doubt about it. Americans are losing their prohibition-day taste for sweet-tasting beers—a taste they developed when home-brew and "needled" beer were made with sugar and raisins, or both! And even though so many beers are still being made on the sweet-side, you'll find that real beer drinkers insist on a dry beer-y beer like Gunther's.

Gunther's is just the opposite from a sweet beer. As different as day and night from other beers. The best way to explain it, according to an old Bavarian brew-master, is to call it "beerie" or "beer-y." Dry and beer-y, that's the way to describe it! Instead of being heavy in body, Gunther's is just the reverse. Completely satisfying, yet it's the light type of old-style lager that doesn't "fill you up." You can drink more of this kind of beer without taking the edge off your appetite.

Like a dry cocktail, or a dry wine, it's the only kind a real experienced beer drinker will order.

And you'll never tire of the taste of Gunther's. That again is because it's so dry and beer-y—instead of being sweet-like!

No wonder Gunther's is the biggest selling beer in this part of the country. Made like an imported Bavarian or Bohemian beer, using only the choicest imported hops, there is no grander tasting beer at any price anywhere.

Ask some of the folks from the Danish, Dutch or German Embassies what kind of beer they like (and what kind of beer they drank in the old country). It's dollars to doughnuts they'll describe "a good dry beer-y kind"—like Gunther's!

Drink Gunther's and you'll really be a beer drinker!

IN CIRCLE BELOW—Reporter snapped a couple in the act of discussing beer taste. The "sweet young thing" said she used to drink sweet beers but gradually learned to like the dry, beer-y taste of Gunther's.

BEER AND STUFF! If you can find a "sweet-beer" drinker in this crowd at one of the good bars, it's the young lady in the flower-print frock. She said she rarely drank beer and actually likes her wines sweet. Oh well, we can't expect everybody to be a real beer drinker.

AT THE ACTIVE BARS—more and more people are patronizing the places that carry Gunther's. You couldn't sell this bunch of beer drinkers anything but a good imported beer, or the self-same taste in a dry, beer-y beer like Gunther's.

GUNTHER'S Dry Beer-y BEER

Oil Field Drive to Open Thursday; Rebel Unions' Expulsion Nears.

ident of the Lewis-affiliated Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers Union, is at Houston with a corps of assistants, pressing the drive to bring oil field workers into his union.

Frey, likewise, already has in that territory numerous representatives and organizers of several international unions affiliated with the metal trades department. He will be the principal speaker at the Thursday mass meeting opening the intensive membership drive.

The letter received by Frey yesterday was on the stationery of a Houston hotel and signed with a name Frey did not recognize. It read:

"Get out of the picture, you lous. You have not been a workingman in 30 years. Either stop your movement against a progressive action or you will be not only killed, but tortured to make you be (human)."

The federation official was unable to throw light on its source.

The federation's executive council was authorized at the national convention at Tampa last fall to hold a special meeting on expulsion of the Lewis unions at any time President Green and the council became convinced it would be impossible to achieve peace between the two organizations. The convention had approved the suspension of the Lewis group, but chose, also, a committee to discuss a settlement with any committee the C. I. O. should select. The C. I. O. has never acted on the proposal.

Green Expulsion Pending.

At the same time there still is pending a movement in Lewis' and Green's own union, the United Mine Workers, to expel the Federation president from that union, of which Lewis is the head. The action was ordered by the policy committee, but the procedure to be followed has not been decided. Whether action must be started in Green's home union at Coshocton, Ohio, or whether it can be taken by the union officers, has been disputed.

Lewis, stopping at Pittsburgh, en route from Detroit, to address a meeting of organizers of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, said Henry Ford's River Rouge plant "in times past has been an arsenal—and still is today." He added it "will not gain him the end he seeks."

"The concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate yesterday," Lewis said, "hits at Ford directly." The resolution expressed the Senate's opposition to sit-down strikes, "company unions" or "any other unfair labor practice of employers."

Denies "Banker" Financing.

He ridiculed a statement attributed to Ford that "the labor unions are financed by international bankers."

"Every dollar the C. I. O. has is saturated with the sweat of the workers," he declared.

He said his organization would not tolerate any type of strike in plants of companies that have signed contracts with the union.

"The C. I. O. stands for punctilious contractual relations," he added. "Where strikes are called illegally, those responsible will be summarily dealt with by discharge and expulsion from the union."

"Of course, we are not losing any sleep about strikes in plants where the employer refuses to follow the policy laid down by the Wagner labor relations act and bargain collectively with the workers."

C. I. O. Men, Oil Heads Talk.

Houston, Tex., April 8 (AP).—Events along the Texas labor front, selected by John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization to begin its drive for organization of 1,000,000 oil workers, moved swiftly today.

C. I. O. representatives conferred with officials of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., who afterward announced plans for a general wage increase for employes.

The increase would amount to approximately $1,500,000 annually for 1,300 employes.

Commenting on the threat by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to expel the C. I. O., H. C. Fremming and Adolph Germer, C. I. O. organizers, said any trouble within the two labor organizations was "unpleasant and undesirable," but the A. F. L. move would not affect the C. I. O. drive in the oil industry.

"We have no fight with the A. F. of L.," Freming said. "Craft unions won't work in the mass oil industry and industrial unions will."

'Little Egypt' Buried With Byzantine Pomp

Chicago, April 8 (AP).—"Little Egypt" was buried today.

The famed dancer of the Columbian Exposition, Chicago's 1893 World's Fair, was carried to her grave with only a few hundred friends and idle curious looking on. The spectators stood with bared heads in the chill mist.

"Little Egypt's" last audience stood for an hour while Greek Orthodox Bishop Callistos intoned the funeral mass and the choir sang the ancient Byzantine scores.

House Revolt Blocks Inquiry Into Sit-Downs in Hot Debate

sit-down strikes without our interference," shouted Representative Frank E. Hook (Democrat) of Michigan. "The farmers in Hershey took care of them."

Representative Gerald J. Boileau, Wisconsin Progressive, and a leader of the liberal block that led the rebellion, joined Withrow in charging the resolution was being "railroaded" by gag rule, with one hour debate and no amendments.

The fight challenge was hurled by Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, whose warning that "sooner or later the House will have to pass legislation dealing with labor troubles" was met with some laughter.

Among those laughing and talking while Hoffman spoke was Representative John D Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan. Pointing at Dingell, Hoffman said he was "mumbling" to himself and had called him a "faker."

"Get up on the floor and employ those names, or come outside and use them," shouted Hoffman, while the chair rapped for order.

Dingell dismissed the challenge with a wave of his hand, and continued talking.

Hoffman said charges that Republicans were backing the Dies resolution to "embarass" the President were "unfair."

Representative Robert F. Rich (Republican), Pennsylvania, charged a "sit-down" by Administration leaders on the labor issue. Rich said the President called Administration leaders to the White House on the sit-down question immediately on his return from Warm Springs.

"Ever since they have been sitting down," Rich said.

Majority Leader Sam Rayburn rose to deny the White House conference was called to discuss sit-downs.

"As usual, the gentleman from Pennsylvania doesn't know his facts," said Rayburn.

Cox Supports Proposal.

Later, when Rayburn asked members be given five days to extend their remarks in the Congressional Record, Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell snapped: "After the wonderful Democratic exhibition today, I believe you ought to have 15 days to explain your action."

The opening plea for the Dies resolution was made by E. E. Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, who said the inquiry should be approved so members could "stand up and be counted on the side of law and order." Cox said, "No friend of labor believes that an employe can seize the personal property of another to use it as a bludgeon for extortion."

1 Dead, Score Hurt In Alabama Gale

Brundidge, Ala., April 8 (AP).—A windstorm virtually leveled the little Dickert's lumber mill village on the outskirts of Brundidge today, killing at least one person and injuring more than a score of others.

It was one of a series of spring blasts that have visited scattered sections of the South this week taking 13 lives and doing property damage that may run into millions.

Trucks, school buses and ambulances were pressed into service to take the mill village injured to Troy, Ala., hospitals today. Fred Crowley, 13, was the only known dead. He was killed in the collapse of his home.

Henry Ford Reported Planning Concessions

New York, April 8 (U.P.).—Agents of Henry Ford in Washington believe that he soon will announce extensive increases and improved working conditions in an effort to prevent unionization of his workers by John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organziation, the Daily News will say tomorrow in a dispatch from Washington.

first of its 65,000 employes back to strike-idle plants tonight.

At Lansing, Mich., Gov. Frank Murphy tonight announced the signing of an agreement between the Hudson Motor Car Co. and the United Automobile Workers of America, ending a month-long strike affecting 11,000 employes at Detroit.

Settlement of the last major automobile dispute in Michigan was reached in terms substantially the same as those of the Chrysler strike agreement Tuesday and the Reo strike settlement Wednesday.

Union officials said sit-down strikers who have occupied Hudson plants in Detroit since March 8 would evacuate as soon as possible.

Meanwhile, John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, said employes of the Ford Motor Co. are enrolling in labor organizations, and that Henry Ford will deal "in time" with the automobile workers' organization. Ford said yesterday his company "will never recognize" any union.

Caterpillar Strike Settled.

Peoria, Ill., April 8 (AP).—B. C. Heacock, president of the Caterpillar Tractor Co., announced tonight settlement of the strike which closed the plant Tuesday afternoon and threw 11,500 men out of work. Heacock said the plant would reopen tomorrow.

Heacock said an agreement, based upon an earlier verbal contract, had been signed. It provided for recognition of any union as bargaining agent for its membership, he said.

The strike, called by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America, was over the union's demand for a written contract.

Hershey Plant Picketed.

Hershey, Pa., April 8 (AP).—Picketing was resumed late today at the plant of the Hershey Chocolate Corporation, where farmers, nonstrikers and sit-down strikers clashed yesterday.

About 50 pickets who said they were assigned by the Committee for Industrial Organization paraded in the rain in front of the postoffice, next door to the factory.

preme Court from lower curt rulings, will "receive unusual and particular consideration and more than ordinary respect."

It was referred to a sub-committee consisting of Senators Pat McCarran, Nevada, chairman; William H. Dieterich, Illinois, and George McGill, Kansas, all Democrats, and William E. Borah, Idaho, Republican, and George Norris, Nebraska, Independent Republican.

The testimony of Hartman, which included a characterization of the President's court plan as "bloodless assassination" of the elder justices of the Supreme Court, aroused the committee members and the meager audience, as the controversial letters "NRA" were heard.

He oulined his bill briefly to prove his contention that all the present known aims of the New Deal can be accomplished within the letter of the Constitution. He said:

"Aside from legal objections, NIRA met disfavor because: It provided a bureaucratic control of industry; it provided no protection for a minority opposed to a particular code; and it levied a direct tax on the several members of each industry to support code administration.

"NIRA was declared invalid by the Supreme Court because it involved an unconstitutional delegation to the executive of legislative power and an attempt to control intrastate business in violation of States' rights.

"Permeating the entire problem is the further constitutional obstacle, affecting State action as well as Congressional action, that the due process clause does not permit direct legislative regulation of wages and hours.

"This difficulty has been greatly relieved by the decision of the Supreme Court last Monday sustaining the Washington minimum wage law.

"The Supreme Court in the Schechter case (NRA) pointed out the way to meet the constitutional problems which had not been solved in the drafting of that act. Mr. Justice Cardozo stated in so many words that there would have been no unlawful delegation of legislative functions if the statute had prescribed the fairness of competition as a standard for testing the codes' provisions.

"* * * The formula is 'fair competition.' A comprehensive fair competition act should be adopted prohibiting all forms of unfair business methods (1) in interstate commerce or (2) in competition with transactions in interstate commerce. The statute would cover (1) all forms of deception of the public by persons engaged in interstate commerce (2) all forms of competition heretofore held to be legally unfair, and (3) certain other practices in competition now generally held unfair. In this category would fall price discrimination, selling below cost, use of sweatshop-made goods or child-labor-made goods to compete in interstate commerce with nonsweatshop-made goods.

"Congress would not be fixing wages * * * The second legal obstacle—the delegation of legislative power to the executive—is overcome by having the statute affirmatively specify certain general standards for determining in each case the propriety of the labor conditions involved. The last difficulty—the most baffling—is readily overcome by focusing the incidence of the law upon the competition between goods after one or both has actually entered the current of interstate commerce.

"The Congress does not project legislative power into the factory, mine or shop. It does not atttempt to prescribe wages, hours or the use of child labor, nor does it attempt to prohibit the transportation in interstate commerce of child-made or sweatshop-made goods. It simply says that once these goods have come under Federal jurisdiction in the stream of interstate commerce, it will forbid the sale of these goods, not absolutely but in competition with higher-standard-made goods."

Hartman told the keenly interested committee that industries would set up their codes, to be approved by the Government, and that these codes would act as prima facie evidence in lawsuits of standards to be maintained.

The morning witness was J. S. Manning, of Raleigh, N. C., a lawyer, who admitted having voted the Democratic ticket regularly since 1880, and predicted gloomily that in the future the question, "Watchman, what of the night?" might become "Watchman, what of the judge?"

Dr. W. B. Harvey, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, of Oklahoma City, Okla., who came by plane to testify, told the committee that "we need God-trusters, not brain-trusters."

Family Shares Mrs. Lincoln's Vast Bequests

Descendants Willed Most by Former President's Daughter-in-Law.

The children and grandchildren of Mrs. Mary Harlan Lincoln, widow of Robert Todd Lincoln, son of former President Abraham Lincoln, will share in the major portion of her vast estate it was shown yesterday when her will was filed in District Court for probate. There was no petition for probate, thus the extent of the estate was not shown.

Even so, Norman B. Frost and Frederick N. Towers, attorneys for the estate, estimated it would approximate much more than $1,000,000.

Mrs. Lincoln, who died in her palatial Georgetown home at 3014 N street northwest last March, gave that home to her daughter, Mrs. Charles Isham, together with her summer home at Manchester, Vt. Mrs. Isham is also to have the portrait of President Lincoln by Healy for life. It is thereafter to be given to the United States.

Silverware belonging to President and Mrs. Lincoln is to go to Mrs. Isham. Other priceless relics, such as the Bible on which "Honest Abe" took the oath of office have already been given into the custody of the Government. In addition bequests of $2,000 were made to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heyser, of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bushee, of Manchester, Vt.

Frost and Towers, attorneys for the estate, were named to head a trust estate from the rest of the estate. They are to pay three $1,200 funds annually, and divide the balance between the children and grandchildren. The children are Mrs. Isham and Mrs. Robert Randolph, 2908 N street northwest. Three grandchildren survive. They are Lincoln Isham, Mary L. Beckwith, and Robert L. Beckwith.

If all the children and grandchildren die without leaving issue, the trustees are directed to distribute the estate to the Red Cross, Iowa Wesleyan College and the Christian Science Church. The three $1,200 annuities provided for go to Ben Hardin Helm, Lexington, Ky., Jessie S. Morrison, Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Emma Raymond, Washington. All are distant relatives. Mrs. Lincoln's husband was Secretary of War in the Garfield Administration, one-time minister to Great Britain and later president of the Pullman Co.

Deformed Race Being Produced By Modern Food, Says Scientist

Degenerative Diseases Apparently on Increase Due to Diet Changes, Ohio Speaker Tells Conference of Anthropologists.

By the Associated Press.

Cambridge, Mass., April 8.—Modernized foods tonight were blamed by Dr. Weston A. Price, Cleveland, Ohio, scientist, for changes in civilized man's physical appearance.

Speaking before the American Association of Physical Anthropologists, he reported that many of the modern degenerative diseases are "apparently on the increase notwithstanding the advance that has been made in the control of many epidemic and infectious diseases."

Dr. Price based his contention that modern food was at fault for "this continually accelerating" increase, upon a long study of the food and teeth of primitive racial stocks.

He said his study had revealed that dietary programs based upon the standards of primitive races "with regard to body building and repairing materials, were competent in our American groups not only to prevent tooth decay but to check it when it is rampant."

He found that primitive racial stocks "lose their immuunity to tooth decay and to associated degenerations" at their zone of contact with modern civilization as they adopted modern foods, "including white flour, sugar, polished rice and canned goods."

The change was evidence, he asserted, in development of facial deformities, crooked teeth, abnormally narrow nostrils with inadequate nasal openings and a narrowing of the body pattern, including the hips.

"An important phase of this change in physical development," he said, "is expressed by a narrowing and lengthening of the face. It is most significant that these changes in physical development produce a series of deformity patterns which are characteristic of the people of our modern civilization."

Publisher Attacks Change in Court

New York, April 8 (AP).—A publisher wrote to the editors of his own magazine to express disagreement with their support of President Roosevelt's court proposal, and the editors published his views as an open letter from their boss.

Maurice Wertheim, recording his "personal dissent," asserted in the issue of The Nation published today that the American people were being asked to surrender their right to pass upon a fundamental change.

He termed the proposal "a clear, bald attempt to grasp power." Further, said his letter, The Nation should assert the people's right to review such a change if the magazine remained true to its liberal traditions.

Wertheim, head of the international banking firm of Wertheim & Co., bought The Nation two years ago and is a director of the Nation Fund, Inc., a foundation which controls the magazine.

The editors exercise the privilege of determining editorial policies.

The requested quotas were not disclosed, but one afternoon newspaper said the conference was in danger of breaking up because the total figures exceeded the world requirements many times.

Arms Race Blamed in Plot To Rob Va. Mine of Scrap Iron

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 8.—Europe's rearmament race extended into an ancient gold mine near here today, as John T. Gill, 35, and Maurice Cooper, 26, were captured taking scrap iron weighing 7 tons, allegedly to be sold in Washington.

The men, both giving their address as Washington, were apprehended removing a steam boiler valued at $100 from the long-abandoned Horse Pen gold mine, owned by Judge Alvin T. Embrey, according to Sheriff W. E. Curtiss, who had been lying in wait after earlier thefts.

An increasingly profitable market for scrap iron, following European and Japanese rearmaments, has resulted in a shortage which has sent prices soaring and salvagers scouring every available corner of the country. A bridge was recently reported cut down and carted away in rural Maryland.

Cooper and Gill told Sheriff Curtiss they had attempted to locate the owners of the old mines but being unable to do so, had begun hauling off the iron equipment, which also included an ore stamping machine valued at $25, in trucks to be sold as junk. According to Sheriff Curtiss, 4 tons of old metal were hauled away from the Eagle Mine, owned by New York interests, some weeks ago. Three tons were removed from the Horse Pen mine.

The arrested pair were said to have been caught in the act of loading scrap iron onto a truck when the sheriff discovered them today. They will be given a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice R. H. L. Chichester at Stafford Courthouse tomorrow, charged with larceny.

Alberta Drops Social Credit's Money Venture

Edmonton, Alberta, April 8 (Canadian Press).—Provincial Treasurer Solon Low yesterday announced abandonment of the social credit government's stamped scrip venture, called the prosperity certificate plan, launched in August, 1936.

Refusal of Alberta merchants to accept the certificates, designed to increase the purchasing power of the province, resulted in failure of the plan.

Meanwhile, Minister of Municipal Affairs Lucien Maynard introduced a bill in the Legislature providing a 50 per cent reduction in principal on private debts contracted before July 1, 1932. The measure is designed as a substitute for the reduction and settlement of debts act, cornerstone of the debt legislation of Premier William Aberhart's government, which was declared unconstitional February 19.

Income Publicity Repeal Is Sought

By the United Press.

Repeal of a law which forces the Treasury to make persons earning $15,000 or more annually the target of "prying pols" and unscrupulous "sucker list" promoters appeared imminent as House leaders yesterday united behind a move to scrap the two-year-old statute.

The offending measure is part of the Internal Revenue act and requires that the Treasury make a report to Congress of all persons earning $15,000 or more annually and the full amount of their salaries.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, described the publicity provision of the act as a "nuisance" and announced he had introduced a resolution to repeal it.

Child Bureau Draws Praise Of President

First Lady Present as Silver Anniversary Is Celebrated.

opinion and only that," the speaker averred.

Talking in behalf of the General Advisory Committee on Maternal and Child Welfare Services, Dr. Kenneth D. Blackfan, chairman of the committee, brought assurances of continued co-operation between this body and the bureau in the interest of child welfare under the social security act.

Need for better care for mothers, especially in rural sections, was stressed by Dr. Blackfan. He pointed out that reports of maternal deaths indicate that half, perhaps more, might have been prevented had care been really adequate.

Miss Grace Abbott, who served as chief of the Children's Bureau from 1921 to 1934, and William Chennery, editor of Collier's Magazine and a strong force in aiding the organization of the 1919 Conference on Child-Welfare Standards, reviewed some of the milestones passed in a quarter-of-a-century's progress in bureau activity.

First Lady Speaks.

Expressing her hope that the child labor amendment to the Constitution eventually would be passed, Mrs. Roosevelt spoke briefly of her confidence in the future of the Children's Bureau inspired by what it has already accomplished.

The First Lady prefaced her serious remarks with the revelation that she received yesterday a nomination for "America's first nuisance." After the toastmistress had introduced her as "the best social agency, in herself, that the United States has known in many a decade," Mrs. Roosevelt asserted:

"After that introduction, I think I'll have to tell you about a letter I got today. It said, 'You may think it is useful to poke your nose in so many things. Really, you are America's first nuisance.'"

Introduced as "the bureau's friend through the years," Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, mentioned a few of his memories of Julia C. Lathrop, first chief of the bureau, and then spoke admiringly of the agency's work as it had developed under the aegis of Grace Abbott, and as it is being carried on by Katherine F. Lenroot, present chief.

Birthday messages from Lillian D. Wald, who first proposed a Federal Children's Bureau, and from Judge Julian Mack, who shared in writing a resolution recommending the establishment of the agency, were among those read by Dorothy Kirchway Brown (Mrs. Larue Brown), of Boston, who was toastmistress at the dinner.

At the close of the program, Katherine F. Lenroot voiced "birthday response" for the staff of the Children's Bureau, commented thankfully on what has been accomplished thus far by the organization and pointed out goals yet to be achieved in child-welfare work.

Among the guests of honor for the occasion, in addition to the speakers, were the following: Miss Belle Sherwin, chairman of the committee of sponsors in charge of the dinner; Miss Josephine Roche, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., Dr. Thomas Parran, jr., Harry L. Hopkins, Judge Irvine L. Lenroott, Edward F. McGrady, Dr. Adolf Meyer, Mrs. Anna Lathrop Case, Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Dr. Martha M. Eliot, Dr. Fred L. Adair, Arthur J. Altmeyer, Dr. S. Josephine Baker, Dr. Eugene L. Bishop, Dr. Earle G. Brown, Harold B. Butler, Paul Kellogg, Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, Owen, Lovejoy, Lewis Meriam, Marguerite M. Wells, James E. West and John G. Winant.

Tonopah, Nev., April 8 (AP).—James Baird, 26, instructor in mathematics and science at Tonopah High School, was shot to death on a downtown street today. John Weaver, veteran miner, was jailed. Moscow Births Double For 3 Months in 1937

Moscow, April 8 (AP).—Moscow's birth rate for the first three months of 1937 today was reported virtually double that of the corresponding period last year.

The increase was attributed largely to the 'big family" decree of last June, which prohibited operations for the prevention of childbirth and made divorces more difficult to obtain. Births were 32,632, compared with 18,246 for the same period in 1936.

A Proper Reversal.

To take a positive stand on an issue of public importance and later, even in the light of new conditions, to reverse it, is to invite the charge of inconsistency. This criticism the Board of Education seems at first glance to merit by ordering Scholastic, banned from the local public schools four months ago, restored to the lists of approved classroom reading. Inquiry shows, however, that the action of the board is not subject to any reasonable criticism. On the contrary, earlier grounds for complaint having been met, the reversal is entirely appropriate and desirable.

The magazine in question, designed especially for student circulation, first came in for attack because of alleged "anti-patriotic and anti-American" features in its editorial policy. A teachers' committee after investigation differed with this estimate, preferring to stress the paper's many admirable qualities. But the Board of Education inclined toward a more critical view. Extracts from old issues of the paper were found to show a proselytizing and propagandist viewpoint which, if habitual, would clearly make it inadmissible for classroom use. So it was banned.

The board particularly condemned an editorial in the Armistice Day, 1933, issue of Scholastic, the careless wording of which was the occasion of sharp observations in these columns at the time the paper was banned. But the editor of Scholastic, in later presenting his case before the board, was able to demonstrate that in spite of unfortunate phraseology the magazine had never sought to take a dogmatic position on issues of public policy. There had been no repetition, he pointed out, of the mistake made inadvertently over three years ago. And obviously the charge of pernicious pacifism is grossly exaggerated when directed against an editorial policy holding merely that a strong popular distaste for settling international differences by war is becoming increasingly important to mankind. The Kellogg Pact says more than that.

It was an entirely satisfactory explanation and one the Board of Education was not slow to appreciate. Having done so, it could do no less than match the editor's dignified retraction by a retraction of equal dignity. By this further evidence of its careful yet open-minded attitude the board has again demonstrated its right to the high esteem in which it is held by both the parents and teachers of Washington.

The Children's Bureau.

Twenty-five years ago today President Taft signed a bill introduced by Senator Borah which established an agency to "investigate and report . . . upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life among all classes of our people." Until then, the Federal Government had been spending millions annually on the development of better crops and healthier livestock but nothing to improve the environment of its future men and women.

That inconsistency had long been pointed out by persons interested in social welfare, notably Lillian Wald, founder of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City. A conference called by President Theodore Roosevelt gave the first formal impetus to their campaign for the conservation of child life. Ultimately this led to creation of the Children's Bureau. It was charged with studying "infant mortality, the birth rate, orphanage, juvenile courts, desertion, dangerous occupations, accidents and diseases of children, employment, legislation affecting children in the several States and territories."

Since 1912, children's bureaus have been established in 28 countries, eight nations having organizations similar to that of the United States. More direct evidence of the bureau's usefulness may perhaps be seen in the fact that 16,000,000 copies of its bulletins on prenatal care, infant care and child care have been distributed to American mothers during the bureau's existence. Moreover, physicians and public health officers the country over have drawn on the bureau's studies in maternal and infant mortality, while social workers rely on it for guidance in cases of illegitimacy, delinquency, recreation, and many other child problems.

The bureau has accomplished much in its first quarter century. Yet even its directors confess that its service is far from complete. The extent to which its development continues will be reflected in the vigor of coming American generations.

The Sit-Down And Mr. Ford.

The sit-down technique in industrial disputes appears to be producing its own remedy. Public reaction against the illegal seizure of property has reached a point where strikers risk the alienation of all public sympathy by adopting that method. The sit-down strike, in short, has become a boomerang.

Events at Hershey, Pa., on Wednesday are very significant. No police or troops were needed to drive out the 1,000 men who had taken possession of the town's chocolate factory. That task was neatly accomplished by irate farmers who had been deprived of a market for their milk, and by nonstriking workers arbitrarily evicted from their jobs. Apparently the whole country-side rose up against the relatively small group of men which had disrupted its economic life.

Reactions of this sort are inevitable. In Hershey the response of the public was more immediate because the interests of an entire locality were there directly jeopardized by the sit-down strategy. But in a less dramatic way the steady mobilization of public opinion foreshadows the defeat of illegal tactics on a larger scale. While outraged farmers were bruising the heads of strikers in Hershey, the Senate condemned sit-down strikes in general by the overwhelming vote of 75 to 3. And the Michigan Senate passed two bills providing severe penalties for employers who negotiate with sit-down strikers as well as for the strikers themselves.

The public reaction reflected in these events in many respects parallels the attitude which eliminated the sit-down strike in France. No repressive measures were adopted. But the French workers themselves soon realized that they were playing into the hands of a small group of Communists and thereupon threw out the troublemakers.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, pointed out ten days ago that illegal tactics will seriously react against the cause of labor in this country. He emphatically disavowed the sit-down method on the ground that it would deprive labor of the public support which is essential to any effective organization of working men. There was sound reason for that conclusion. Shortly before the American Institute of Public Opinion had announced the results of a poll indicating that 67 per cent of the people then favored legislation to outlaw the sit-down strike. The percentage is now probably even higher.

With this tide of public sentiment beginning to roll down upon illegal practices on the part of labor unions, it is the more unfortunate that some industrial leaders should choose to support the method by a thoroughly reactionary attitude. Henry Ford, for example, is quoted as saying that his company will "never recognize the United Automobile Workers Union or any other union." That arbitrary statement makes the Ford plants a special target for labor agitators as well as legitimate organizers. And, of course, employes will be encouraged to resort to illegal tactics if their employer flouts the law of the land, which now expressly recognizes the workers' right to the collective bargain that Mr. Ford denies.

The Senate resolution was just as emphatic in condemning employers who deny the right to form independent unions, and who set up espionage systems to spy on their workmen, as it was in denouncing the sit-down strike. From the viewpoint of public interest both practices are indefensible. Employers who take such an uncompromising position are counteracting the only influence which can effectively terminate the sit-down epidemic.

More Flexible Retirement.

The Joint Conference on Retirement is urging passage of a bill lowering the present optional age of retirement for civil service employes by two to four years. Robert H. Alcorn, chairman, says that his organization favors optional retirement after 30 years of service, regardless of the age of the employe. In view of the estimated costs of such an arrangement, however, the conference is supporting the more restricted proposal.

Obviously the aim is to provide more liberal pension privileges for Government employes. But the result would be to facilitate retirement in some cases at an unduly early age. The most important reason for a change in the existing optional retirement system apparently is lost to sight. That is to elevate personnel standards and improve the quality of the civil service by weeding out prematurely aged and incompetent public employes.

To achieve this objective it is essential that the administrative departments be given the right to retire employes whether they wish to be retired or not. Otherwise incompetents may cling to their jobs for years until they reach the age of compulsory retirement.

For that reason the United States Civil Service Commission has in two successive annual reports recommended a reduction in the optional retirement age, with the proviso that the option be exercised either by the employe or the Government. To prevent arbitrary removal without adequate cause the commission suggests that provision be made for review by an administrative body when the Government exercises its right to remove.

A well administered retirement system of this sort facilitating the voluntary withdrawal or involuntary removal of prematurely senile civil servants would no doubt save the Government in indirect ways much more than it would cost in additions to pensions. Indeed, few practices are more expensive than the retention on active pay rolls of individuals who are no longer capable of giving a full day's work for a full day's pay.

A mere reduction in age limits set for voluntary retirement would not eliminate such incompetents. They should not only be pensioned on request but compelled to accept pensions if no longer able to perform the duties assigned to them.

Selective Judicial Reform.

The House has just passed a bill permitting the Government to intervene in any private suit involving the constitutionality of a Federal statute, and allowing direct appeal of such cases to the Supreme Court. This measure embodies one of the sound corollary reform proposals suggested by the President as part of his plan to "reinvigorate" the judiciary branch of the Government. Like the retirement act applicable to Supreme Court justices, recently approved by Congress, the present bill is being considered on its merits, instead of being incorporated into an omnibus bill embracing unsound along with useful proposals.

This method of procedure is most encouraging to opponents of the plan to pack the Supreme Court. Chances that the President will be permitted to remodel the court will be greatly diminished if Congress is compelled to consider this so-called reform in isolation. At the same time many Congressmen welcome an opportunity to vote for a measure that will enable the Government to defend the constitutionality of challenged laws more adequately before the lower courts. It is also in the public interest to expedite appeals to the Supreme Court when laws are declared unconstitutional by the lower courts.

Sound reforms of this sort stand on their own merits. They have nothing to do with the Administration's court packing proposals. Yet the President had apparently hoped to throw them into an omnibus measure forcing their acceptance or rejection as part of a larger inchoate plan. This time his strategy has failed. Congress has shown a distaste for the kind of carry-all measure that heretofore has enabled the Administration to "put over" various projects without considering them independently on their merits.

It now appears that the good parts of the President's program will be disposed of and the court-packing scheme will be left, as Senator Burke says, to "stand out in all its nakedness." Under those conditions it will be very difficult to pretend that this particular measure is a bona fide reform. And it will be impossible to excuse a vote for it on the ground that rejection means defeat of the other sound proposals originally accompanying it.

If Murder Must Out.

Perhaps what this country really needs is a good, old-fashioned murder. For a long time now, there seems to have been nothing but the most sickening of slaughterings. Based on either sex or degeneracy, current killings are either cheap and disgusting or pointless and brutal. Prof. Moriarity should be glad that he is dead.

A cool, calculated murder would clear this murky tabloid atmosphere. It's probably too much to ask for another Hound of the Baskervilles. And a Landru would be overdoing it, at least for a starter. Nor would a Lizzie Borden or a Crippen be quite what we have in mind. But something of a Sax Rohmer flavor might suffice, or an Oppenheim slaying or one modeled after Mary Roberts Rinehart's "Album." A devious motive, a long-studied plan, a brilliant detection—are these beyond the powers of a great Nation?

Assuredly, a girl as beautiful as the unfortunate Miss Gedeon of current notice should be involved, but in the minor key to which beauty is usually reduced outside of newspaper headlines. Moreover, if possible, a magnolia tree and a brief-case should be included in the properties. The crime must clearly tap science's utmost resources for its solution, even as the New York affair is now doing. But, again, no abstract chemists—just one single detective—should do the final, Holmesian deducing.

For the rest, there should be an international angle to the crime if possible; the stakes, too, will be high enough to give it a setting of luxury and glamor. And, finally, there must be at least a suggestion of honor in the motive. De Quincey, if you get our meaning.

"Drinking a lot of water will keep you from getting stiff in the joints," says a physician. But, doc, men don't go in joints to drink water—and they want to get stiff.

A retired French commandant says war is one of the finest of open-air games. Perhaps so, but in so many cases the player himself gets ventilated.

"Girl Marries Motorist Who Sideswiped Her Car."—Headline. A headline like this has more educational value against reckless driving than 47 editorials.

A publisher is trying to sell us a book on how to influence people. Nothing doing. What we're looking for is a book on how to keep people from influencing us.

Judging from the charming disarray of her hair, Amelia Earhart Putnam must use the locomotive technique in driving a plane.

Call On Mr. Lewis Now.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Symptoms of Anarchy," of April 6 is very good, indeed.

Able Senator Borah is quoted as saying on Friday, "In my view, the sole authority to deal with the situation in Michigan is the State of Michigan * * * Until the Governor notifies the President he is unable to deal with the situation, I do not wish to embarrass him by any action here."

I think the average man or woman can agree with the view of the Senator, except for this fact: Mr. Alfred Sloan had definitely refused to meet with any representative of the strikers while their members were unlawfully in possession of General Motors plants, but (and here is the rub) Mr. Roosevelt let it be known through Gov. Murphy that he wished to have the principals meet for a parley. Mr. Sloan could not very well refuse, or, at least, he did meet with Mr. Lewis and an agreement was signed, but, as you have shown, it has not been observed by the strikers.

Since Mr. Roosevelt did intercede to this extent, a lot of people naturally feel that he should now call on Mr. Lewis to make a move, just as he called on Mr. Sloan.

In spite of the pressure apparently being exerted to prevent it, there are many who feel that the Senate should support the House resolution to investigate the sit-down strike. If such a committee will do as thorough a job as Mr. La Follette's civil liberties committee has done, it is entirely possible that the results will be even more interesting to the public generally. OBSERVER.

Minimum Wage Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Verily the day of miracles is not passed. Attorney General Cummings in an opinion to the President has just performed a miracle comparable only to that of the Master when he raised from the dead the daughter of the ruler of the synagogue. He has given life and immortality to a law that has been dead 14 years. That many years ago the Supreme Court declared the District of Columbia minimum wage law unconstitutional in the case of Adkins vs. Children's Hospital.

Mr. Cummings tells the President that by virtue of the recent decision of the court in West Coast Hotel vs. Parrish, expressly overruling the Adkins case, "the said law is now a valid act of Congress, and may be administered in accordance with its terms." He gives neither reason nor authority for his conclusion. While no decision of any court directly on the point could be found from a cursory examination, the general rule appears to be that where a statute is unconstitutional and void, when enacted, as the Supreme Court declared this one to be, the subsequent removal of the constitutional objections thereto does not, by operation of law, give it force and effect. SPECTATOR.

"No More Cherry Blossoms?"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is not my habit to write letters to the editor, but after reading The Post, of April 7, I hasten to say that your editorial, "No More Cherry Blossoms?" cannot be commended too highly. You have done a fine service in exposing the full extent of this contemplated destruction and no doubt many people will be aroused, but unless concentrated action takes place, we shall wake up some day soon and find the steam shovels going full tilt around the Tidal Basin. Could not The Post, as a leading morning newspaper, crusade against this outrage in some such fashion as you did against the traffic situation? It seems to me this is serious enough to warrant some good strong articles right on the front page for several days in succession. Perhaps enough people could be sufficiently impressed to band together and try to stop this proposed vandalism around the Tidal Basin and the surrounding territory.

We have with us at present a guest who has returned to visit here just at this time in order to see the cherry blossoms again. She was horrified when she read of the destruction which will be necessary to erect the memorial as now planned.

When I came to Washington to live several years ago I was charmed with the many parks, large and small, set so informally in the busy places of the city. In the last few years I have viewed with resentment and dismay the changes that have taken place, first in the Mall, then Lafayette Park and the numerous small parks throughout the city. Those who are responsible for the changes (one could scarcely call them improvements) seem to have gone crazy on the subject of vistas and monuments. Also they seem determined to deprive the residents of Washington of as many outdoor recreational places as possible. And now they want to do away with one of the outstanding beauty spots in the whole country. Yes, I say country, for people come from far and near at this time of year to see the cherry trees.

Let there be a memorial to Mr. Jefferson by all means, but since so much money is to be spent and so much work done on it, why not have something useful, such as the already suggested auditorium? Is it absolutely vital that we adhere so rigidly to the L'Enfant plan? With so much talk in high places these days about how unsuited the early plans of this country are to our present day needs, it should not be too difficult to lay aside this plan also. If Mr. Jefferson could speak for himself now, I feel sure he would not wish to countenance the destruction of a spot of such unsurpassed natural beauty and charm. LUCILE W. YATES.

Arlington, Va., April 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to thank you, as a citizen of Washington, for your editorial on the proposed destruction of the Japanese cherries. I hope this will inaugurate a determined movement on the part of the people of Washington to protest against the wanton destruction of one of the most beautiful features of Washington, and one of its greatest assets. C. A. ASPINWALL.

Washington, April 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thousands of visitors from all parts of the country are now in the Nation's Capital to view the Tidal Basin with its wealth of cherry blossoms set as a border to the Basin. However, this will probably be their last sight of this natural loveliness, because the cement contractors and official architects are going to "improve" it out of existence with a massive statue of Jefferson.

If another "memorial" of the great Jefferson were needed why not something in keeping with his life and teachings? Why not a great free speech center, something like the Bronson Cutting Memorial Lectures? Or why not free clinics for underprivileged children in the rural districts? This latter is sadly needed in Jefferson's home State—Virginia. There are thousands of children who are in dire need of clinical treatment.

I know of nothing more stupid, more criminal than to destroy Washington's unique "monument" of natural beauty—the Basin—with its fragile and evanescent loveliness, a tribute of friendship from a foreign nation and a harbinger of spring. Take a good look, you visitors! It is your last! the New Deal politicians have decreed it must go. It is too beautiful to survive in a cruel and ugly capitalist civilization that decrees profitable contracts more sacred than nature. Farewell, beautiful blossoms! ARISTOTLE.

Alexandria, Va., April 5.

A Taxpayer's View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a member of a local organization interested in the District's relief problem, I was delegated to attend and report upon the hearing given by the Commissioners to the District Workers Alliance Union, last Friday morning. I was rather amazed during the hearing to hear one of the Commissioners suggest to the Alliance representative that they (the Alliance) obtain the approval of Mr. Rufus Lusk for the relief appropriation which the Alliance was sponsoring and which they wanted the Commissioners to sponsor before Congress.

Who is Mr. Rufus Lusk? Is Mr. Lusk a Commissioner of the District that his approval is so necessary before the actual Commissioners may do anything? Is Mr. Lusk an official of the notorious Budget Bureau, or even an official of the Government connected in some way with the District?

No, Mr. Lusk is a paid official of the Washington Taxpayers' Association. Lest we be led to think from this that Mr. Lusk actually represents District taxpayers, I hasten to call attention to Mr. Lusk's testimony before the House Committee on Appropriations on the 1937 District bill, in which Mr. Lusk testified that he represented such people as the head of a local insurance company, whose yearly salary is $75,000, and other high salaried people. This being the case, it is pretty obvious that Mr. Lusk does not represent the taxpayers of Washington.

I should like to add this, that while I do not as yet own property in the District, I rent a house here and in paying the rent I naturally pay the taxes, which are included in the rent. Hence I am a taxpayer. It is hardly necessary to add, neither my friends nor I have any money to waste in hiring Mr. Lusk and I am sure that we have no need nor desire for Mr. Lusk's representation. There is only one way to be a stop to such misrepresentation, and that is to force Mr. Lusk to register as a paid lobbyist and to disclose for the benefit of the public the people he represents. C. R. WAMBLIN.

Washington, April 5.

Minneapolis As A City.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Ty Coulson, who reviewed "American City," by C. W. Rumford in The Post of April 4, evidently is in violent disagreement with the author's thesis that Minneapolis is a typical American city. In this he is perfectly within his rights, although he does overlook the fact that Minneapolis combines the features of the agricultural region, the industrial region and the market, within one small area. Therefore it copes with the problems of the farmer, the industrialist and the middleman, along with those of a half million urban consumers.

Minneapolis lies in one of the richest grain and dairy regions in the world. It therefore acts as a central market for these huge staves of produce, as well as a distribution center for the capital and personal needs of this vast army of agricultural producers. It also enjoys considerable industrial activity, particularly along implement and automotive lines. In addition it is a financial and railroad center. It would not, therefore, appear too unreasonable to conclude that it has some reason to consider itself typical, in that it is the summation of all these increments.

However, when he admits that "he had thought" this section was "nurtured to fame on beer and kept there on football," he shows his complete ignorance of the facts he purports to be delving with. There is a slight distinction between beer and flour, Mr. Coulson! And when he goes on to say "even if it doesn't increase his respect for people who belabor the public with this and similar offerings," he even loses respectability and becomes vituperative. He shows by this that he is completely disdainful of something he knows absolutely nothing about. The people are not a herd of mud-wallowing barbarians as Mr. Coulson infers! Go West, young man—and see for yourself! MINNESOTAN.

Democracy In Education

Following are extracts from an address delivered by Tyler Dennett, president of Williams College, at an alumni dinner in New York City last night.

A FEW weeks ago in some brief and very informal remarks to the Williams alumni in Boston, after paying a compliment to our preparatory schools for the quality of the preparation which they give to boys entering Williams, I pointed out that this very fact presents the college with a difficult problem. In college the students have to be grouped in squads which must keep step. The high school boy at first often has difficulty in such squads because he has entered with poorer academic preparation. I was, at this point, completely misquoted as saying that because of our desire to retain the high school boy at Williams we have stepped down our work to suit his needs. The exact contrary is the case. We have not stepped down and there is no intention to do so.

The facts are that the high school boy who enters Williams, on the average, does better than the preparatory school boy. At first in many cases he has a harder time, but his curve of achievement is steadily upward. It was not in my mind at that time to make a comparison between the preparatory and the high school boy other than to point out that the latter is, on the average, less well prepared. Even this statement, however, has led to some misapprehension. The American high school is not a standardized institution. Under the same name are included many kinds of secondary schools. Some high schools are well able and, in fact, do give very good preparation for college. Both Harvard and Yale recruit about half of their undergraduates from high schools and, I suspect, an even larger proportion of their graduate students pass into the university from such schools.

From an outraged alumnus who apparently preferred to remain anonymous I received a telegram asking me whether I wanted to make the undergraduate body all "mule-skinners." Obviously not. That would be too homongeneous. I do not know quite what a "mule-skinner" is, but I should like to have at least a couple. They might do us some good. Perhaps we could do them some good. John L. Lewis thinks he will be able to teach the fathers something. Perhaps we might be able to teach the sons. Perhaps Charlie Caldwell could teach them something, too.

This leads me to insert another parenthesis, this time about amateur athletics. No one despises professional athletics in college any more than I do. I venture to point out, however, that there is danger of defining amateurism in such terms as to make sport the sole and exclusive property of the well-to-do class. Under the existing practice we could admit to Williams a "mule-skinner" and do for him financially as much as we pleased, but if we were to put him into a football suit we would then be immediately charged with having engaged in professionalism and with having broken down an amateur standard. This, in my judgment, is sportsmanship run to seed. In listing the qualifications for admission to college I did not mention breeding. I omitted the word intentionally because I think it is still somewhat unbecoming on the lips of Americans. We are a young country. Our breeding has been very abbreviated. Our culture is young. A gerat deal of it started as a liberal arts education on and off the Williams campus not long ago. I do not think that the books on breeding in this country are yet closed.

Few of us in this room are so pure bred that we have no blood which when it first came to this land was not considered alien and therefore low. For the moment I happen to be thinking of a "parcel of Irish folk" who settled in southern New Hampshire. There was said of them by their neighbors what is said of the aliens today. They were destitute, a burden on the community. They rebelled against the established church, which was Congregational. They were, of course, in the minds of their neighbors, anti-religious; they were Presbyterians. Worse than that, they were enemies of the established economic order. Gov. Wentworth had some land for which he paid nothing and which he was trying to sell at good prices. This happened, by the way, 200 years ago. These Irish folk went up the river and squatted on these virgin lands. When the Governor's customers arrived with deeds in their hands to claim it the Irish refused to move. They were, perhaps, among the first sit-down strikers. They were alien, indigent, anti-religious, anti-government, anti-capitalist—until they could build up their own capital. Less than a hundred years later some of that blood appeared in Daniel Webster, the great American. Probably there is a good deal of their blood here tonight.

I do not know who a hundred years from now will be the great Americans, but I find nothing in our history to support the thesis that all the blood which will flow in their veins now belongs to what are now our economically privileged classes. Almost every page of American history makes such an hypothesis absurd.

To say we must at all costs maintain at Williams our standards of good taste is right; but where, please, did they come from? They are already generations old. They grew up when the United States was an agricultural country and poor. They did not depend on wealth, although they were no doubt substantially helped by it. A closed social system may perhaps for a time conserve a standard but it will do it by a process of exclusion which in the end will wreck it.

Fair Enough

Baseball's Labor.

IT WILL BE HARD to arouse any great popular sense of outrage over the downtrodden condition of the professional ball players, because theirs is a luxurious bondage by comparison with that of any other slaves except the moving picture hams.

Collective bargaining is absolutely out, and any player who attempted to organize a militant union movement would be taken out of the play by a conspiracy of the organized employers in a business which is rapidly concentrating in the hands of a few rich firms.

The minor leagues are being absorbed by the major league companies as training grounds for new players and live-storage plants for men of proved ability for whom there are no immediate vacancies in the big time. The entire industry operates under an agreement which amounts to a ruthless anti-labor policy on paper. In practice, however, the system is not very harsh, and that is the reason why labor and the general public have never had any tears to spare for the athletes.

The patronage which supports baseball is drawn from the working classes and a labor boycott could smash the conspiracy in a single season, but labor has never taken any interest in the case because baseball is regarded as play, not toil, even under professional conditions.

AS REPRESENTATIVE RAY CANNON, of Milwaukee, remarked in a letter to Homer Cummings, the average pay of the athletes is much less than that of the stars whose salaries are revealed to the public as ballyhoo for the industry. And with collective bargaining the average undoubtedly would be increased somewhat and the employers' conspiracy either dissolved or appreciably weakened.

The worst injustice occurs where a good young player, without being consulted, finds himself sold to a cheap employer and compelled to accept the employer's terms year after year for services which might sell for twice as much in another city.

He may serve 5, 10 or 15 years with a cheap and stingy boss who has no policy but to keep down his operating expenses and sell players to his more prosperous colleagues in better towns.

In these surroundings he has no chance, short of the miraculous, to share in a world series pool, and the years slip away from him while inferior men land with the Giants or Yankees, the Cubs, Tigers or Red Sox on better base pay and pick up from one to three or four world series shares.

The owners' conspiracy forbids a player to shop around for a better job, and an owner who wants to hire a man for much more money may be prevented by an exorbitant purchase price. So the player is the victim.

These are injustices beyond the power of Judge Landis to remedy. In fact, the judge is only a figurehead, being the employe of the owners, and the league presidents are only stooges, with less authority than the judge. They serve only as yes-men and luncheon-orators for the soulless corporations.

A DRAMATIC CASE properly exploited by radical labor leaders in the name of collective bargaining, and with a decisive attack on organized baseball's semi-civic status as the national game, could compel some concessions. But labor could tackle baseball only as a demonstration and not with any warmth, as the players' thralldom, even in the minor leagues, is an enviable state, particularly to the younger men of the country who make up the ranks of the sit-down movement.

The athlete may get only $30 a week, he may have family responsibilities, he may wear a patched and ragged uniform and his work may call him far from his home, subject to dismissal on ten days' notice, but he gets his name in the papers and his job is just to play ball. Labor will be a long time squeezing a tear over the tragic injustice of that.

The main objection to the baseball conspiracy is its effrontery. Here is an industry which accepts and prospers by the sentimental status of the American national game but arrogantly flouts all the principles for which the majority of its public is fighting on the picket lines. There is no other group of employers in the whole land who would have the gall to propose the same arbitrary conditions and indulge in the same occasional ruthless practices and still appeal for popular support.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

There is a dissatisfaction in the kitchens of America. At a recent women's convention in New York the art of cooking was raised to the heights of a major sports event, with broadcasters describing the preparation of omelettes, boiled dinners, etc., play by play. What's the result? Housewives all over the country now want a microphone added as standard kitchen equipment.

• • • • •

Ever since the radio made the making of a pot roast as exciting as making a touchdown, and gave the crack of an egg-shell as much importance as the crack of a three-base hit something has happened to the wives of America. Mrs. Smith now loses interest in warming over the hash the minute she realizes there will be no broadcast.

• • • • •

And Mrs. Jones hates to fry an egg unless she can do it over a national hook-up.

• • • • •

The urge to bake a cake over N. B. C., fricasee a chicken for the Columbia System and broadcast a hamburg with green peas between a cigarette and aspirin hour is sweeping the country.

• • • • •

It all started at the Women's National Exposition of Arts and Industries. In awarding a prize to the best cook in the country, a grand "cook-off" was staged with all the fixings of a Rose Bowl grid classic.

• • • • •

The line-up was announced, the setting described and the cooking broadcast with such frenzy that a good many listeners got the idea two tablespoons of flour had scored a touchdown over Yale, by adding two cups of milk in the annual classic on the Thames between Eli Meat Loaf and one patty of butter.

• • • • •

People began calling up the newspapers and asking if it was true that Laughing Larry Breadcrumbs had caught a forward pass from a teaspoon full of cornstarch and won the game by allowing it to smimer 15 minutes under a low flame.

• • • • •

But when the whole thing got straightened out and it was realized that cooking a dinner had become a form of radio entertainment, things began to happen in the old homestead.

• • • •

"You don't like my cooking, eh?" scoffed a lot of wives the next night. "Well, if you want it any better get me a microphone!"

• • • •

"A fine husband you are!" Many a bride is now squawking. "I've been cooking for you ever since we got married and I'm still without a Crosley radio rating!"

• • • •

Elmer Twitchell says he has had to leave home. The wife threw a terrific tantrum the other day because she got up early to make some buttered toast for him and no preparations had been made to get it on even a sustaining program!

• • • •

Chaos is ahead. Prepare for this any time on the radio now: "You take four pork chops, roll them in . . . the spirit of Thomas Jefferson . . . moisten the pan with one lump of . . . vested and unscrupulous interests . . . cook until . . . the economic Tories . . . come to a boil . . . and serve with hashed browned potatoes, Abraham Lincoln, one pound of mandates and a constitutional amendment."

Service.

His sermon struck the middle keys,
Not either shrill nor peeping;
His congregation sat at ease—
And caught up on their sleeping.

Early Independence

Philippine Reaction To Overtures Of Quezon For Autonomy In 1938 Points Islands' Need For Trade Agreement.

By Vicente Albano Pacis.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Manila.

IT MAY OR MAY NOT be significant that the announcement from Washington of President Quezon's proposal that complete Philippine independence be granted in 1938 or 1939 was greeted here with silence by independent business elements, with a baby panic by the stock market, and with unanimous approval by the political elements, especially by the radical group headed by Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo.

The American and foreign elements maintained a consistent silence. The single but notable exception is Maj. J. E. H. Stevenot, president and general manager of the Philippine Long-Distance Telephone Company, who declared to the press some days following the announcement: "The issue in Philippine-American relations today is not whether independence is to be granted in one or 50 years, but whether the Philippines, in the coming years, may exist under a definite economic status which will not be tampered with by Congress."

In the same statement, the Major more than implied that there was considerable excitement in business circles, especially American. "I am one of those who believe," he said, "that we are overexcited here; we are counting a lot of eggs before they are hatched."

Press Service Reports Exaggerated Real Story.

ON THE ONE HAND, the local reaction might not have been an index to the country's real temper; on the other hand, it might have been a foretaste of something inevitable. Of the three leading press services supplying the Philippines with foreign news, two reported the Quezon proposal in a more excitable form than it actually was and only one brought the correct version.

While the United Press correctly stated that President Quezon had simply presented his plan for independence to the interdepartmental committee headed by Undersecretary of State Sayre with which he is discussing the Philippine question, both the Associated Press and the British agency, Reuters, flashed the information that Quezon had not only submitted the proposal but that he and the Sayre committee had agreed to accept and recommend it. A mere suggestion to Washington officials by President Quezon certainly has a definitely different status from that of a Quezon plan agreed upon between Quezon himself and the Sayre committee.

The Philippine press was no less taken by surprise, the editorial writers giving the impression that they were trying hard to whistle in the dark.

'It is to be recalled," stated The Bulletin, only American owned daily, "that the suggestion which President Quezon is supposed to have made for advancing the independence date was conditioned on a trade arrangement that would carry through to economic security."

"Even if it should transpire that the grant of political independence will be advanced," reasoned The Tribune, "the United States will abide by its commitment to 'afford the Philippines a reasonable opportunity to adjust their national economy,' by terminating the preferential trade relations only at the 'earliest practicable date consistent with' this goal." (The editorial's quoted portions are from the joint Quezon-Sayre statement on the Quezon proposal.)

'La Vanguardia' Saw Ideal Of Islands Nearing.

"THE PROPOSAL," proclaimed La Vanguardia with unusual optimism, "will reach the hearts of the people . . . We are certain that the entire country will receive the report with joy. Our ideal is nearer."

Said The Herald: "The situation remains the same. President Quezon's plan implies, we believe that we may prefer to continue the 10-year transition period provided that the independence law is amended (1) to prevent Congress from sabotaging the Commonwealth through the enactment of discriminatory economic legislation; (2) to eliminate the economic inequalities in the act, and (3) to clarify and delimit the powers of the American High Commissioner consistent with the self-governing status of the Commonwealth.

"President Quezon has simply pointed out to an alternative which serves, we believe, three important purposes. It is a necessary part of the complete picture. It affords Washington a choice in deciding on the future of the Philippines. What is most important, perhaps, it gives Washington a complete idea how badly we want the indicated amendment in the Tydings-McDuffie law."

A special dispatch to his newspaper syndicate by Dr. Charles P. Romulo, editor and publisher and a member of the Quezon delegation, helped a great deal in clarifying the situation. Dr. Romulo said in part:

"The uncertainty in the present political and economic relations between America and the Philippines is the motivating reason behind President Manuel L. Quezon's request that the granting of Philippine independence be advanced from 1945 to 1938 or 1939 . . . Under the Tydings-McDuffie law the element of uncertainty has become aggravated.

The aggravation consists in the uncertainty of the economic relations and in the uncertainty of the political relations. The combination is so fraught with potential danger that President Quezon, after matured deliberations and consultations, has decided on earlier independence as the better alternative."

Quezon Seeking Escape From Economic Dilemma.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Romulo—and he is believed to speak on the subject with official authority—President Quezon conceived of earlier independence as a form of escape from the economic uncertainty consisting of congressional tamperings with the independence law and the political uncertainty consisting of the vague yet broad powers of the American High Commissioner. Under the independence act, the Romulo dispatch pointed out "there is a potential danger of friction between the High Commissioner and the president of the Philippines."

Although it was subsequently ascertained that the Quezon proposal was not accepted by the Sayre committee, the announcement of the organization of a new Philippine-American committee to study, among other things, "the bearing which advancement in the date of independence would have on facilitating or retarding execution of the program of economic adjustment of the Philippines," did more to allay local excitement. A further study implied a breathing spell—a delay which naturally is advantageous to the status quo.

Hope for Otto Fades, Is Belief Of Schuschnigg

Chancellor of Austria Says Restoration to Be Delayed for Years.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, April 8.—Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg told the Associated Press tonight restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy will have to wait for many years and registered his belief world rearmament is preparing the way for disarmament.

Austria cherishes peace above all else, the chancellor emphasized, and it has no desire to undertake anything like restoration of the house which once ruled the Austro-Hungarian empire if there were a possibility peace would be jeopardized.

(The Little Entente nations of Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania—parts of which were included in the Austro-Hungarian empire up to the end of the World War—long ago expressed open opposition to restoration of the monarchy in Austria.

(Dark-haired and haughty Archduke Otto, 25-year-old exile who lives with his mother, former Empress Zita, in Steenock-Erzeel castle in Belgium, is heir apparent to the nonexistent Austrian throne.)

The present Austrian government, Schuschnigg said, will not think of recalling Archduke Otto until the world is safe for such a development in the Danubian valley. Under the most favorable circumstances, he said, that will be many years.

"I do not expect our work in building up this state," the chancellor declared, "will be brought to a climax at an early date by restoration of the Hapsburgs."

Schuschnigg, although chancellor of a relatively weak nation in the heart of a tense Europe, said he was optimistic over the prospects of preserving peace and unalarmed by rearmament.

"Rearmament of nations is not necessarily a prelude to war," he asserted.

"I believe the rearmament fever will abate in a year or two when supremacy in the field of armament will have been obtained by the richest.

"The poorer nations will have to quit rearming; then the states will be ready to consider disarmament.

"I suspect that, with the exception of one or two powers, the height of rearmament activity has been reached.

"Within a short time, the world will be ready to listen to disarmament suggestions—perhaps such plans as we understand are being worked out in America."

Britain Backs LaGuardia.

MR. BALDWIN has bought a new town house, to live in when he decides to shut himself out of No. 10 Downing street for the last time. His resignation from the premiership is rapidly approaching; doubtless he will soon be buying a brand-new peer's outfit, and lolling on the benches of the House of Lords as Earl of Bewdley, with a sleeping lion supported by a pig and a pipe on his coat of arms.

Ramsay MacDonald, twin pillar of the national government, eyes the Lords longingly; when Baldwin goes, he goes and a peerage would be red carpet and trumpets for a triumphant ending. Lords Stanley Tweedledee and Ramsay Tweedledum, haloed heads high, chests out, could march together on glorious clouds of their own painting. But the uneasy heritage of his past beliefs, and more pertinently the objections of his offspring, say no to a peerage for Ramsay. He goes, so they say, to be a bartender in daughter Ishbel's inn.

Mr. Baldwin will see the coronation through, as befits a kingmaker, but soon his throne will be free for Neville Chamberlain. And Neville will have to form a new government. So the political game of the day is for all who have hopes to put their aces up their sleeves, pull all their wires, play high for a place in the cabinet. Controversy concentrates round the position of chancellor of the exchequer, now held by that competent municipal mayor, Mr. Chamberlain. The chancellorship is stepping stone to the premiership, and the Conservatives have no agreed candiate to put in the direct succession.

• • • •

AS A MAN of competence and ambition, Sir Samuel Hoare, his political sins washed whiter than the plains of Addis Ababa, doubtless fancies his chances as a future prime minister, but the party is not so much of the same opinion that it would care just yet to put him in the chancellorship. And for the present Sir Samuel is said to be happy to stay where he is, as first lord of the admiralty, where he can enjoy pleasant sea cruises in the admiralty yacht Enchantress.

Sir Samuel repudiates the suggestion that we are leading a race in naval armaments, insists that we are merely making up for lost time. It's the Japanese who start naval races, says he, by unreasonably refusing to limit their armaments to 14-inch guns. A dark-horse candidate for the remoter future, Mr. Morrison, late of the treasury now of the ministry of agriculture, is expected to stay in charge of agriculture.

And so a stop-gap candidate is sought for the treasury. Sir John Simon is a possible. As a national Liberal he would not compromise the Conservative succession, and his appointment would play up the national pretensions of the government; he can always be pushed upstairs as lord chancellor or dropped when the Liberal support is no longer valued by the Conservatives. A strong supporter of Sir John for the treasury is Sir John himself, since he knows that to go to the woolsack means the end of his hopes to be prime minister. Unlike most politicians, Sir John still thinks he has a chance of being premier.

MORE STRONGLY SUPPORTED by tipsters for the treasury is Mr. Runciman, now president of the board of trade, as he was in the government which launched Britain into the war of 1914. He also is a Liberal, and he also will never be prime minister. And on the death of his father, who is now nearing 90, he will become Lord Runciman, will mount to the Lords.

None of these possible changes suggests that there will be any alteration in the policies of the government. The addition of Winston Churchill might put new wine into the old bottles. But old bottles don't like that kind of treatment. More important than the addition of a Churchill would be the dropping of Anthony Eden, which is not at all likely since the appearance of belief in the League of Nations is much more important to the government than the alliance with the insignificant national Liberals.

Mr. Eden's hand is expected to be strengthened by the developments in Spain and by the reply now received from Mister Hitler. Even the government is disturbed by the size of the Italian army, reliably reported at over 100,000, now fighting in Spain. Even supporters of the government's past lukewarm friendliness toward Franco are making bitter jibes over the defeat of the Italians northeast of Madrid. As they put it, the Italians have met soldiers for the first time since Caporetto. Mussolini's play for Mohammedan support in Lybia is too reminiscent of the Kaiser on a white horse entering Jerusalem to please our imperialists. They are beginning not to like Mussolini.

And Hitler's reply has made it difficult to play ball with him much longer. The Times has recently been showing distrust for long distance diplomatic negotiations, for high-power conferences at Geneva; get the Germans round a table, it is urged, and practical results will soon be obtained. Hitler's terms for sitting at the table are impossible. He asks that Belgium should be relieved of her League obligations; that Britain and Italy should guarantee the Franco-German frontier, although Britain is to receive no guarantees in return; that Britain and Italy should replace the League as arbitrators to decide not only whether there has been aggression in the west, but also whether France should implement her obligations to Czechoslovakia and Russia. He proposes in other words a formal death for the League, and a free hand for himself in the east.

IT IS NOT BELIEVED in London that these terms can be accepted by any British government. They are called foolish terms for Hitler since they place him in the hands of Mussolini, although Hitler is said to believe that Mussolini cannot double-cross him in central Europe because he is too deeply committed in the Mediterranean and is scared by the fear that Britain is really preparing to smack him down. In cynical London it is not believed that Mussolini will be found resisting a bribe from the probable winning side in the next war, and that side is not Germany.

But apart from his own vulnerability, the terms offered by Hitler for a purely western pact are considered foolish because they make it impossible even for the British government to doubt the German intentions. Strong pressure is being put on Hitler by some of the Nazis to embark now on a further adventure in Czechoslovakia or Austria. The fall of Madrid to Fascist arms would be encouragement for Hitler to follow this advice; a defeat for the Fascists might make him thinks more than once.

Hums will be hummed, haas haaed, and bushes beaten about. But the government is stiffening its backbone with a brand-new corset of armaments, and public opinion is on the move. Mister Hitler is helping us to realize that with him, business cannot be done. The British public backs Mayor LaGuardia.

William A. Brady

By William Lyon Phelps.

Here is a book so full of excitement and mirth and exhilaration and enthusiam and the joy of life that it is a pleasure to recommend it to my readers. Yes, it is another autobiography; but what a life!

The book is called "Showman," is published by E. P. Dutton & Co., New York, and is written by the famous theater manager, William A. Brady. He is 74 years old and so full of vitality, so bubbling over with effervescent and ebullient enthusiasm, that this delightful volume seems as if it were just a release of excess of high spirits; it is so absolutely spontaneous.

• • • •

Mr. Brady has managed two of the greatest ring champions in history—James J. Corbett and James J. Jeffries. He does not mention the fact, but why should these heavy-weights all be J. J.? It is J. J. Tunney and J. J. Braddock—no wonder Mr. Tunney changed his name to Gene.

Mr. Brady also managed the Terrible Turk, several world fairs, 200 or 300 theatrical shows, circuses, and a wonderful wife and daughter—the incomparable Grace George and Alice Brady. Always successful.

Like most successful men, he has paid no attention to his health; when anything had to be done, he went right ahead and did it, regardless of sleep, stomach, fatigue, exposure, germs. He has been so busy all his life he has never had time to be ill. What has kept him not only alive but boiling with energy is his tremendous love of life and a passion for hard work. What would an eight-hour or a six-hour day mean to such a man? Over and over again he has worked 72 hours without a pause and has loved it.

Lawyer Has Vision

Mr. Hartman's Nightmare Pictures End Of Free Speech As Result Of Court Plan.

(The Post herewith prints an exhibit, entitled "The Nightmare of a Constitutional Lawyer," introduced by Mr. Hartman during his testimony yesterday before the Senate Judiciary Committee on the President's court plan. In this tour de force, Mr. Hartman envisages as fact possible perils he believes are embodied in the court plan.)

By Siegfried F. Hartman,
Of the Council of Industrial Progress.

The Mayor of New York made a speech characterizing the German government as a vicious dictatorship. The Neue Ausgabe, of Berlin, demanded that, regardless of constitutional or political considerations, the Government of the United States proceed forthwith to discipline the Mayor, and warned that if such action were not forthcoming the government of Germany might have to take matters into its own hands.

Pursuant to Article II, Section 3, of the Constitution, the President gave this information to the Congress, and recommended for their consideration a measure which he, in the words of the Constitution, "judged expedient and necessary" to protect the Union against war with foreign nations and to facilitate the Executive in the performance of his duty to maintain friendly relations with foreign powers. In his message he pointed out that if any public official in the United States not responsible directly to him could with impunity offend foreign rulers or governments, the Government of the United States could be utterly frustrated in its efforts to negotiate treaties and to maintain friendly diplomatic relations through ambassadors and other public ministers and consuls who might be accredited to foreign governments under Article II, Section 2, of the Constitution.

"Provisions" Described.

Annexed to his message was a bill providing in substance that any public officer or employe of the United States or of any Territory, State, municipality or other political subdivision thereof, or any person residing within the United States, who, by word or writing, should utter or publish any matter of or concerning a foreign government or ruler which at the time of such utterance or publication was calculated to impair diplomatic relations between this Government and such foreign government or ruler should be guilty of a felony, and providing further that the certification of the President of the United States that a particular utterance or writing was so calculated to impair such diplomatic relations should be prima facie evidence of such fact upon any trial of the offender.

After the passage of this bill, the Mayor repeated his public statement in regard to Hitler. The New York Times published the statement and in an editorial endorsed the stand taken by the Mayor. The Mayor and the editor of the New York Times were thereupon arrested, tried, and convicted. They appealed finally to the United States Supreme Court, arguing that their conviction and the act under which they were prosecuted were unconstitutional as in violation of Article I of the amendments to the Constitution, which reads in part as follows:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press."

Court of 31 Visioned.

The United States Supreme Court at the time of the argument of the appeals consisted of 15 judges, but as there was doubt as to their attitude on the question of the personal rights guaranteed by the Constitution, a law was passed increasing the membership of the court to 31. The President promptly appointed the new judges, and their appointment was confirmed by a subservient Senate.

The reorganized court, by 16 to 15, affirmed the convictions and sustained the constitutionality of the act. Mr. Justice Rubberstamp wrote the prevailing opinion, which reads as follows:

"The defendants have been convicted in the lower court of offenses in violation of the act to maintain diplomatic friendly relations with foreign governments, also known by the short title of 'Noblesse Oblige.' They contend that their convictions should be reversed because this act violates Article I of the amendments to the Constitution by unlawfully abridging the freedom of speech and the press. This contention makes it necessary to examine the history and intent, together with the limitations, of the constitutional provisions invoked by the defendants.

"Freedom of speech and freedom of the press are the cornerstones of Anglo-Saxon democratic institutions. This freedom is guaranteed against invasion by the Federal Government by the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that Congress shall make no law * * * abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, and it is protected against infringement by the State governments by similar guaranties in the constitutions of the respective States. The freedom of speech and of the press which is secured by constitutional guaranties, however, is not an absolute license to speak and publish anything that one pleases, freed from all legal liability therefore, either civil or criminal (Warren v. U. S., 183 Fed. 718; State v. Pape, 90 Conn. 98). The words 'freedom of speech and of the press' are to be construed in the sense which they had acquired at common law, and the right, therefore, is to be enjoyed subject to implied limitations (Diener v. Star-Chronicle Pub. Co., 230 Mo. 613; Williams Printing C. Saunders, 113 Va. 156). Thus, the exercise of the right is subject to limitations imposed under the police power, to the inherent right of the courts to punish for contempt, and to civil liability for libel and slander (People v. Most, 171 N. Y. 423). No one in the civilized community contemplated by the Constitution may exercise his recognized legal rights so as to inflict unwarranted injury upon his neighbor.

"Opinion" Continues.

"The right of freedom of the press cannot be used as a shield behind which to encourage insurrection, anarchy, or the employment of force to overturn the Government of the United States.

"Every right, whether granted by the Constitution or by the common law, implies a correlative duty to exercise that right consistently with the rights of others.

"The right of freedom of speech and the right of freedom of the press thus being qualified rather than absolute rights, it is pertinent to consider the extent to which such rights are necessarily limited. These limitations are not confined merely to those suggested above. There are limitations also in the Constitution itself. That instrument must be read as a whole. Every clause and provision thereof must be deemed to have been written so as to be consistent with every other. It would be repugnant to sound reasoning to erect as absolute and controlling one particular part of the Constitution if to do so would result in nullifying or impairing the virtue of powers and duties elsewhere granted and necessary for the maintenance of the integrity of the Government.

Libel Is Involved.

"If the right of freedom of speech and the right of freedom of the press are qualified as they are by the duty to refrain from defamatory publications and the duty to refrain from treasonable and subversive propaganda, all the more so must they be deemed to be qualified by the power of the proper departments and branches of the Government to preserve the Nation from foreign entanglements, from invasion by its enemies, and from diplomatic ruptures which may lead to such results.

"It would be absurb to hold that freedom of speech does not permit libel and at the same time that freedom of speech could be invoked contrary to the will of the Congress to frustrate and defeat the exercise by the Executive and by the Congress of their constitutional powers in the maintenance of friendly relations and peace with foreign governments.

"We therefore hold that the act under which the defendants have been convicted and sentenced is a valid exercise of the legislative power of the Congress, and necessary and proper for the carrying out of the powers and duties vested in the Congress and in the President of the United States in respect of foreign relations. Accordingly, the judgments of conviction are affirmed."

Shortly thereafter it appeared to the President and the Congress that the tenets of certain religions and the instruction given to the youth in certain alleged religious schools were so incongruous as to amount, in reality, not to religion at all as understood by Congress and the President. In their view these beliefs consisted rather in utterly incoherent and incomprehensible fancies and superstitions. These fancies and superstitions they believed to me inimical to the general welfare of the Nation. Accordingly, laws were passed prohibiting the practice of these so-called cults. Their followers invoked their constitutional right of religious freedom, but their objections were overruled by the reorganized Supreme Court upon the ground that, upon full consideration, what the defendants claimed was their religion was really no religion at all.

All this did not happen in the year 1937, but in February, 1941. It takes a little time to travel so far. But the way to those results was paved with good intentions and posted by precedents. It was planned by near-sighted surveyors, whose transits carried them only as far as the top of the immediate slope. They were utterly oblivious of what the road would lead to on the other side of the hill, but they were determined to get to the top of that hill by the shortest cut and to let the travelers who came after them worry later about where the road might take them.

Mrs. Simpson's Pet Dog Dies From Snake Bite

London, April 8 (AP).—Slippers, Mrs. Wallis Simpson's favorite Cairn terrier and a personal gift from the Duke of Windsor, is dead, victim of a snake.

Mrs. Simpson informed friends here the dog was bitten by a snake while rabbit hunting near Mrs. Simpson's chateau near Tours, France. A special serum failed to save it. Mrs. Simpson, deeply affected by the loss, was understood to have telephoned the news to Windsor.

Mineola, N. Y., April 8 (AP).—Thomas Meighan, motion picture star who died last July 8 at his home in Great Neck, left a gross estate of $623,804.59 and a net estate of $577,790.10, it was disclosed in the filing of a transfer tax appraisal yesterday.

Meighan's will left four-fifths of the estate to his widow. The other fifth was left to the actor's sister, Miss Mary Meighan, of Pittsburgh.

Senate Inquiry, Suit Threaten BallCharityGift

Wheeler Asks Investigation of Railroad Donation; Thompson to Act.

By the Associated Press.

Muncie, Ind., April 8.—A Senate investigation and a law suit threatened complications today for George A. Ball's plan to donate to a religious, charitable and educational foundation his reputedly rich holdings of Midamerica Corporation common stock.

Midamerica Corporation is the top holding company of the former Van Sweringen rail and industrial empire.

There was only the bare announcement here by Miss Gertrude Barrett, Ball's secretary, of the transfer of the stock.

Ball, a 74-year-old millionaire fruit-jar manufacturer who takes an active part in politics in addition to handling a multitude of business interests, was reported to be in New York. His secretary said any story as to the eventual use by the foundation of the stock would be only conjecture.

At Washington, Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Senate Railway Finance Committee, said he would begin an investigation of the transaction on the theory the Interstate Commerce Commission should have been consulted.

Receiver Will Sue.

J. Paul Thompson, of Cleveland, Ohio, receiver for the estate of the late O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, said he would sue to enforce an option given by Ball and his associate, G. A. Tomlinson, of Cleveland, Ohio, to enable the Van Sweringens to purchase control of Midamerica when they had cleared themselves of indebtedness.

Midamerica was formed in 1935 by Ball and Tomlinson to buy at auction controlling securities in the Van Sweringen holdings offered for sale to satisfy debts of the Van Sweringen brothers.

Midamerica bought the Van Sweringen interests for $3,121,000. It has been estimated the gross profit to Ball and Tomlinson since the purchase has been approximately $10,000,000.

The Senate Railway Finance Committee, after a recent investigation of the deal, sharply criticized the holding company setup which allowed Ball to gain control of a $3,000,000,000 rail and industrial network with an investment of about $3,000,000.

Value Undetermined.

There was no way of determining immediately the value of the stock transferred to the foundation.

The foundation, known as the George and Frances Ball Foundation, was incorporated March 22. Incorporators and members of the board were Ball, his wife; Elisabeth W. Ball, their daughter; Leland Rex Robinson, of Bronxville, N. Y., and Dr. Lemuel A. Pittenger, president of Ball State Teachers College here.

Ball was the youngest of the five brothers who accumulated fortunes from making fruit jars. The Ball brothers' benefactions have reached high totals.

Ball is Republican national committeeman from Indiana.

King May Replace Duke as World's Best DressedMan

New York, April 8 (AP).—King George VI is destined to supplant the Duke of Windsor, in the opinion of American tailors, as the world's best-dressed man.

The verdict was not unanimous, however, a widely circulated questionnaire showing 60 per cent believe the King will be style setter No. 1 after Coronation day.

Thirty per cent of the tailors polled would leave the crown of best dressed on the brow of Edward of Windsor.

Gen. Pershing Confined To His Hotel With Cold

Gen. John J. Pershing spent his first day in Washington since last fall confined to his hotel room with a slight cold. He arrived Tuesday night from New Mexico and Arkansas, where he spent the winter.

At the general's office an aid said Pershing was in excellent health, except for the cold. He will make unofficial calls on the President and Secretary of War Woodring, and other Army and Navy officials before sailing for the coronation the end of April.

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

By Bob Burns.

Hollywood is fast becoming the "melting-pot" of the Nation. If you look around you can find fanatics on all subjects.

I know one lady out here who is a fanatic against whirlwind courtships. She has had two of 'em. She married once for love and once for money and didn't git either—so she became a rabid advocate of long engagements. Not long ago, her personal maid come to her and told her that she was gonna git married. The lady says "I hope it ain't that man that's been callin' on you for two weeks." The girl said "Yes." The lady says "You can't possibly learn anything about a man in two weeks," and the girl says "Well, I ain't takin' any chances. I wouldn't marry him unless I knew all about him. You see my best girl friend was engaged to him for sixteen years!"

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

"I have reached the conclusion that the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine is as important to the farmers of the United States as a fire department is to the people of a city"—Secretary Wallace.

There are reasons for his thinking so, he later pointed out. And when one considers the ways of the insects that blight the Nation's crops, the belief of Agriculture's Secretary is convincing, and affording, also, some interest.

He explains that you can't have one pitched battle with the bugs, win it, perhaps, and then call it a day. The insect pests have been battled by man since man and pests began, and today neither has won. The scientists concoct their poisons and sprays, but the bugs have outwitted it and, as a whole, have outlived it. Subdue one family of them here and others will come in from abroad. They're probably farm problem No. 1, certainly the cause of terrific financial losses.

As undesirable immigrants they have uncanny ways of getting into the country. For example: When the Graf Zppelin made its second trip to the United States in 1929, plant quarantine inspectors found in the plant material aboard as many as 20 species of insects, 6 of which had never before appeared in this country. These stowaways might in time have spawned a family as large as Adam's.

Through the airways the insect pests are continually appearing and at the airports the bureau's people squint through the plant materials relentlessly. Last year they inspected 3,000 airplanes from foreign countries at 16 ports of entry and intercepted a thousand lots of prohibited plant material. Among the insect stowaways were species of fruit flies, citrus blackflies and pink bollworm.

"The changing nature of the problem is one which not one person in a thousand appreciates," the Secretary said. Many people think that science deals with unchanging facts which, once discovered, remain true for all time. But the more I see of science in the Department of Agriculture, the more I am convinced that scientists are dealing all the time with something which continually changes, and that the truth will never be fully learned. Maybe this is a good thing for us. It keeps all of us on our toes," he said.

Farm Credit Club hikers are planning to go to the Shenandoah National Park, in Virginia, on Sunday, April 18 . . . Choice of walks of three, six and ten miles will be offered . . . The Park Service Trail from Panorama, on Skyline Drive, south to the summit of the peak of Mary's Rock is a rise of 1,210 feet, and constantly affords panoramic views . . . After leaving this point the hikers will stop at the Meadow Spring Shelter of the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club to lunch . . . This will comprise the three-mile walk . . . In the afternoon those who wish to take the six-mile walk will return over the same trail to Panorama . . . Those desiring the 10-mile walk will visit Hazel Gorge from the Shelter . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fall will lead the trip . . .

The club hikers, on Sunday, May 2, will climb Old Rag Mountain . . . Two future trips in contemplation are to White Oak Canyon in Shenandoah National Park, and to the Bull Run Mountains in Virginia.

John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, calls attention to a record: More than 10,000 persons disabled through accident, illness or congenital causes, were vocationally rehabilitated and placed in suitable employment during 1936 through the Federal and State vocational rehabilitation program conducted under direction of the Office of Education . . . The exact number of persons affected was 10,338, an increase of 916 over the number who were vocationally rehabilitated in 1935.

"The average cost of rehabilitating a disabled person does not exceed $300, divided equally between expenditures of Federal and State funds," Commissioner Studebaker said. "This cost is all the more significant when contrasted with the cost, from $300 to $500 annually, of maintaining a disabled person in a charitable or other public institution," he said.

Traffic Toll Here Reaches 39 for Year

Elizabeth E. Guggenheim's Operator's Permit Is Revoked.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Highlights on the traffic front yesterday were:

A garage mechanic for a local automobile club, driving one of the organization's official cars, was arrested for speeding 75 miles an hour through heavy traffic, and held for $25 collateral for appearance in Traffic Court today.

William K. Price, 35, of Lincoln University, Chester, Pa., died in Casualty Hospital of injuries suffered in a crash here Sunday, bringing the 1937 District traffic toll to 39.

The National Research Council commented that there was little doubt that a "considerable number of accidents occurred in which vehicular defects were a contributing factor."

Among District motorists whose operators' permits were revoked was Mrs. Elizabeth E. Guggenheim, Washington sportswoman and social leader.

In the case of the mechanic arrested, Policeman George M. Patton, of the safety patrol car, encountered one of the most flagrant exhibitions of traffic recklessness since starting daily highway cruises nearly a month ago.

It was just before the afternoon rush hour on Benning road northeast. Traffic was swelling with homeward-bound motorists. Every lane was clogged with vehicles.

Car Increases Speed.

Suddenly, nearly a block ahead of the patrol car, Policeman Patton sighted a bright red coupe weaving in and out of traffic. As the patrol car gained momentum, the car ahead increased its speed.

The speeding driver failed to heed the patrol's siren. The chase lasted nearly a mile. Finally Patton succeeded in drawing abreast of the coupe. The driver was a garage mechanic. His excuse:

"I was in a hurry to deliver some auto parts."

The garage man admitted he wasn't watching his speedometer. He was taken to the Second Precinct Station.

The thirty-ninth traffic victim was William K. Price, 35, of Lincoln University, Chester County, Pa., who was injured in a collision here last Sunday.

Following his death, police began a search for Miss Betty Peal, 27, of Oxford, Pa., driver of the automobile in which Price was riding. Miss Peal was released from police custody Monday when Assistant Corporation Counsel Rice Hooe refused to issue reckless driving papers against her.

Mrs. Guggenheim's operators' permit was revoked by the Board of Review and Revocations. Mrs. Guggenheim was fined $75 by Traffic Judge John P. McMahon on charges of leaving the scene of an accident.

Two Arrests On One Trip.

Another motorist was fined $20 in Traffic Court after he was stopped for speeding twice within an hour—by the same policeman. The accused driver gave his name as Christ Aravanis, and was arrested by Policeman Roger Randall, Traffic Division.

Randall said he first stopped Aravanis on Sixth street northwest for traveling 34 miles an hour. An hour later, on upper Georgia avenue, Randall again overtook the man at 40 miles an hour.

Recent discussion over the enactment of legislation making inspection of motor vehicles compulsory in the District, yesterday brought the following statement from the National Research Council:

"It has been claimed by those not favoring the passage of compulsory vehicle inspection laws that mechanical defects cause but a small percentage of highway accidents. Although the percentage of accidents caused by faulty equipment cannot accurately be determined, since an automobile cannot be tested after it has been wrecked, there are no doubt a considerable number of accidents in which vehicular defects are contributing factors."

The council pointed out that air lines, railroads and other public transportation fields require rigid mechanical standards and insist upon frequent inspections.

In addition to Mrs. Guggenheim, others who lost driving permits yesterday were:

James S. Kiely, 5417 Sherrier place northwest, revoked; Hazel Lanev, 1141 Nineteenth street northwest, revoked; Benjamin Lyz, Westchester Apartments, revoked; John W. Payne, 259 Valley avenue southeast, revoked; Lucele Puyot, 4901 Millbrook lane northwest, revoked; Charles W. Shellhorn, 428 Tenth street northeast, revoked; James P. Sutton, 2444 Thirty-seventh street northwest, revoked; John Vickery, 6601 Potomac drive, revoked.

Crying Leads to Discovery Of Baby in D. C. Hotel Room

Woman Leaves Note Asking Child Be Cared for; Hospital Reports Age as Week; Undernourished, Is Put in Incubator.

Crying by a new-born baby led the housekeeper of a local downtown hotel to enter a room yesterday and find an abandoned child, which police said had been left there by a woman who registered at the hotel earlier in the day.

The woman left a note beside the waif. It read, "Please take care of little Davie Linden. I have no home. He is of good blood." The rest wasillegible.

With the baby in her arms, a woman who registered as Mrs. Lee Barnes, of Pittsburgh, asked for a room at the Hotel Inn, 608 Ninth street northwest, at 4:30 a. m. She was shown to her room by S. M. Murray, room clerk.

She was not seen again until 11 o'clock when she asked at the hotel office about a "place to eat." She left the hotel shortly afterward, police said.

Davie was taken to Gallinger Hospital by a member of the Woman's Bureau for care. At the children's ward, the child was put in an incubator and fed.

"He was undernourished and hungry when he arrived," said Dr. Jeanette Heghinian, resident physician of the children's ward, "but he was well clothed."

She described him as dark-complexioned, wrinkled and underweight. He weighed 5 pounds when registered at the hospital. The doctor said she believed the tot to be at least a week old, judging by his physical development.

WPA-Written Capital Guide Due Thursday

1,000 Pages Present Most Complete Picture of City Ever Compiled.

An armful of answers on virtually every question about the Capital yesterday and today is the thousand-odd page guidebook compiled by the Federal Writers Project of the Works Progress Administration and announced for distribution Thursday.

For 14 months men and women in the FWP circulated about Washington gathering facts on buildings, parks, streets, Government departments, historic houses, organizations and agencies. At the same time, other workers were delving into dusty tomes for background material, searching through old records and yellowed guidebooks for information on Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant's plan for the city and his brief part in its execution, and checking accepted authorities against each other to find out wherein they agree.

Supervised by Alsberg.

Under the supervision of Henry Alsberg, director of the FWP, the mammoth hitory-guide soon began to take shape; but due to the magnitude of preparing a comprehensive volume on the Capital, more than a year was spent in finishing it. Presenting what is probably the most complete picture of Washington ever given in one book, the guide is the result of "one of the largest and most difficult editorial tasks ever undertaken in this country," according to the director of the FWP.

The book is divided into six parts. The first presents a general background of Washington—its history, topography and climate, art, music, literature, science and religious trends. Part two, taken up with "Washington of Today," devotes over 500 pages to every phase of contemporary life in the Capital from Congress to women's clubs. "Tours in the City and Environs" provides a sight-seeing plan to points of interest throughout and around Washington.

U. S. Departments, Agencies.

"Executive Departments of the Federal Government" and "Independent Agencies of the Federal Government" are discussed and explained in parts four and five, while the concluding division is given over to Washington's local government.

General information, such as maps, accommodations, street arrangements, amusements, newspapers and radio stations, is given at the first of the book. A hundred photographs and reproductions are scattered through the chapters, and two maps are inserted in a pocket inside the back cover. Bound in black buckram, with the title, "Washington: City and Capital," lettered in gold, was printed by the Government Printing Office. It will sell for $3.

Films of Harvard Tercentenary Are Shown to Alumni

Motion pictures taken in September of last year were shown before the group gathered in the Pan American Union.

The films which record the event, after they have been shown over the country, will be placed in the university archives at Cambridge, Mass. There they will remain until opened in 2036 at the 400th anniversary celebration.

Recorded are speeches by James Conant, president of the university; James Curley, then Governor of Massachusetts, and many noted scholars.

Also shown last night were the "Harvard Special," a short subject which gave a brief history of the university, and former President Eliot's tribute to Asa Gray, the father of American botany. The latter, one of the earliest sound films, was recorded in 1924 by Dr. Lee DeForest. Eliot's tribute was delivered at the unveiling of a bust of Gray in the Hall of Fame, New York University.

Rise in Tax On Realty in D.C. Expected

Postponement of Action on Levy Bills May Bring Increase.

Only Two Members of House Group Appear for Meeting.

Further delay on pressing District taxation and governmental reform problems was necessitated yesterday because of the failure of all but two members of a six-man sub-committee of the House District Committee to attend a meeting.

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, chairman of the sub-committee, waited for more than an hour for the other members, but only Representative Allen (Democrat), of Delaware, appeared.

He then postponed the organization meeting until next Tuesday.

Inability to obtain a quorum handicapped the two previous sub-committees and led to their dissolution and the appointment of a new group.

Members of the sub-committee, nevertheless, led the attack on legislative provisions in the District supply bill on the ground that such matters should be handled by the House District Committee.

At the office of Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, it was said that he was ill yesterday although earlier in the day Kennedy was told that Nichols was "on his way over to the District Committee room.

Several Not Present.

Representatives Dirksen, of Illinois, and Cole, of New York, minority members, were attending other committee meetings, while Representative McGehee, of Mississippi, was out of the city.

William A. Roberts, former people's counsel, was expected at the meeting also by Kennedy, but it developed that he also was not in the city.

Danger that the District Commissioners may be forced to raise the real estate tax to meet the $6,000,000 deficit in the District supply bill becomes more imminent with the postponement of action by the sub-committee.

As a prohibition against an increase in the real estate tax was stricken out of the supply bill on a point of order raised by members of the District Committee, the Commissioners would of necessity have to raise the real estate tax if enough new taxes are not authorized by Congress before adjournment.

Bills Are Approved.

Meanwhile, the District Commissioners approved several bills now pending in Congress in report sent to the Bureau of the Budget. One was a bill aimed at child marriages. It would raise the age limits at which marriage is possible here with consent of parents from 16 to 18 years for men and from 14 to 16 years for women.

Another bill given approval would control adoption of children. It would provide an agency to investigate both adopting parents and the child and require that the first six months of an adoption be "temporary." No child under 6 months old could be adopted, according to the bill. In another bill approved the Public Utilities Commission would be given discretionary power in restoring confiscated taxicab licenses with the city's needs the deciding factor. The purpose of this bill is to limit the cabs.

Washington Civic Theater Director Contrasts Crazy Architecture With Passion for Perfection Shown by Film Makers.

Movie-making isn't half as crazy as the City of Hollywood, Day Tuttle, director of the Washington Civic Theater, told the Yale Club here yesterday.

Tuttle, Yale '24, just back from an inspection tour of the movie lots, said the greatest contrast exists between "the architectural freakiness" of Hollywood and the "intelligence, the integrity, the passion for perfection," which characterize the American cinema today.

Comparing the work of Hollywood writers, directors, financiers and actors with "the best which is being produced in the field of the drama, the novel, contemporary engineering, bridge-building, the professions and business today," he said the progress of "this industry which is part art, and this art which is part industry," has grown to such dimensions that in 25 years it dominates the entertainment idea of the globe.

Hollywood Nightmare.

But the city of Hollywood is a honky-tonk nightmare, he declared, in describing as grotesqueries Grauman's Chinese Theater, where the footprints of Joan Crawford and the big toe print of Groucho Marx are perpetuated in concrete at the entrance. He mentioned huge roadside stands where orangeade is sold in spheroid buildings representing an orange, hamburger stands built like hamburgers, tea rooms in which entrance is gained through a hole in the gigantic wooden pettyskirt of a female Cyclops.

"This gingerbread, this fake extravaganza, this passion for the absurd in architecture, the incongruous in town planning, the short-sighted, the near-sighted, and anything but the far-sighted in regional development," is immediately noted by every traveler, he said.

Theater Profitable.

Speaking of his Washington Civic Theater, Tuttle said it would show a profit this year after a series of plays produced at the Wardman Park Theater. Two more productions will complete the season, he said.

"The little theater movement has come to Washington very late," he declared. "There are already well-established community playhouses in Cleveland, Pasadena, Dallas, Detroit, Omaha and a score of other cities.

"But the Civic Theater will remain here," he added. "'It Can't Happen Here'—the Sinclair Lewis anti-Fascist play, was the most successful."

City's Jobless Employables to Get Early Work

Director Street Declares Emergency; to Certify Eligibles at Once.

The relief crisis, reached Tuesday when available funds shrank from $70,000 to $30,000, moved yesterday one step closer to solution, as Elwood Street, director of public welfare, declared an "emergency."

Instead of being spread over the next six months as originally planned, certification of the District's 3,000 unemployed employables to the WPA rolls will begin, he said, almost at once, and be completed by July 1.

The task of certification will be done with $25,000 diverted to the Board of Public Welfare from the transient fund.

The Civil Service Commission, street said, is being asked to supply 60 workers.

Should the commission, however, be delayed in finding eligibles, it will be asked to waive its recent agreement with the District government and allow appointment of qualified candidates from outside the civil service register.

Earlier in the day the Commissioners were heartened by support from the new "Citizens Committee for the Unemployed." Commending the Commissioners' efforts to ease the situation, the committee urged that the amount of the deficiency appropriation requested, $130,000, be raised to $170,000.

This amount, together with the $30,000 scraped from unemployable relief funds, is the minimum necessary, the committee said, to give aid to the employables during May and June.

After assuring the Commissioners of his organization's support, Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, chairman of the new Citizens' Committee, declared, "now at all costs, hunger, suffering and demoralization must be prevented."

Action, he said, "must be taken while there is a chance of rehabilitating most of the sufferers and making them capable of self-support." Inaction, he said, "would prove a bad investment from the point of view of our future citizenship and of our future municipal bill for the care of the dependent."

D. C. Permit For Abattoir Is Expected

Plumbing Requirements Reported Satisfied by Gobel Firm.

Suit of Concern Still Is Pending for Loss of Business.

A slaughter house at Benning, a few months ago the center of a heated civic struggle, came closer to actuality yesterday as District officials intimated it was soon to be licensed.

Declining to be quoted, they said the set of plumbing regulations imposed on the Adolf Gobel Co., applicants for the permit, had been satisfied.

The regulations had demanded certain standards in water, drainage and refrigeration.

Alfred R. McGonigal, District plumbing inspector, reached at his home late last night, declined to make a statement.

The abattoir fight reached its climax December 18, when the Gobel company, charging conspiracy to withhold the permit, filed personal suit against the District Commissioners for $150,000.

Suit Still Pending.

At the time, the company estimated there had been a profit loss of $100,000 through inability to get the plant in operation. In addition, they claimed there had been a heavy drain on the company's treasury by contracts entered into when the abattoir's foundation work was completed.

This suit, still pending in the United States District Court, will be dismissed, it was stated, when the license is finally granted.

On December 5, the Federation of Citizens Association in a stormy session voted to oppose the building of the abattoir. Action came on a motion presented by Dr. Charles B. Campbell, chairman of the federation's public health committee.

At that meeting great objection came because inadequate provisions had been made for disposal of the abattoir's sewage. The company, it was stated yesterday, has now disposed of that objection.

Opposed by Ickes.

On the other side of the controversy were the Kenilworth and Lincoln Park Citizens Associations and the Central Labor Union. It was their contention that the abattoir would "materially benefit" and help the Northeast and Southeast sections of Washington. Many men, they said, would find employment.

Also in the fight was Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes. He declared, at the time, "the idea of an abattoir in Washington seems disgraceful." He pledged himself to a finish fight against the plans of the Gobel Co.

Ickes was propelled into the fight by a number of reasons. First, the National Capital Parks, which is under his jurisdiction, had purchased considerable land in the Benning and Anacostia area. Second, the housing division of the Public Works Administration owned 54 acres of ground within 1,600 feet of the proposed Gobel plant. Homes for 700 families were planned there.

Cary Grant Is Santa to Boys On Circus Day

Star, Once Stilt Walker, Plays Host on Coast to Underprivileged.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, April 8.—Cary Grant, who thinks the saddest place in the world is the outside of a circus tent, is doing the handsome thing for 30 boys who otherwise would have to see the show from there.

The actor has hired a bus, and is rounding up underprivileged youngsters all over Los Angeles County to be his guests under the big top.

The Grant expedition will tour the lot from the sideshows up, and each member is promised an allowance for peanuts and pink lemonade. A guest conductor will manage the tour, however, since Grant lost an argument with the studio and has to work.

"But I'll be in personal charge next time," he said. "This is going to be an annual event for me, or oftener, depending on the number of circuses coming to town.

"Next to owning a circus, this should be the most fun."

If Grace Moore's nose is out of joint there's a reason. Year ago Miss Moore unveiled her highest notes with some eclat as sole singer at London's swanky Grosvenor House ball.

This year—and coronation week at that—her place will be taken by Torch-Singer Libby Holman, who warbles hot and blue. Holman leaves for New York this week and will sail May 1.

Ted Peckham, taffy-haired stripling, who brought mass production to the gigolo business, has a bid from Harlem to organize a sepia section.

Here to author "Gentlemen for Hire," a picture exploiting his vocation, Peckham has been helping write a gigolo script for Amos and Andy, blackface radio team, which gave the Harlem boys an idea.

"I'm not sure a Harlem branch would be advisable," he said, "but I'll take it up with my board of directors." (Seems the gigolo business is incorporated.)

"However, I believe an escort service could perform a very real and valuable function in Harlem, and even though we decide against participating, I'll be glad to offer my personal advice in its organization."

Peckham declined to name the Harlem delegation.

It's regarded as improbable the Peckham organization will take part, possibly on the ground the business is too young to venture into technicolor.

In HOLLYWOOD With Jimmy Fiddler

Hollywood, April 8.—When I visit away from Hollywood, I find that people are intensely interested in movie salaries. They don't credit all they hear. "Five and six thousand dollars a week for playing!" they exclaim, "We don't believe it." Neither did I, until I came to Hollywood. I thought it was publicity, like the Simone Simon-James Stewart romance. The first time I saw a $5,000 salary check for one week's work (it belonged to John Gilbert), my heart skipped beats for two days. Since then I have seen so many that I hardly take a second look.

SIMONE SIMON.

But $5,000 a week is pin money compared to what many stars can command any day they give the word. I know at least two dozen who have been offered personal appearance tours at $10,000 a week for a year. Even such down-the-ladder players as Ed Kennedy, Mary Brian, El Brendel, Fifi D'Orsay and Bebe Daniels have been paid as high as $3,500 a week by theaters.

• • • •

Imagine what those same houses would pay Robert Taylor or Joan Crawford or Gary Cooper. Now give your imagination a hoist, and picture what they would pay Greta Garbo, Shirley Temple or Mae West. I know for a fact that Garbo turned down $100,000 for five weeks. Next year they may offer her the San Francisco mint.

Few stars are accepting these offers and there will be fewer in years to come.

The reason: Income taxes take such huge bites that stars are unwilling to undergo the hardships and dangers (kidnaping, robbery, shakedowns) for what is left after the Federal and State governments take their portions. Nevertheless, isn't it astounding that a woman—as mortal as you or I—has been offered $100,000 to appear for five weeks on a theater stage?

Billy Burke has been working quite hard; long hours and the like. She is not a chronic complainer, but she began searching for some way to let her employers know they were overdoing things. The opportunity arrived during luncheon in the studio cafe. At her table sat the director and several company officials.

The director ordered steak, and the various officials followed suit. Then all eyes centered on Miss Burke, who sat pondering the menu. "Make mine hamburger," she sighed at last, "I'd like a steak, too" (with a meaningful glance at the director) "but I'm too tired to chew it."

There is a dog trainer in town who boasts that he can teach any dog to do any trick a dog is capable of doing. Into his shop the other morning came Ginger Rogers, leading her newly-acquired police puppy. The trainer has a routine sales talk, and he began it: "I would like instructions as to what you wish your dog to do, Miss Rogers," he said.

The United States Supreme Court Justices Appear For the First Time Before Motion Picture Cameras

Full Roster of Justices, So Much in the Headlines, Pose for Paramount Newsreel History of Highest Tribunal and Permit Interior Views of Court; 'Maytime' Wins Box-Office Award; Five Ace Bands in a Row Headed for the Earle; Theater Notes.

GREAT elation is being felt these days by the Washington executives of the Paramount News and their local camera crews.

Contrary to all precedent, Paramount News has been able to record on film a comprehensive story of the operation of the United States' highest tribunal and has photographed in various informal activities all of the Supreme Court justices, including the Chief Justice.

BELL.

This is looked upon as a considerable feat since heretofore the Supreme Court has been held to be sacrosanct and not to be subjected to the piercing eye of the motion picture camera. That this was a fallacious notion is evidenced by the fact that it was found possible to make personal appointments with all the justices as well as to gain permission to take motion picture "shots" of the interior of the new $10,000,000 Supreme Court Building.

In a long letter concerning the matter, Robert Denton, of the Washington office of Paramount News, says in part as follows:

"In all my many years in Washington, we have never been treated more kindly or with as much consideration as these gentlemen have shown the Paramount camera crews. We photographed each and every one in a variety of poses, making Justice Roberts in his suite in the Supreme Court Building—a place a newsreel camera never has been before. We made Justice Stone in his home, where he maintains his law library. The other justices were made in exterior poses, in their gardens with their wives, taking daily strolls, etc. Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes were most gracious to us.

"In addition, we photographed every conceivable angle of the beautiful $10,000,000 building, making interiors of the crowds waiting to enter the court and interior scenes of the court itself, showing the bench and other highlights of the courtroom proper. In these scenes, of course, there was no action, but, even getting this far, as you can realize, is a step adding to the prestige of things the newsreel boys are now able to do in presenting straight, unfictionized news to the public."

In addition to the scenes with the justices, the Paramount editors have endeavored to weave around them actual, factual scenes concerning the history of the court and have refrained from trying to forecast or guess what might or might not result from their decisions.

Mr. Denton continues with a few sidelights on some of his crews' experiences:

"Justice and Mrs. Brandeis, as you know, have made it a rule never to pose for photographs, inside or outside of studios. When we contacted the justice leaving for court one morning, he made this known to us. He said, however, that he had no objection if we could catch him and Mrs. Brandeis in action. He walked a good three blocks with Mrs. Brandeis swinging on his arm and gave us some really pleasant strolling scenes. He takes this walk every fair day before he enters his car to go to court. I may add that he has broken this rule of non-posing only once and that was to sit for a still picture made of the entire court. My camera crew, Hugo Johnson and Alfred O'Eth, had many pleasant experiences in this coverage."

This filmed story of the "Nine Old Men" will be released nationally today in the Paramount News. It will be shown locally at the Earle and Metropolitan theaters and probably at the Trans-Lux.

To borrow that famous tag-line from that other documentary film, "Time Marches On"!

"Maytime," entering its third week at Loew's Palace Theater today, with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy costarred and John Barrymore leading the support, has been selected by an overwhelming majority vote of the National Screen Council as winner of the Boxoffice Blue Ribbon Award for March. The Blue Ribbon Award is made by Boxoffice, film trade paper, on the vote of more than 200 motion picture editors of leading newspapers throughout the country, the motion picture chairman of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae and the State motion picture chairmen of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. "Maid of Salem" received the award in February; "The Plainsman" in January.

A fine spirit of fraternal good fellowship is being manifest, incidentally, by the selection of a duet of favorite melodies from "Maytime" as the piece de resistance of the program to be sung by Bert Granoff and Carolyn Henry, who are held over, along with Dean Herrick, organist, at the Earle beginning today. It would be interesting to know what the Palace is doing for the Earle in reciprocation.

Speaking of the Earle, "Swingtime in Springtime" will begin in Washington on Friday, April 23.

On that date the Earle will inaugurate a five-week season of rhythmic celebration that will bring to the stage five of the Nation's outstanding orchestras, according to announcement made yesterday by Zone Manager John J. Payette.

Horace Heidt and his Alemite Brigadiers will start the ball rolling by presenting a revue that is said to reach the "Heidt" of entertainment. Roger Pryor and his orchestra are listed as the second group. This will be the first Washington appearance of the former stage and screen star as a band leader. The third booking is Shep Fields and His Rippling Rhythm, newest sensation of the airwaves. This also will be a first appearance.

On May 14, Hal Kemp and his band will add their individual style of music-making to the symposium of syncopationists, to be followed on May 21 by Guy Lombardo and his orchestra, one of the most popular that ever occupies a Capital stage.

All this should afford a feast for music lovers. Personally, I am looking forward to it with the greatest anticipation because I have a fine ear for music. I can hear it as far as anyone!

• • • •

If you would care to know the "best of the month," selected by the national motion picture preview committees, reporting through the Will H. Hays office, they were "A Family Affair," "Lost Horizon," not yet seen in Washington; "Maytime," "Quality Street," "Seventh Heaven" and "When You're in Love." So now you know what before you only suspected.

New York, April 8.

KNOWLEDGE: Bert Kalmar, of the song-writing team of Kalmar & Ruby, has a new ranch in the Encino Valley. It is equipped with the most modern appliances to cover every need. But in the rear of that house, serving no apparent purpose, is an incongruous cellar-door . . . Kalmar was born on Pitt street, in the lower East Side of New York. Once he saw a tramp rolling a toy tumble-bug down a cellar-door. The toy fascinated the youngster, and the tramp agreed to sell it for 10 cents. "Work and save each penny," the old man told Bert. "Every time you make a penny, deposit with the bartender on the corner. I'll leave the toy with him, and when you've paid the 10 cents, the toy will be yours" . . . For the first time, the lad knew a sense of privation, of yearning and finally of saving and accomplishment. When he had accumulated the 10 cents he offered it to the tramp. "No, you keep the money," the old man told the bewildered youth. "And here's the tumble-bug, too. Let this be a lesson, that work will bring you the things you want" . . . And that's why and old cellar-door, remindful of a toy tumble-bug, stands incongruous in a ranch in the Encino Valley.

ERROR: The Will Hays office issued its annual report Monday, entitled "15 Years of Motion Picture Progress." It concludes with a long statement by Mr. Hays, deploring the mistakes made by cinema-folk in the past, and expresses the hope that the future will find them less and less in error . . . On page 3 the Hays office lists "Winterset" as the Pulitzer Prize play of 1936-37. The Pulitzer Prize that year was given to "Idiot's Delight."

AMITY: Jimmy Durante was visited by Johnnie Weissmuller, and Jimmie introduced the Tarzan to his aged father—the retired barber who still isn't sure that Durante's star will last . . . and who, therefore, still retains his barber implements . . . "Johnnie's a nice guy, pop," Jimmie stated, "and a good pal" . . . "Pal 'o my son?" the elder Durante replied—patting Weissmuller's cheek. "That means pal 'o mine, boy. Sit down" . . . Weissmuller sat down, while Jimmy's father tendered the most concrete token of amity toward his son's friend. He trimmed Johnnie's hair—free!

• • • •

YOUTH: Mayor LaGuardia will take his daughter to see the circus again this week. This is an unusual event in the life of the Mayor's family, for never has a visit to the circus been repeated during one season, let alone one week . . . It is a result of the Mayor's boast of prowess in the new match-stick game, at which he really is adept. His daughter wagered that she could beat him at it—demanding as her prize a second visit to the circus . . . The youngster played—and defeated his honor, the Mayor of the City of New York.

• • • •

ENTERPRISE: A few weeks ago the newspapers announced that Ben Bernie had retired his orchestra and would take it easy henceforth . . . To take it easy, Bernie is at his ranch in Miami—where Ben and his orchestra will open an engagement at the Royal Palms Club.

• • • •

TRIUMPH: George M. Cohan, who was born in Providence, R. I., received an elated phone call from a resident of his native city this week . . . "We're so excited over our good luck," the informant stated. "Y'know—the population of Providence has been increased by 1,000" . . . "Really?" asked Cohan. "That's a mark of progress, isn't it?" . . . "Sure is," came the reply. "This increase puts our city into another class as far as movies are concerned. It means that now we get the regular endings—instead of the try-out endings—to all the pictures!"

• • • •

DEFEAT: The eight postponements of "Driftwood" created an uncontested record in the Broadway Theater . . . James Kirkwood, who was to star in that play, was asked last week whether the cast had been affected by the postponements. "Well," he stated, "one of the actors got so delirious, he began to see audiences in front of his eyes!"

Typist Under Bail In Shooting Case

Hazel Irene Tadlock, 19-year-old stenographer, was held for grand jury action yesterday when she was arraigned in Police Court charged with shooting her employer, John S. McCauley, 32, of 1762 Columbia road northwest, March 30.

Judge John P. McMahon set bail at $500 when McCauley at the preliminary hearing explained he had dismissed the girl before she shot him in the arm. He admitted under questioning, however, that he had struck Miss Tadlock "to put her in her place."

Miss Tadlock's attorneys pressed McCauley for an explanation. He admitted he had served five years in a Maryland prison for attempted murder and is now under indictment here on embezzlement charges.

McCauley said he picked up Miss Tadlock while she was hitch-hiking here from her home in Briceville, Tenn., and gave her a job. The shooting climaxed an argument over back salary.

Health Officers Adopt Reports, Close Parleys

Outline Plans for Attacking Venereal Diseases and Trailer Sanitation.

Two hundred public health officials representing every State and territory of the Nation are returning to their homes today bearing new ideas for improvement of their service, ranging from syphilis abatement to more rigid supervision of auto trailers.

They ended their annual conference yesterday with the Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service after adopting committee reports which outline methods of attacking the venereal disease problem, tell what should be done to keep yellow fever out of this country, urge strict attention be paid sanitation facilities of trailers and advise on the spending of social security funds.

Miss Josephine Roche, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, told the delegates that the social security act is "only a bare beginning" toward improving the Nation's physical welfare.

"As a result of the act's first year of operation," she said, "more than 1,000 additional public health nurses, more than 600 additional doctors and nearly 500 additional experts in the field of sanitary engineering were at work in the various States."

Health Units Established.

"Full-time health departments had been established in 200 additional counties, and nearly 2,000 health officers, nurses and sanitary engineers were taking the special training courses made possible under the act's provisions."

The conference adopted a resolution, drafted by a committee headed by Dr. Henry D. Chadwick, of Massachusetts, that every State health department institute an oral hygiene or dental health program and that the Public Health Service allot funds for facilities to train dentists for this type of work.

The committee headed by Dr. Robert H. Riley, Maryland director of health, presented a report on public health control of syphilis, which is expected to be used as a model throughout the country in the growing crusade to stamp out that disease.

Provision of adequate diagnostic and treatment facilities, sound epidemiological studies, co-operation with the private physician, an aggressive educational program, enactment of effective legislation and continuous research, are recommended in the report.

State health departments should provide the private practitioner with free drugs and laboratory service for anti-syphilitic work, postage-paid forms for the reporting of new cases, hospitalization of their indigent patients and other special aid, the Riley committee recommended.

To Meet Fever Problems.

Warning that inter-American airplane service is closing the gap between yellow fever infested jungles of the Southern Hemisphere and the mainland to the north, a special committee suggested means of meeting the problem. Its chairman was Dr. Felix J. Underwood, of Mississippi.

"The present speed of air travel is such that a person from infected territory may now proceed via a Brazilian seaport to Miami within the incubation period of yellow fever," the conference was told.

"The conclusion seems inescapable that we must look forward to a time when persons infected with yellow fever will arrive from time to time in the United States territory that is now highly infectible."

Improved precautionary measures by air lines and airports, effective surveillance of passengers coming from infected areas, and redoubled efforts to keep Aedes aegypti, the fever-bearing mosquito, under control, were among the recommendations.

H. H. Bacon, 45, Funeral Is Today

Word was received here yesterday of the death in New York of Henry Hopkins Bacon, 45, Federal inspector in the alcohol tax unit, for many years a resident of Washington.

Bacon succumbed to a heart attack Tuesday. A native of Toledo, Ohio, he was a veteran of the World War, and came to the Government service as a messenger here. He had been with the Internal Revenue Bureau for 15 years.

He was a member of Fort Stevens Post of the American Legion, the Stansbury Lodge of Masons, Almas Temple of the Mystic Shrine and the Tall Cedars of Lebanon. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Iola Bacon, and a son, Harold H. Bacon. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. today at Hines undertaking establishment, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Six funeral processions entered the burial grounds while the strikers pitched horseshoes, slept or played cards among the tombstones. The coffins were placed in a receiving vault.

Byrd Will Seek Federal Grant, Loan for Md. U.

President Seeks Construction Fund to Augment State Appropriation.

Not content with the $400,000 increase allotted annually to the University of Maryland by the recent Legislature, President H. C. Byrd disclosed yesterday he would convert the total appropriation, $1,170,000, into a PWA project, thereby increasing the amount to $1,696,000.

By converting the $1,170,000 into a PWA project Byrd will receive a 45 per cent grant from the Federal Government to match the present funds. This Federal appropriation will amount to $526,000.

Although Byrd's announcement came somewhat as a surprise to them, State fiscal officers declared there apparently were no obstacles to such a move.

Meanwhile, Byrd was scheduled to contact Federal authorities in Washington to sound them out on the proposal.

Scientist Calls Tahiti Colony Defense for Intermarriage

By the United Press.

Cambridge, Mass., April 9.—A noted American scientist tonight pointed to descendants of the British mutineers of the Bounty and their Tahitian wives to prove, in effect, that it is all right for cousins, nieces and uncles to intermarry.

Romantic Pitcairn Island in the South Seas, where descendants of Fletcher Christian and his band of mutineers live, is a place where "practically everyone is related to all other members of the community," Dr. H. L. Shapiro, of New York's Museum of Natural History, told fellow scientists.

Tracing the Pitcairn colony's origin, Shapiro said it was established in 1790 by the 9 men and 12 or 13 Tahitian women, together with 6 Tahitian men.

"The present population—202—is descended from six of the mutineers and the Tahitian women," Shapiro said at the annual meeting of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists at Harvard. "None of the Tahitian men left descendants. The colony is now in its fourth, fifth and sixth generations from the original cross."

Not only did the marriage of relative to relative produce healthy stock, he said, but the women born between 1815 and 1839 were "amazingly prolific" and bore an average of 12 children each.

The scarcity of the population and the extreme isolation of the island make it necessary for the young men to choose mates from relatives, he told the group.

This land of cousins, where two languages, English and a mixture of Tahitian and English, are spoken, has advanced mentally as well as physically. Compulsory education, equal suffrage for men and women and a "community fund" for the needy are laws of the island.

When the mutineers fled Tahiti in fear of British prosecution for taking the Bounty and setting Capt. Bligh and loyal members of the crew adrift in small boats, there was neither compulsory education nor suffrage in England, Shapiro said.

The present laws resulted from a blending of Tahitian and English cultures and the intellectual capacity of the islanders, cut off from the influence of the outside world.

'Proud' Sects Ask U. S. Aid to Block PWA School Loan

By the Associated Press.

Pennsylvania Amishmen and Mennonites, "too proud" to accept Federal money, asked the Justice Department yesterday to proceed under criminal statutes against their school board on grounds that a PWA grant for a new school was obtained illegally.

A committee of four, from East Lampeter Township, in the somber garb of their faith, conferred for an hour with James J. Waters, special Department of Justice attorney. He said afterward "the complaint was received in the routine way the same as any other complaint and we'll submit it to the Assistant Attorney General."

John N. Landberg, their counsel, said "these people have no debts, no jail, no poorhouse, and they resent this. They never asked for the grant. It's forcing alms on them when they're too proud to ask for it and don't need it."

The PWA has approved a $56,500 grant and has advanced $31,250 of it.

Secretary Ickes, through a press aide, said, "If they don't want it they don't have to have it, but we have signed, sealed and delivered papers saying they do want it."

Educator Assails School Propaganda

Spokane, Wash., April 8 (AP).—School teachers who test their pet theories by spreading "propaganda" in classrooms drew criticism today from Orville C. Pratt, president of the National Education Association.

"The teacher is a citizen and has exactly the same rights, no less, no more, as other citizens; but no citizen, teacher or not, has any right to use the schools to spread his particular brand of propaganda," Pratt told a meeting of the Northwest Education Association.

ury, is looking over the whole field of taxation with a view to finding where new levies could be imposed, or where inequities in the present system could be eliminated. It is also said that Arthur H. Kent, assistant general counsel of the Treasury, is studying the undivided profits tax to find whether "loopholes" uncovered in March returns may be plugged.

With expenditures for relief already higher than anticipated, and revenues definitely off, there is a widespread belief that some revamping of the tax laws is inevitable.

Estimates To "Tell Story."

The President next week plans to submit his revision of budget estimates in his message requesting relief appropriations for the next fiscal year, but Robinson gave no intimation of what the figure will be.

Morgenthau has suggested that these relief estimates, once made public, "will tell the story."

The President tentatively mentioned $1,500,000,000 in his original budget estimates, but Capitol talk since has placed the figure much lower, ranging between $1,200,000,000 and $1,400,000,000. Relief spending for the fiscal year to date has been at the rate of about $2,000,000,000 a year.

In his interview with reporters, the majority leader commented on the loss in Treasury revenue, but pointed out that some of the larger taxpayers had asked for extensions and much of the loss might be recouped.

Robinson told of discussions with leaders espousing new measures requiring Federal educational aid to the Senate, farm tenancy appropriations and housing financing. He said he had raised with them the question of where the money would come from, and they suggested in turn it might come out of relief funds.

Robinson said that as a result of his conversations he is led to believe an effort may be made to cut down relief appropriations to provide money for other new programs.

As opposed to proposals to cut relief spending, the United States Conference of Mayors is urging $2,200,000,000 in relief appropriations for the next fiscal year, and one bloc of House members is demanding $2,400,000,000. Robinson admitted any increase in estimates would make the budget problem "more pressing."

Workman Burned in Boat Fire Here

One man was burned yesterday by fire on the cabin cruiser Martha, which was being cleaned in dry dock at Fourteenth and Water streets southwest.

Firemen said W. P. Barnes, 31, of 25 L street southwest, nearly had extinguished the flames, which originated in some oily rags on the boat's deck, when they arrived. Barnes was burned on the hands and legs.

Barnes, it was said, was scraping and washing the boat when the rags became ignited. Damage was estimated at $50. The cruiser is owned by T. T. Keane, of the Southern Hotel Supply Co.

Hotel Switches To String Music At Dinner Hour

Swing, However, Still the Order at Shoreham One-to-Two Club.

By Chanticleer.

There's another new policy in "strings" at the Shoreham. Its string music now at dinner, strings only, from 8 to 10 in the ballroom. Can you picture anything more sensational? No fast truckin', no loud blaring—just sweet and quiet music in what they tell you there in the ballroom is the real traditional Shoreham manner.

Barnee, the old interpreter of grand music, has "interpreted" the will of the majority, and has decided on those light, symphonic and sweet popular things for the dinner guest. The kind of music that permits light conversation—and easy conversation while you have your several courses.

However—if you must swing (and who doesn't on occasions) there is the One-to-Two Club, just after midnight, when you can swing to beat the band with the dizzy Curfew Club.

It's a special Cherry Blossom Revue at the Lotus, with plenty of diverting young people cavorting over the floor. Especially a new chorus of "St. Regis Girls." The individual stars are Beryl and Martinez, a pair of Cuban dance exponents; William Ebs and company, in a smart ventriloquism act; Norma and Dey, soft-shoe rhythm artists, and Evelyn Knight, introducing some new ditties. Also, of course, Al Norton and the Bill Strickland orchestra.

It will be amateur night at Boulevard Farms tonight—and that means plenty of fun for everyone. Down the Memorial highway, just beyond Alexandria, with plenty of good food of the fried chicken and steak type.

Sande Williams is especially gay this week, as he leads his orchestra at Carlton's El Patio. Sande, you see, has just purchased a new coupe, and what is nicer than a new automobile and these spring days? Edith Delaney is pleasing the customers to no end with her tap dancing. Next week it will be a new Mexican dance team. First appearance in "thees countree."

"The Dance Tokyo" is the new hit offered this week by Maestro Arthur Warren at the Wardman Park's Metronome Room. He picked up the tune from a record and made his own smart arrangement. He also is featuring "Japan" from Berge's Oriental Suite.

The Russian has not only a sense of humor, but a timely one. The other evening Mischa Markoff, emmcee at the Russian Troika, advised the audience that the orchestra was going on a sit-down strike! Kiwanians Hear Talk on Defense

Admission that the Regular Army and the National Guard is only 40 per cent as strong as allowed under the 1920 National defense act was made by Col. Edmund L. Gruber at an Army Day luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Mayflower yesterday. Col. Gruber is attached to Operations and Training Branch of the General Staff.

Col. Gruber pointed with pride, however, to the fact that appropriations for research and modernization of the Army gradually had grown from a low point of $4,000,000 to the current one of $70,000,000. He emphasized that the Army had learned its lesson from the World War.

On the Air Today

The Columbia Broadcasting System, which has been playing dead dog insofar as television is concerned, suddenly blossomed forth this last week with plans for a super-television set-up in New York. The Chrysler Building has been selected as the site for the television and sound transmitters.

C. B. S. has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to construct a station to operate at peak power of 30 kilowatts (30,000 watts)—equal to that of a transmitter soon to be constructed on the Eiffel Tower in Paris and which had been described as the most powerful television station in existence.

The Columbia transmitter will be on the seventy-fourth floor of the skyscraper and will incorporate the latest developments in high power band design. Because it will operate on a frequency somewhere between 42 and 56 megacycles—that is a wave band which can be picked up only as far as the distance from the antenna to the horizon—it is expected that the station will provide coverage within a radius of approximately 40 miles over a total area of about 4,800 square miles.

The Chrysler Building was selected as the best location after an exhaustive study of the New York skyline. Most of Manhattan's population is situated to the north of the building and few skyscrapers are in that direction, hence minimizing the refraction by steel skeletons.

Almost simultaneously with this announcement comes word from N. B. C. that field tests of R. C. A. experimental television with the new 441-line definition are being resumed. And on the largest scale ever undertaken in the United States. Test programs will be televised daily from the N. B. C. transmitter in the Empire State Building. More than 75 television receivers will be used to check the transmission.

Radio tries an all-Negro production tonight—that is, on a commercial basis. The same company that sponsored Rudy Vallee for years is bringing Harlem to the air with Eddie Green, the comic who broke into radio under Vallee's direction, and Gee Gee James as costars. The script will be prepared by Octavus Roy Cohen. Musically, it will feature Louis Armstrong and his orchestra. The theme will be hot rhythms and rib-tickling humor.

House Refuses To Investigate Alien Activity

Resolution by Dickstein Tabled in Roaring Voice Vote.

By the Associated Press.

A proposal for an investigation of "un-American activities and propaganda" went down to a defeat in the House yesterday.

A roaring voice vote tabled the resolution, offered by Representative Dickstein (Democrat), New York.

"Why should the House of Representatives wish to do anything more to stir up racial and religious hatred and bigotry?" demanded Representative Warren (Democrat), North Carolina.

"Why create an investigating committee every time somebody says 'boo?'"

Dickstein had presented testimony that 200,000 Nazi storm troopers have organized in the United States under the leadership of Fritz Kuhn, of Detroit.

German Uniforms Cited.

Representative Taylor (Republican), Tennessee, said men are training in German uniforms every Sunday at a Long Island camp. At a New Jersey camp, he said, "children five or six years of age are taught reverence for the German government."

Referring to assertions Communists were involved in sit-down strikes, Taylor said:

"It seems to me recent developments certainly warrant an investigation of this type."

Representative Maverick (Democrat), Texas, one of the "liberal bloc," which was in the van of the opposition, protested that "this is nothing in God's world but a witch hunt."

Dies Asks Deportation.

Representative Dies (Democrat), Texas, demanded the House Immigration Committee approve mandatory deportation of criminal aliens and those advocating violent action against the Government.

"Recent developments," said the Texan, a bitter critic of sit-down strikes, "have shown beyond any question that it is imperative for the Federal Government to take action to rid the country of the undesirable alien element which is responsible for lawless activities.

"We have many aliens whose primary purpose is to foment discord in the United States."

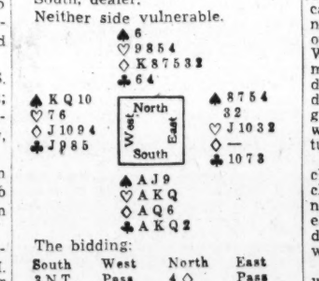
Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Falling Over a Squeeze.

Some of my expert friends used to say of Dr. S. that he wouldn't recognize a squeeze even if he fell over one. The criticism was more witty than accurate, since the gentleman actually "fell over" a remarkable squeeze recently and made a doubled slam contract. Poetic justice was served since the doubler happened to be one of the critics. This was the deal:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 N T	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
6 N T	Dble.	Pass	Pass
Pass.

South's opening bid was a very good one and North was justified in making a slam-try with his six-card suit. (Naturally, any response to an opening bid of three notrump must be construed as a slam-try.) But South's bid of six notrump was too risky to be sound. Six diamonds would have been much safer and would have made without any trouble. West, an expert, would not ordinarily have doubled a slam contract. Since Dr. S. was to play the hand, however, he felt sure that the double would not give him away too much and might well turn out to be very profitable.

West opened the King of spades, and South won with the Ace. When Dr. S. saw the apparently solid diamonds he felt sorry that he hadn't redoubled. But he changed his mind when the Ace of diamonds elicited only a small spade from East.

Disconsolately regarding the loss of his slam, Dr. S. attempted to establish dummy's long heart. On the third round of hearts West discarded, so that declarer's plan of establishing dummy's extra heart did not succeed. But something came to pass which declarer had never anticipated. He had "fallen over" a continuing squeeze! For West had found it impossible to make a safe discard. To release a diamond was unthinkable, since dummy's entire suit would then be good. A discard of either black suit was just as bad, however, as it turned out.

West actually chose to let go a club. A little more hopefully, declarer cashed his high clubs, and noticed that his deuce of clubs was established as a result of West's discard. When he led that, West was squeezed again.

Once again a diamond discard was unthinkable so West discarded the ten of spades. But this was just as good for South. He merely led the nine of spades, knocking out West's Queen. The rest of declarer's cards were then high.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Is Man Justified in Quarreling With Girl Friend Because She Wears Another's Flowers?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A certain young man had been dating a certain young lady for some time. He was very fond of her and she professed to be very fond of him. On Easter Sunday the two were invited to dinner at the home of a friend several miles out of Washington. The young man was expected to provide transportation to and from their host's home. On receiving the invitation, the young man, being eager to do right by the situation, asked the young lady what kind of flowers he should order for her Easter corsage. She said not to buy a corsage but to give her a potted plant for her room instead. He did so, although continuing to protest that she should have a corsage for the dinner engagement.

* * * *

Now, it happens that the young lady has another man friend who lives in a distant city. On Easter morning, with just time enough to keep the dinner date, the young man called for the young lady and to his great astonishment found her "dolled up" in a corsage which the out-of-town friend had sent her. Harsh words followed and wounds were inflicted which have not since healed.

* * * *

The question is: should the lady have worn another man's flowers when she had refused to let this man buy her a corsage? Or even if he hadn't offered to do so, should she have worn another man's flowers when going out with him at his expense? He was plenty mad and wonders if he were justified. I don't know, but I think he had a right to be angry. Please tell me what you think. C. M. W.

What to Believe.

DEAR C. M. W.: I think the young man was more to blame than the young woman for that foolish quarrel on Easter morning. It was almost inevitable that she should have demurred when he suggested sending flowers and asked her what kind she preferred. As a matter of fact, I think her suggestion that he send a potted plant for her room was indicative of real affection. She was probably trying to spare his pocketbook, for one thing, since potted plants are usually less expensive than corsages; and for another thing, she probably thought a plant, being longer-lived than a corsage, would be a more lasting memento of the day.

* * * *

Having dismissed his proffer of a corsage, however, it was certainly tactless of her to meet him at the door on Easter morning wearing another man's floral offering. No girl adept in handling men would have done so thoughtless a thing. The man was bound to feel hurt and humiliated at having been beaten to the goal post, so to speak, by a rival. And that is where she erred. But her motives may have been the best. Since he had so strongly urged a corsage, she may have thought he wouldn't feel she was appropriately dressed without a posy in her lapel for Easter, and therefore, donned the unexpected donation in the naive belief it would stir his admiring approval. At worst, she wore it only because it made her look prettier, or possibly because she felt it would do no harm to let him know she had another thoughtful admirer.

* * * *

Even so, there was absolutely no excuse for an exchange of harsh words over the incident. It seems to me the young man could have registered objection to the alien adornment without giving irremediable offense. He should have carried it off on a lighter note. He might have said: "Young woman, you go right back into the house and put on my potted plant. I won't have you wearing another man's flowers under my very nose." Or he might have said, "Blast you, Mary, you've ruined my day. I make a noble sacrifice of my more generous and esthetic instincts, thinking I'm pleasing your economical soul, and now you make me feel like a heel. Put that corsage in the ash can!"

* * * *

A man of social knowledgeability, so to speak, doesn't ask a young woman if she wants flowers and what kind she prefers. He simply sends flowers without a by-your-leave, and chooses the kind which seem to him most suitable to her type. M. H.

A Widower's Problem.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a constant reader of The Post and your valuable advice. There is one question I have not seen discussed in your column. Some months ago my wife died. I have taken the loss very hard. Time does not seem to help much. I feel that if I could occasionally talk with some woman friend my mind would be diverted from the past and the world would seem a more pleasant place in which to live.

* * * *

As our married life was so happy I would not want it to appear that I did not show the greatest respect in the world for my deceased wife. I would appreciate your advice as to how long, in such circumstances, a widower should wait before having a woman friend. Sincerely.

WIDOWER.

DEAR WIDOWER: Because a man loses his wife, it does not necessarily follow that he must avoid the society of women for a given period of time. He needs women friends during the period of mourning just as he needs men friends and it is wholesome and natural that he should seek their company. My advice is to find a woman friend now if you feel such companionship would make life seem more worth living. You will be showing your wife's memory real respect if you continue as a widower for a couple of years; but this does not mean that you are not entitled to friendship with women during that time. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Perfume With Jewelry Latest Novelty in Paris

Paris (U.P.).—Perfumed jewelry is the latest novelty in the French shops. Brooches or clips in gold or silver and studded with different colored brilliants are manufactured with a tiny, cotton-filled cavity which can be filled with a favorite perfume. These new brooches and clips follow the same principle as the enameled "perfume balls" worn on chains about the neck 15 years ago. An eye dropper is used for refilling.

A Chic Hat You Can Make Yourself

THE smart toque above, designed by Louiseanders, can be very easily and inexpensively made at home. The only materials needed are the cellophane straw, crochet needles, and grosgrain ribbon for trimming. Six circular discs comprise the hat—fashioned into a toque-shape with a decided forward movement. Accented by a crip nose veil, you have an ideal hat to accompany suits or almost any daytime ensemble. Directions for making this celver hat may be had by sending a 3-cent stamp with a request to Ethel Ehlen, Post Fashion Editor. If you are ensemble-minded, you could match the toque with a flapjack purse, and belt with miniature disc buckles. Directions for these are also available.

Child Resents Hasty Slap as Unfair to Him

Parents Warned to Control Tempers in Discipline of Young.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

SOME CHILDREN seem always to be avoiding blows. Every time Tom is caught in mischief he instinctively draws his head to one side when his father or mother reproves him. The gesture is a complete give-away. He expects to be struck, and more often than not has been, either by his parents or by someone else in authority, and struck before he had a chance to defend himself. He expects, not justice after a fair hearing, but an angry blow, whether he is guilty or not.

Children Resentful.

Susy's response to a sharp word looks a little different, but is basically the same. Her eyes grow shifty, her expression sullen and withdrawn. She acts like a trapped animal.

Both children are resentful and rebellious. They feel that everyone is against them, and that, guilty or innocent, they have no chance of a fair deal.

It is not always the parents' fault. A school bully, a trusted maid, anyone who has much contact with or care of the child, may be responsible for his cringing reaction. Mrs. Brown, for example, who never raised her hand or her voice to her children, was shocked one day at her son's flinching as from a blow.

A Danger Signal.

The first symptom of physical or spiritual "ducking" is a danger signal not to be disregarded. Somewhere discipline has been at fault, and unless a change is made at once, ducking will become the child's habitual response to life.

The parent who is quick with his hands or his tongue should always be on his guard in dealing with children. Better never to punish or scold than habitually to do it in the heat of the moment and without giving the child a chance to plead his cause.

Women's Shoes Made of Wood

Chemist Reveals They Are Among Swankiest in Style.

Women wear wooden shoes, but do not know it, according to Dr. J. V. Hoffman, of the University of North Carolina, where developments in synthetic chemistry will be discussed at the ninety-third meeting of the American Chemical Society on April 12.

Stockings, lingerie and a great variety of other apparel are also derived from forestry products, Dr. Hoffman pointed out.

"Wooden shoes are among the swankiest, being made of 'snake skin,' which is a wood fiber made possible through chemistry," he added.

"To the Nation's wood crop the chemist has added millions of dollars in value because the uses to which wood can now be put are so much more numerous than they formerly were.

"We live in wood; we keep warm by it; we keep cool by it, as it is used for insulating purposes; we wear it; we burn it and use it for fire protection; and we even feed it to our cattle."

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, April 8.

IN SPITE of the fact that flocks of her fans still pour into the dear old red-plush Empire Theater to see her in Barney Shaw's "Candida," Katharine Cornell threatens to shut up shop for the year. She and dear Null Coward are about the most independent cusses in show business. When they don't want to act any more, they just stop—even though mobs are still fighting their way to the box office clutching large bills.

ALICE HUGHES

Another angle is that perhaps Kit is bowing out to get away from the movie scouts, who just won't take "no" for an answer, in spite of La Cornell's flat refusal to go to Hollywood and perform for the camera. She's certainly dogged about it—and she's absolutely the only top-flight trouper of our stage who refuses the huge boodle that the flickers offer. Stanch Kitty! She was the original hope for Olan in "The Good Earth," but finally voted even that down, though she was interested.

The latest to try her arts of wheedling on Cornell has been Beatrice Kaufman, wife of Ace-Playwright George S. and Eastern story editor for Sam Goldwyn, who is Miriam Hopkins' boss. But all the pleas and cajolery of the handsome Bea has come to naught. Kate won't be had!

Once I had the chance to ask her if she'd ever change her mind. "If a story is written that I feel I am the one to interpret, and that can be better done on the screen than the stage, I might," she told me. But that story hasn't come along yet—and the fascinating Cornell remains unique among the lady troupers of the stage! Kit doesn't want all the money in the world—and she piles up gobs of the stuff as an actress-manager!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—I'm still battling the horrible cold I caught covering our Easter parade from an open car during a whipping gale from the north. I froze. And all I saw for my two-hour agony was a mess of the fur coats I'd been gazing at all winter! March roared out like a Clyde Beatty lion, and my spouse sourly predicts skiing and skating in Central Park on May Day!

Even so, the blithe spirits among the young married folks in the Park avenue sector are planning a spring fever dance for late this month. That's a new one. As nearly as I can figure, the proper thing will be for the young gents to approach the young ladies and mumble, "Well, hon, shall we doze this one out?" Dancing and spring fever don't seem to mix—unless the step is the Australian crawl!

Our white Russians, princes and generals and all, are unusually excited and guttural just now, for their bell-wether, the simon-pure Romanoff, Grand Duchess Marie, has finally turned up in town after a five-month visit in India. Missed a lot of dandy parties, Marie—but you were probably fed up with meaningless curtseys and hand-kissing, anyway!

Out in fabulous Los Angeles one of our sex's most persistent traits finally caused a marital explosion and bust-up! Banker Percy Morgan divorced his actress wife, Mayo Methot, because she kept "moving the furniture around to give the house a little different atmosphere!" Anyone of you who has ever pushed Poppa's pet chair into another corner of the parlor knows all too well what happened when Perc came home and found the furniture juggled!

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

When Isaac Newton observed that sunlight passed through a triangular glass prism was split up into a number of primary colors exactly like the rainbow, he thought he was making a discovery in the purer physics of light. As a matter of fact, he was starting something which slowly developed into a distinct department of treatment in medicine.

The next step after his did not come until 1800, when William Herschel was one day playing with a thermometer exposed to the light of the colors produced by Newton's prism. He noticed that if the thermometer went into the red end of the spectrum, the temperature went up, and even more surprising was the fact that if he moved it beyond the red, where there was no light to be seen, the thermometer went even higher.

Experiments Tried.

The next year Ritter was experimenting with the spectrum rays on various chemicals, and he found that there were certain visible rays beyond the violet end of the spectrum which would darken silver chloride.

These discoveries have within the present century been utilized in various forms of light treatment to increase the heat of a part in the treatment of many diseases. Everyone knows the beneficial effect of heat in painful conditions, no matter where located. In the old days, the only means we had to create this heat was by hot water bags or hot oils or hot compresses. With the use of lights, however, we can produce far greater and more penetrating heat.

Electrical waves similar to those used for the production of radio have been used for the creation of even higher degrees of internal heat. This so-called diathermy consists of metal plates applied to the surface of the skin, in which high frequency radio waves are set up and will generate heat in the body tissues due to the resistance offered by the tissues to the electric current forced through them.

Will Create Heat.

This resistance is greater in the case of diseased and inflamed tissues and, therefore, if there is an inflammation deep inside a joint, the diathermy wave will create heat just exactly at that special spot instead of on the surface of the body, such as the hot-water bottle or electric pad.

This is probably the most efficient method of applying heat to painful and inflamed tissues underneath the surface of the body and in some instances, as in arthritis and pelvic inflammations in women, it is wonderfully effective, even obviating the necessity for surgical operation.

Heat is now used, however, for many general diseases, it having been found that the production of a high fever is beneficial in many generalized infections and constitutional diseases. All the venereal diseases are better treated with the aid of artificial fever, and are sometimes treated by it exclusively.

Editor's note—Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending ten cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of The Washington Post. The pamphlets are "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "Care of the Hair and Skin."

Season's Dress and Make-Up Emphasizes Theme of Youth

Girls, in Beauty Rites, May Profit by Film Stars' Example.

By Carolyn Abbott.

YOUTH is this season's theme song. It is emphasized in dress, in make-up and even in the movies. The new era in motion pictures glorifies youth—not the flaming youth of early post-war days, but a natural, glowing, healthy youth.

Young girls in their beauty rites and make-up would do well to follow the example of Hollywood, where the natural, fresh, scrubbed look is the order of the day. Some of the most popular movie actresses, notably Olivia de Havilland, Anita Louise, Simone Simon, Ann Shirley, Mary Maguire and Jane Bryan, who are very young, capitallze their radiance and freshness.

For keeping their youthful beauty these girls all have practically the same formula—and it is a simple one. Most of them use a good soap to cleanse their skin at night and follow it with an astringent. Few of them use night creams, but nearly all of them pay particular attention to their eyes. A boric acid solution is the favored eye wash and many of them use the 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury to make their eyelashes long and luxurious. They all use the tweezers sparingly on their eyebrows.

Sudsy Tub Bath.

After a morning tub bath with sudsy, perfumed soap, the girls prefer a rubdown with eau de cologne. That is the only scent they use during the day. However, in the evening they allow themselves the luxury of a perfume in any of the lighter floral fragrances.

At the beginning of the day and as often during the day as they change their make-up, the girls use cleansing cream, always following it with a dash of cold water and a bit of astringent. The ones who use powder put it over a foundation cream, spread thinly, but many of them pass up face powder during the day. They all like a good, bright lipstick and a tracery of rouge.

When they aren't working, practically all the young youthful beauties of Hollywood get a shampoo and a manicure weekly. If their hair or nails need attention in the meantime, they are all versatile enough to fix it themselves. They all mention a good hand lotion as one of the vital requisites of beauty. Mary Maguire even carries a little flacon of it in her purse so that she can oil her hands every time she washes them.

Some of these girls use mascara and eyebrow pencil when they go waltzing in the evening, but others, as Jane Bryan, don't own such instruments of beauty.

Prefers Scrubbed Look.

Olivia de Havilland says she prefers a scrubbed look to the smooth perfection that can be achieved with a great many cosmetics. She always gives her face two good soapings to a single washing and stirs up rosy cheeks with a complexion brush. Her most prized beauty aid is a super indelible lipstick.

Anita Louise's beauty mania is fresh, fluffy powder puffs, and she takes out a clean one every morning with her fresh hanky.

Now, no screen heroine wants to look hard. She no longer squares her underlip to make herself look dangerous. Movie eyebrows are clean and trim, but are thicker and more distinct than they used to be. Stars have found out that pencil line brows made a face look older, harder and more sophisticated. Overbleached hair is no longer regarded as pretty, and hard, sculptured waves are out.

All stars have lovely, glossy hair, but they work to keep it that way. They all wash their hair very often and are all brush enthusiasts.

Child Genius Also Healthy, Scientist Says

THE CHILD GENIUS long has been misrepresented in the eyes of the public, believes Prof. Harry W. Zorbaugh, director of the New York University clinic for social adjustment of the gifted.

Instead of being a spectacled anemic mother's darling the gifted child is well rounded and likely to possess superior physical development, according to Prof. Zorbaugh.

Gifted children, he says, grow faster than average, walk earlier, sit up sooner and are larger than normal. They also, he says, walk on the palms of their hands and soles of their feet like a bear at an age when other children are crawling about on hands and knees.

Another trait of the gifted child, says Prof. Zorbaugh, is that he displays mental aptitude along one line. He rates higher than average in all types of intellectual tests, plays amicably with other children and often steps into leadership in group games.

CAPITAL MANNERS

Return of Wedding Gifts Follows Ended Betrothal.

By Margaret Wallace.

NO EVENT is a more frequent cause of social embarrassment as the breaking of an engagement that has been announced. The problem is particularly serious when plans for the wedding have been made. Yet there is a code of etiquette to meet this situation. Several points concerning it have been raised by the following letter received by this department.

What shall I do about the wedding presents I have received?" writes one puzzled Washington girl. "I received many presents, some of them handsome. I tried to keep a list but my family and servant unpacked some of the gifts and I am not sure who sent all of them.

"If I send back the gifts how should they be sent? Some of them came by mail and express and others were left at the door. Do you think I will have to write notes explaining that the wedding will not take place? One present I have received I would like to keep very much. Do you think I could send a check for it to the person who sent it to me?

"I have placed the linen I received in one box, books in another place and so forth, and do not know who sent the individual gifts although I have them listed as sending linen or books.

"I have asked some of my friends if they wish their gifts back and they have all said that they do not. My sister thinks I should return them anyway with a polite note of thanks.

"If I do decide to send back the gifts do you think it would be proper to ask individuals what they sent if I do not know? Could I do this on the telephone?

"Is it proper to announce the cancellation of an engagement in the newspapers. The engagement and date of the wedding were announced in the society column."

Of course the wedding gifts must be returned to the sender when the wedding does not take place. Otherwise the recipient is in the position of receiving gifts under false pretenses.

A note of thanks and explanation that the wedding will not take place should accompany each gift. It is proper to return the gifts in the most convenient way, by hand, by mail, parcel post or express. Of course all costs should be paid. It would be bad form to offer to pay for any of the gifts and keep them.

Every effort must be made to return the gifts to the persons who sent them. When there is doubt it is proper to inquire just which gift has been sent. This can be done by telephone or note. Since you have a list of the kind of gifts sent it would be proper to call the sender and say "I have cancelled my wedding and, of course, I am sending back the gifts my friends were so kind as to send me. I tried to keep a careful list but find I have your gift listed as "silver" without any further description. Will you please give me more details so I can return it to you."

It is proper to announce the cancellation of an engagement and wedding if either have been announced in the newspapers.

Ensembles Are Vogue.

Paris (U.P.).—Schiaparelli points out that dress and jacket ensembles are proving the vogue for all times of day. They have been popular for sports wear for some time and this season are being worn for cocktail and informal dinner ensembles.

Alexandria Homes Tour Set May 15

Many Historic Dwellings Will be Opened First Time.

Georgetown Inspection Is Scheduled for Today and Tomorrow.

Many old Alexandria houses, several of which never have been shown before, will be opened May 15 for the tour of historic homes sponsored for the benefit of St. Paul's Church. The church also will be included in the list this season.

St. Paul's was the first of the tours organized in Alexandria, and has been held each spring for eight years, with many visitors coming from other cities. The complete list of houses has not yet been announced, but it is expected that 16 will be opened.

Another tour of old houses in Alexandria is scheduled for April 17, from 11 to 5 o'clock. Col. Charles Beatty Moore, president of the Alexandria Association, is chairman of arrangements, and Mr. Richard Baker, jr., past president of the association, is vice chairman of the committee.

Fifteen houses, many of them of historic interest, will be opened to the public, and there will be a tea from 5 to 7, at Gadsby's tavern. The tavern houses a famous collection of early American furniture.

Among the homes to be opened for this tour is that of Col. and Mrs. Harry N. Cootes, 1020 Prince street. This house has a charming garden at the side, with a small fountain and a pool. The drawing room is furnished with many interesting old pieces picked up by Mrs. Cootes on her travels in Europe, and upstairs there is a beautiful library of old upholstered chairs and sofas.

Georgetown Tour.

Many Washington residents, as well as visitors from out of town, will attend the tour of old homes in Georgetown, which will take place today and tomorrow from 1:30 until 5:30. Mrs. William Kerkam, jr., is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and many historic houses will be shown.

Among those who will open their homes for the occasion are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Phelps Dodge, 1645 Thirty-first street; Mrs. John Winant, 1411 Thirty-fourth street; Mrs. Franklin Mott Gunther, 2812 N street; Mr. Victor Sutro, 3019 P street; Mrs. Hare Lippincott, 2806 N street; Mrs. L. M. C. Smith, 3267 N street; Miss Margaret Bisland, 3318 N street; Mrs. Carroll Greenough, 1408 Thirty-first street and Mrs. James Scott Vance, 2823 Q street.

There are two interesting garden tours scheduled for the next month. One is the Maryland Garden pilgrimage, which is the annual house and garden tour of the Maryland Garden clubs, from April 30 through May 8. Mrs. Millard Tydings, wife of Senator Tydings of Maryland, is chairman of the Washington committee on arrangements.

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, is a member of the committee, which includes, Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, president of the Woman's National Democratic Club, whose home on the Eastern Shore, Wide Hall, will be open for the tour. Senator and Mrs. Tydings' home at Oakington, Md., with its 200 year old boxwood, will also be shown.

Opening Bostwick House.

Not all the homes and gardens are open each day of the pilgrimage. Ten homes each in Prince Georges and Calvert counties are opened April 30, to remain open through May 1, when 13 homes and gardens in Charles County and 14 in St. Marys open for May 1-2.

In Prince Georges County, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Christophane are opening Bostwick House; Mr. and Mrs. Brice Clagett, Beale's Pleasure; Mr. and Mrs. Beale Bowie, Mount Lubentia; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Knapp, Bowieville; Mr. and Mrs. W. Booth Bowie, Fairview; Dr. and Mrs. Reverdy Sasscer, Compton Bassett; Mrs. Edward J. Smith, Melwood Farm, and Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Dower House.

Returns from the pilgrimage will assist in the restoring of colonial Annapolis, which has more old buildings today than exist in any other city in the country.

Also of interest to garden lovers will be the annual tour of historic gardens of Virginia, sponsored by the Alexandria Garden Club, which is scheduled to take place from April 26 to May 1.

Among gardens to be shown are those at Woodlawn, the home of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring; Rippon Lodge, the oldest house in Virginia, home of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ellis, and Hollin Hall.

Celebrate Art Club Birthday

Mr. Charles L. Turner, Miss Janet Coons and Mrs. Samuel A. Kimberley were among those taking part in a program at the Arts Club last tvening, celebrating the twenty-first anniversary of its founding. Events on the program depicted high lights in the history of the club.

Many Charter Members Present as Program Is Given Dealing With Highlights of Organization's History; Members in Tableau.

The Arts Club, founded 21 years ago, held a "coming-of-age" party last night at its historic clubhouse, 2017 I street. Many charter members were among those who attended the anniversary dinner which was served in the auditorium and followed by a program dealing with highlights in the club's history.

A feature of the occasion was a tableau representing the club family's twenty-first birthday party. The Arts Club was represented by Mr. Charles Turner, who was selected because he is just the age of the club. Mr. Felix Mahoney, one of the charter members, was the grandfather; Mrs. Lydia Bush-Brown, whose father, the distinguished sculptor, was the first president, portrayed the grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Leisenring, also charter members, the parents; Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, the aunt, and Miss Janet Coon, one of the youngest and newest members, the baby.

A toast was proposed by Mr. Leisenring just before dessert was served. All of the guests joined in drinking the health of the club and Mr. Lewis Lofton Moneyway, the president, offered a birthday wish before the cake with its 21 candles was cut and passed by Mr. Turner and Miss Coons.

Miss Clara Saunders and Mr. Moneyway were hostess and host at the dinner. Mr. Moneyway presided as toastmaster and introduced several of the members who reviewed important events in the life of the Arts Club. Mr. Leisenring told of its organization; Mrs. Samuel Kimberly, in a dress of 1916, also told of its beginning and Mr. Robert LeFevre read the first minutes. Miss Marie Saunders described the French fair, Foire aux Croutes, held several years ago; Mrs. Willoughby Chesley, the reception for Mrs. Roosevelt; Miss Anne Ives, the production of the Greek play and the amusing incident of the fire at the clubhouse; Mrs. Charles Bittinger, her husband's term as president; Mr. William Hepner, the new garden, and Dr. Davison, the symphonologues.

At the table with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Etz, Mr. Turner, Miss Coon, Mrs. Bittinger and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mueller. Spring flowers, in which the colors of pink and yellow predominated, decorated the six large tables at which the guests were seated.

Ambassador and Mme. Saito Are Hosts to Large Group At Reception Celebrating Cherry Blossoms at the Embassy

Members of the Committee and Others Present, Despite the Fact That Rain Forced the Postponement of Scheduled Festival.

The Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Saito, despite the fact that rain caused postponement of the Cherry Blossom Festival, welcomed members of the committee and others whom they had invited to come to the embassy afterwards at an informal reception last evening. It was held at 10:30, the hour originally set.

Mrs. Louis Caldwell, whose young daughter, Barbara, is one of the attendants in the festival, of which Sakiko, daughter of the Ambassador and Mme. Saito, is queen, assisted at the affair.

Mme. Saito Gowned in Black.

Mme. Saito wore a black satin frock with a jacket, the material figured in coral and yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Caldwell was also in black satin, with a spray of cherry blossoms tucked in a silver clip at one shoulder, and also in her white hair.

On a table near where they received with the Ambassador was a bouquet of American beauty roses which had been arranged by little Sakiko. They were given her at the children's party at the Wardman Park Hotel in the afternoon.

The little cherry festival queen and her two attendants, Barbara Caldwell, and her young sister, Masako, had been obliged to go to bed before the hour of the party. Among the guests last night was Prince Konoye, of Japan, who is a junior at Princeton, and came to Washington to attend the festival. He is a guest at the embassy during his spring vacation. Prince Konoye, who is preparing to enter the diplomatic service, is one of the foremost young golfers in his country and won the club championship this season at Princeton.

Other distinguished Japanese guests included the three delegates to the Textile Conference, all of whom had been received at the White House in the afternoon. They were Mr. J. Kitaoka, who took pleasure in telling of his conversation with the President at the tea; Mr. K. Zen and Mr. H. Koizumi.

The house was decorated with bouquets of pink roses, Japanese iris, one vase of amaryllis, and on the long buffet table in the dining room, red and white carnations.

Among Other Guests at Function.

Among other guests were Commissioner and Mrs. Melvin C. Hazen; Mrs. George Allen, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Michael Keane, and her sister, Miss Helen Keane; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pynchon and Mr. and Mrs. George Romney, Mr. and Mrs. C. Melvin Sprague, accompanied by their daughter; Col. and Mrs. Horatio Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Wren, Senator Tom Connally; Miss Emily Law, who designed the dresses for Sakiko and her attendants; Representative Luther Johnson and Representative Ewing Thomason; Mrs. Martin Codel, Mr. and Mrs. David Saperstein, Mr. Alfred Nuffer, brother of Mrs. Caldwell; Mr. Melvin Sharpe, chairman of the festival, with Mrs. Sharpe and their daughter, Miss Dolly Sharpe, who wore a frock of embroidered white organdy with a narrow blue ribbon sash; Miss Adelaide Emily, who also wore a gown of embroidered white organdy over a pink slip and pink rosebuds in her hair; the chief of the park service, Mr. C. Marshall Finnan, and Mrs. Finnan, who wore a frock of black net, the hem and short jacket embroidered in coral and green, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kaufman.

Also present were Mme. Kitazawa, wife of the third secretary of the embassy, who has been here but three weeks. She wore a gown of white satin with ruffles forming the skirt. Mme. O. Kazaki, of the embassy staff, was also present, wearing a black frock with gold threads, and Miss Fuqui, governess of the daughters of the Ambassador, who was dressed in native costume, assisted during the evening.

Underwood & Underwood.

Miss Mary Hinshaw, as the spirit of the cherry blossoms, presents a bouquet of the flowers to Sakiko Saito, daughter of the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Saito. This colorful ceremony was part of a celebration of "Buddha's Birthday," an ancient Oriental fete, observed yesterday on the lawn of the Wardman Park Hotel until rain halted the festivities. Left to right, Mme. Saito, Masako Saito, Sakiko Saito, Barbara Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Caldwell, and Miss Hinshaw.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

Maybe it did rain yesterday afternoon, but the chilly drops from the skies failed to dampen the spirits of the youngsters who were attending the cherry blossom lawn party at the Wardman Park Hotel.

A few whirlographs, my readers: The cherry trees dotting the lawn, the tiny pink blossoms out in spite of the cold breezes—the attractive red and white pagoda that housed the orchestra and from which the little dancers and the tumblers emerged——

The youthful spectators wriggling around in their chairs in an effort to watch everything at the same time——

Hajimo, Eiko and Hirako Yammoto in the box of honor, interested, dignified and as proud as Punch — the two little girls wearing coats and hats to match, one in tan and the other in mustard green——

Sakiko and Masako Saito and Barbara Caldwell, with their mothers, Mme. Saito and Mrs. Louis Caldwell, arriving from the Tidal Basin rehearsals, graciously posing for pictures, even while their bright eyes were eagerly scanning the crowd for familiar faces and trying to see what part of the program was going on——

The group of irrepressible youngsters sitting just in front of us, who all but pounced upon the waiters when they paraded by with their sugar masterpieces, including a Japanese parasol, from which tumbled cookies and candies—a wee Japanese scene, house, garden, curving bridge and cherry blossom trees, to say nothing of the dainty kimonoed figures——

Then came the rain—the clouds waited just long enough for the little guests to receive their refreshments (ice cream in flower shapes with tiny paper parasols stuck in the molds)——

Standing indoors watching the stream of tots scurry past us, each carefully carrying a plate of ice cream—one boy disgustedly asking, "Is this all—is this the end?"——

Mme. Puga with Carmen, cute child with black curls and wide gray eyes. Little Sakiko Saito handling her bouquet of red roses (given her by Eleanor King) with the grace and ease of a debutante——

Mrs. Arthur Vandenburg with Grandson Johnnie Knight; Mrs. George Holmes with Kathleeen, Mrs. Lyle Wilson with Sally, Mrs. Helen Russell with her son Jack and also Beverly Butcher—all on the way to the Continental Room, whither the rain had banished the party-goers.

Marjorie Williams, missing from Washington for lo these many months, ever since she and Brother Jack Parker motored out to Sacramento for the wedding of their sister, Pat, and Martin Maloney in November—is due back again. Rumors have a way of sounding authentic. We heard that Marge had deserted California and taken up her abode in Seattle. But no—she has not been in Washington State at all. Mrs. Parker and Pat, too, realizing that a trip back East every now and then is really quite essential, are coming but at a different time—so-o-oo it sounds like Reunion in Washington.

All of Johnnie Snure's friends (and their number is legion) will be delighted to know he is beginning to get about again. Not out of the house yet, because, after all, several months in the hospital does rather take one's strength, and that, like departed wealth, is slow to return—but the clan of Snure is famous for its stick-to-it-iveness and it won't be long before John is again seen at his usual haunts.

Maxine Smith is in for an exciting week-end. She is leaving here by plane tomorrow, hopping off for New York City; there a brief landing and then on again to West Point. Sounds like much fun, what with a hop at Cullum Hall, "P-rade" and, if weather permits, perhaps a stroll down Flirtation Walk.

She must have been doing some last-minute shopping for this trip when we saw her yesterday, and how very smart she was. Her suit was of black heavy rough crepe with a cape collar of monkey fur and with this she wore a saucy little straw sailor bedecked with a brief nose veil.

Nats Beat Chattanooga, 4 to 3, as Cascarella Allows Only 3 Hits

This Morning

WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

Lakeland, Fla.

This department's idea of how Clark Griffith would author this column were he a sports writer for a day:

The great national pastime, our own American game, is unquestionably in for a big season. The American League teams are strengthened all down the line and it looks like a dog fight for the pennant this year, which will be healthy for the great American game.

I am not predicting any pennants for the Washington team, I never predict pennants, but I have every reason to believe that Washington fans will have reason to be proud of the club Bucky Harris is bringing back to the Nation's Capital.

POVICH.

It is a fine ball team and Bucky Harris is a fine manager, a great manager, I might say. No better manager ever piloted any team in the history of our great American game, and that is taking in a lot of great managers who have been outstanding figures in our national pastime.

• • • •

I won't predict the pennant, but I won't be surprised if Bucky Harris' team wins it—put it that way. With any kind of a break in the luck, we'll be there or thereabouts at the finish and the team that licks us will know it has been in a fight. Washington teams in our great American pastime have always been fighting teams, win or lose.

• • • •

We arn't afraid of those Yankees, even if they did win the pennant by 19½ games last year. Too many things can happen in baseball. Look at our team of 1934, the same team that won the pennant in 1933. It finished seventh. That's one of the great American game's interesting phases—the uncertainty of it!

• • • •

Some Club, My Boys.

Don't forget, this Washington club beat the Yankees more often last year than any other team in the league and this season with the other clubs strengthened, we're going to get a lot of help in beating those Yankees. Detroit is always tough, so is Cleveland. Boston might click, and the White Sox are no push-overs. The Browns are strengthened and so are the Athletics. Yes, it looks like a grand season for our great national pastime.

• • • •

Washington fans are going to see one of the really great catchers of the great American game when Bucky Harris returns to the Nation's Capital with Shanty Hogan. I have pitched to some fine catchers in my own day, but none could handle a pitcher better than Hogan does and his perseverance in taking off weight is not only a credit to the national game, but a model of perseverance for American youth.

• • • •

My efforts to make Washington a pennant contender have been sincere. When Bucky Harris told me he needed a right-handed hitting outfielder, I bought Al Simmons despite the great cost and have spared no efforts or expense in trying to round up a pennant contender which the Nation's Capital truly deserves, believe you me.

• • • •

Who Me? Never!

From time to time it has caused me some regret to note that I have been accused of interfering with the management of the Washington team on the field and I want to declare myself here and now that once my team is on the field it is completely in the hands of my manager—whoever he happens to be. That is as it should be in the great national pastime, and none of my managers—Clyde Milan, George McBride, Donie Bush, Bucky Harris, Walter Johnson or Joe Cronin—could ever conscientiously complain that I interfered with their judgment on the field.

• • • •

Another thing I want to say is that we will have one of the finest defensive and offensive infields in the history of our great American game. Cecil Travis has developed into a good shortstop, a great shortstop, and it has made our infield. There is no reason why, in time, he should not take his place alongside the really great shortstops of our national pastime.

• • • •

Our boys have been working hard down here in the South and will be in tip-top condition when the curtain goes up on the new season at Griffith Stadium, where there are still plenty of reserved grandstand seats available at $1.25 and $1.10. And of course 9,000 55-cent bleacher seats will be placed on sale on the morning of April 19. All roads will lead to Griffith Stadium on that day.

Morris, Olympic Hero, Signed As New Tarzan for the Movies

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, April 8.—The movies reached out today and plucked Glenn Morris, world champion track star, to play "Tarzan" for the screen.

The sports world knows Morris, Colorado-born farm boy, as the winner of the 1936 Sullivan Trophy, highest honor accorded an amateur athlete. He won it by virtue of winning the decathlon championship in the Olympic games last summer with a record-breaking point total of 7,900.

The tall, good looking Morris hopes it doesn't endanger his amateur standing.

Johnny Weissmuller, former amateur swimming champion, and Buster Crabbe, another tank titlist, promptly lost amateur rating when they became screen "Tarzans."

Under the present set-up, Morris becomes Weissmuller's successor as Tarzan.

"We signed Morris, for one thing, because we wanted an audience to know that it was really 'Tarzan' leaping from tree to tree and hurdling barriers and not a stunt man," said Sol Lesser, who signed him. "Who could do it better than a world's champion?"

Morris, 188 pounds of well-formed muscle, is 24 years old. He married his girlhood sweetheart last year after his triumph in the Berlin games. His home is at Simla, Colo.

"How will you like playing opposite movie queens?"

"Shucks," Morris retorted, smiling. "I think my wife is prettier than any of them."

Georgia Takes Bottles From Umpire Haters

Atlanta, April 8 (AP).—Georgia's State athletic commission struck at pop bottle throwers at sports arenas today, by depriving them of their ammunition.

Chairman Ralph McGill said vendors would be allowed to serve drinks only in paper cups in wrestling and boxing arenas.

He explained that fans who could control their pitches but not their tempers were a constant menace to contestants and referees, to say nothing of innocent bystanders.

Cushman Leads Losers, Tossing in Both of Their Scores.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

College Park, Md., April 8.—Maryland chalked up its initial lacrosse win of the season yesterday in Byrd Stadium by hammering an unfashionable Harvard ten into submission, 12-2.

The Liners started with a rush and with Charlie Ellinger, the Terrapins' all-America attack man, and Bob Neilson, elusive soph, working together had slammed three goals into the net before the Harvard's had settled themselves to the task at hand.

Harvard, coached by Neilstahley, former lacrosse ace of Penn State, was no match for the Terps' consistent and varied attack. Neilson and Ellinger poured two goals apiece into the cords and passed accurately to teammates for other scoring chances.

Leading 5-0 at intermission, Maryland received the onslought on the Crimson goal with the resumption of play and five well-aimed shots found lodging in the net. George Watson whizzed in two of these while Bill Groff, Rip Hewitt and Parker Lindsay accounted for the others.

George Cushman was the only Crimson creaseman with an accurate eye. He tossed in both Harvard goals in the last period. Ed Rouse banged in a pair shortly before the final gun, swelling the Maryland total to 12.

College Park, Md., April 8.—Rain curtailed baseball activities between Maryland and Cornell today at the conclusion of two innings of play.

Cornell held a 2-to-1 advantage gleaned off Charley Weidinger, sophomore right-hander. The Terp twirler held the visitors to one hit over the two-inning stretch, but this one blow, Rigley's lusty three-bagger to left center in the first inning, brought two Scarlet scores clattering across the plate.

Maryland tallied in the second stanza, when Eddie Johnson singled and went to second on McNamara's miscue of Knepley's bounder, Weidinger advanced the two with a sacrifice and Johnson crossed on Shorty Chumbey's hoist to Rich.

Hoya Links Team Beats Cornell, 5-4

Paced by Billy Dettweiler's subpar 33 on the first nine, Georgetown University's golf team opened its season with a 5-to-4 victory over the invading Cornell U. team yesterday on the Kenwood links. The Hoyas clinched the match in the second foursome.

Dettweiler was hampered by a steady rain on the back nine and took 40 strokes for a 73. Harvey Johnson and Charles Pettijohn, of the Hoyas, posted 74's. Mike Sulla, ace of the visitors, won, 3 and 1, over Maury Nee, playing in fifth position.

Billy Dettweiler (Geo.) defeated Charles Wilcox (C.), 4 and 3; Harvey Johnson (Geo.) defeated Fritz Reimers (C.), 5 and 3. Best ball, Georgetown, 6 and 4.

G. W. Beats Boston, 3-2, On Lanier's 4-Hit Effort

Losing Pitcher Yields Only 5 Himself, But Zelaska's Single in 7th Scores 2 to Win Game for Colonials' Prize 'Find.'

A winning pitcher was finally uncovered among George Washington's 7,000 students yesterday in the lean, lank person of Bill Lanier, a right-hander from North Dakota, who limited Boston University to four hits and emerged from a mound duel with a 3-to-2 victory on the Ellipse.

Mr. Lanier has apparently been sorely overlooked all season, for this was his first appearance, and G. W.'s putrid pitching has been largely responsible for three defeats in four starts prior to yesterday. The North Dakota lad couldn't afford to trifle with the Beantown boys, who had a pitcher named Farmer Hoyt, who set the Buff and Blue batters back in depressing fashion, yielding five hits.

Not until the seventh inning did G. W. arise to Lanier's defense, crowding over three runs to overcome a 2-to-0 lead. Until this juncture, the Colonials had collected all of two hits off Hoyt's heaving.

Bill Edmonston, of Western High, opened the rally with a single to left and took third on Tim Stapleton's single to center. Joe Brennan, another Western product, was hit on the shoulder by one of Hoyt's pitches, and the bases were filled. Clarence (Moe) Berg, whose two errors had led to Boston's two runs, then grounded out, but Lanier was safe on an error of his grounder by Second Baseman Bader, and Edmonston scored.

Ralph Zelaska then won the ball game with a stinging single to left, scoring Stapleton and Brennan. In only one other inning had G. W. threatened, Zelaska reaching third in the fourth, where he was stranded.

The Hub City team had opened the scoring in the second, when Cleverly singled and took third on Chandler's single. Stapleton, G. W.'s catcher, tried to catch Chandler going to second, but Berg dropped his peg and Cleverly sped home.

From this point on Lanier had the New Englanders shackled, permitting only one more hit.

Walks Help Losers Get Their Runs

Lookouts Threaten in Late Innings but Are Held in Check.

Winners Score Three in First to Gain an Early Lead.

By Shirley Povich,
A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., April 8.—Signor Joe Cascarella bamboozled the Nats' country cousins from Chattanooga with a slick assortment of curves this afternoon and the Washington athletes emerged on the proper end of a 4-3 ball game.

The Nats' farmhands were a pesky bunch, though. They made only three hits off Cascarella's eccentric-dipping hooks, but as late as the eighth inning they had the tying and winning runs on base.

It was a new 1937 endurance record for Washington pitchers that Cascarella was setting in his clever performance against the minor leaguers. The little right-hander with the toothy grin pitched the full nine innings, but was laboring toward the finish.

The Nats were revenge-bent today after their licking by Chattanooga last week, and they tore into their farmhands for three runs in the first inning. When they added a run in the second it appeared as though Chattanooga was in for a terrific lacing.

Estallella Gets Triple.

But the Nats' attack suddenly subsided and they were limited to four hits over the remainder of the distance by a pair of right-handers, Maury Isbell and Joe Hayes. Isbell had been the victim of the Nats' assault in the first two innings.

Cascarella was rubbing it in unmercifully for six innings. He didn't allow the Lookouts a hit until Second Baseman Bloodworth singled in the sixth, and he didn't allow another until squat Bobby Estallella whacked a wicked three-bagger into centerfield in the seventh.

But that sock by Estallella virtually produced two runs and cut the Nats' lead to 4 to 2, because Cascarella just previously had issued one of his three walks to Jim Wasdell, and Buddy Myer shortly afterward muffed Bloodworth's meek grounder, on which Estallella scored.

The pesky Lookouts threatened to tie it up in the eighth, when Jake Early, a late Washington cast-off, thumped a single past Joe Kuhel's shins. Cascarella then struck out the next two hitters, but lapsed to the extent of walking Ben Miller. A double steal with Early on the scoring end, produced a Chattanooga run, and Cascarella walked Martin before he could negotiate the third out.

With a clever burst of speed,

Denemark Trainer Ruled Off Florida Turf on Narcotic Charge

A 'Frame-up' Is Claimed ByEmployer

Saliva Test on All Round in 8th at Tropical March 23 Brings Ban.

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., April 8.—Bert S. Michell, trainer for Mrs. Emil Denemark, of Chicago, was ruled off the Florida turf by the State racing commission today in connection with the use of narcotics.

The commission said saliva tests showed the Denemark horse All Round, which finished eighth in the third race at Tropical Park March 23, had been given a narcotic.

The commission's order suspended Michell and all horses trained by him indefinitely and denied him the privileges of the Florida tracks. The Denemark stable won virtually every important stake during the first Tropical meeting and through the 30 days at Hialeah.

F. C. Deer, of North Tarrytown, N. Y., and Trainer Max Eisner and E. J. Sterling were also suspended in connection with the drugging of the horse Go Quickly in the seventh race April 2. Another count said Eisner "was actively engaged in handling the affairs" of Deer, although he had been ruled off by the Maryland Racing Commission.

Trainer B. S. Michell was suspended on a showing that the horse All Round had received a narcotic in the third race March 23.

'It's News to Me,' Says Suspended Trainer

Havre de Grace, Md.—Trainer B. S. Michell, of the Denemark Stable, said today a report of his suspension by the Florida Racing Commission was "news" to him.

"I'm absolutely in ignorance about it," he said. "I can't say anything about it until I have been better informed."

He added that he did not know he was under suspension, or that any of the races in which the Denemark horses participated were.

He arrived here Tuesday night, he said, having left Florida the day before.

As for the race in which Miami dispatches related the horse All Round was stimulated, Michell said the horse finished last or so close to that position that it didn't make any difference.

'Looks Like a Frame-up' Says Denemark

Chicago.—Emil Denemark said today he believed "a mistake had been made" in the reported action of the Florida Racing Commission in suspending Bert L. Michell, trainer for the Denemark stables.

"There must be somthing wrong somewhere," Denemark said. "I was there the day of the race and witnessed the saliva tests of the horse. The results were negative. I believe a mistake has been made."

Denemark said Michell had started over 400 horses during the three years he has been with the Denemark Stables and had won more than 100 races.

"Saliva tests of every winner were made and we never had a complaint before," he added. "It looks like a frameup to me. In fact I believe there can be no question that somebody framed Michell. I'd stake my life that he is innocent."

Both go quickly and All Round went wild in the paddock and held up the starts for several minutes. In view of their suspicious behavior the stewards sent saliva samples to the central testing bureau in New York and the commission acted upon its report.

Michell made no statement before the commission. The suspension order, which automatically bars him from race tracks in all States where the sport is legalized, read:

"A report of the chemical analysis of a sample of saliva taken from the horse All Round entered in the third race at Tropical Park on the twenty-third day of March, 1937, showing positive reaction to strychnine, it was moved, seconded and unanimously carried that Trainer B. S. Michell and all horses trained by him be ordered suspended indefinitely and Trainer Michell denied all privileges of race tracks in Florida.

Michell formerly trained for John D. Hertz, of Chicago, winning the 1928 Kentucky Derby with Reigh Count. He also trained some horses here for Elmer Dale Shaffer, of Chicago.

Bowling Pace-Setters Retain Top Position

New York, April 8 (AP).—Standings of the individual and all-events leaders in the American Bowling Congress underwent several changes today, but none of the Pennsylvania and Midwestern keglers was able to overtake the pace-setter in either division.

Ben Needham, of Marion, Ind., made a strong threat at the individual division leadership, but slipped up with a 696 total for third place behind E. Soest, of Santa Monica, Calif., with 729, and W. Knox, Philadelphia, with 725.

The Washington doubles team of Astor Clark and Ed Blakeney defeated Tronsky and White, 1,357 to 1,267, as Blakeney rolled an all-time record for the city of 720. His efforts surpassed Clarke's 719 set made in January in the Campbell Sweepstakes.

"Hmmm," Vice President Garner seems to be humming, "It looks good to me, what do you gentlemen think?" The question is whether to play Minton, a 12-to-1 long shot, on the hunch that Senator Sherman Minton, of Indiana, is in the party. The horse won, incidentally, and paid $24.90 for $2, but the Congressional delegation refused to say whether or not they played it. Front row, in the usual order, are Senator Minton, Vice President Garner and Senator Tom Connally, of Texas. Back row, Senators Nathan L. Bachman, of Tennessee; Fred H. Brown, of New Hampshire, and F. Ryan Duffy, of Wisconsin.

Feller Pitches Perfect Game, ButGiantsWin

But New Yorkers Win Game Off Harder After Going Hitless.

By the United Press.

Fort Smith, Ark., April 8.—The New York Giants staged a 6-run scoring spree in the fifth inning of Mel Harder and scored a 9-to-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians today, tying their series at five games apiece.

Bob Feller pitched the first three innings for the Indians and held the Giants hitless and scoreless, running his season's total to 15 runless innings. He fanned four, walked three and made a wild pitch. Harder finished, allowing all 9 runs and 13 hits.

Hal Schumacher pitched seven innings, the longest stretch any Giant pitcher has gone this spring. He allowed five hits. The Indians' runs were scored on homers by Hal Trosky in the second and Earl Averill in the ninth.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The New York Yankees chalked up their twelfth straight victory today when Lou Gehrig's outfield fly scored Red Rolfe in the eighth to edge out the Oklahoma City Indians, 1 to 0.

San Antonio, Tex.—The St. Louis Browns came from behind and clouted Charley Root for four runs in the eighth, to score a 4-to-3 win over the Chicago Cubs today. Bill Lee pitched scoreless ball for the Cubs for the first seven innings.

Lakeland, Fla.—Elden Auker, the first pitcher to go the route for the Detroit Tigers, held Montreal to five scattered hits and one unearned run for a 5-to-1 victory today.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Rain and darkness ended a game between the Cincinnati Reds and the Jacksonville Tars, of the Sally League, today at the end of the eighth inning with the score tied, 4 to 4.

Sarasota, Fla.—The Boston Red Sox broke camp tonight after the regulars and scrubs played a 2-2 practice game. Johnny Marcum and Fritz Ostermuller each pitched nine innings.

Daytona Beach, Fla.—There was a report current here today, as the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals sat out a cancelled exhibition game, that First Baseman Buddy Hassett, who has been in a slump since the start of training, might be traded.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Philadelphia Athletics were held to two hits by three pitchers today and shut out by the Southern Association Memphis Club, 8 to 0.

R.P. Davidson Bows In Pinehurst Golf

By the Associated Press.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 8.—Seventeen-year-old Bobby Dunkelberger again played the role of "Giant Killer" today, when he ousted the favored Texas star, Jack Munger, from the North and South amateur tourney by a 2-up victor in their second-round match, recalling his upset victory a year ago over the veteran Francis Ouimet in the same event.

Except for Dunkelberger's triumph and the defeat of Durham's hard-hitting Henry Clay Poe by Tom Jamison, of Pittsburgh, the day's play went according to form, with the defending champion, the medalist, and other favorites advancing without difficulty.

Johnny Kohnson, Lemberton (N. C.) druggist, whipped R. P. Davidson, of Washington, 3 and 1.

Kiefer, Fick Triumph In National Title Swim

Higgins Also Retains National A. A. U. Crown as Ohio State Freshman Takes Diving Title From Greene, '36 Champ at New Haven.

By the United Press.

New Haven, Conn., April 8.—Three champions defended their titles, a new diving star emerged in his second year of competition and Chicago's Lake Shore A. C. got off to a flying start in defense of its team title as the three-day battle for national A. A. U. swimming and diving crown opened tonight in Yale's Payne Whitney Pool.

Champions who defended titles successfully were Adolph Kiefer, of the Chicago Lake Shore A. C., Olympic champion, in the 150-yard back stroke; Peter Fick, New York A. C., in the 100-yard free style, and Johnny Higgins, of the Olneyville Boys' Club, Providence, in the 300-yard medley swim.

The titleholder deprived of his throne was Al Greene, of the Lake Shore A. C., second in the Olympic high diving in Berlin. Greene lost his low board championship to Al Patnik, 21-year-old Ohio State freshman, who has been competing on the big time only two years.

The Lake Shore A. C., thanks to Kiefer, rolled up 11 points on the first night of competition, putting it far ahead of the field. Kiefer, in addition to winning the backstroke, also placed second to Higgins in the medley.

Higgins retained the medley title after a stern battle with the brown-haired Chicago youngster. Johnny, who is a freshman at Ohio State, held the lead all the way, but Kiefer picked up valuable distance on the backstroke leg and waged an arm-to-arm battle all the way down the pool, as he finished only a few inches behind the champion. Higgins was clocked in 3:32.7. Third place in that event went to Johnny Macionis, of Yale. Andy Clark, of the Detroit A. C., was fourth; Matt Saltysiak, Providence, fifth, and Justin Callahan, Columbia, sixth.

The Detroit A. C., New York A. C. and Olneyville Boys Club were temporarily deadlocked for second in the team standing with 5 points each. Patnik, because he is a freshman, could not count his 5 points in the diving toward Ohio's team score.

100-yard free style—Won by Peter Fick, New York A. C.; second, Charles Hutter, Harvard; third, William Quoyles, Columbus, Ohio; fourth, Edward Kiror, Michigan; fifth, Ed Sobol, Columbus, Ohio; sixth, Waldemar Tomski, Michigan. Time: 51.6.

150-yard back stroke—Won by Adolph Kiefer, Lake Shore A. C.; second, Albert Vande Weghe, Princeton; third, Taylor Drysdale, Detroit A. C.; fourth, William Neunzig, Ohio State; fifth, Graham Cummin, Harvard; sixth, Daniel Hogan, Penn A. C. Time, 1:33.

One meter spring board dive—Won by Al Patnick (unattached) Pittsburgh, 145.40 points; second, Al Greene (Lake Shore A. C.) 143.50; third, Elbert Root (Detroit A. C.) 138.36; fourth, Ben Grady (Michigan) 123.96; fifth, Floyd Stauffer, Chicago, 119.68; sixth, Stewart Clark (unattached) Miami, Fla., 115.92.

National 300-yard individual medley swim—Won by John Higgins (Olneyville Boys Club); second, Adolph Kiefer (Lake Shore A. C.); third, John Macionis (Yale); fourth, Andrew Clark (Detroit A. C.); fifth, Mott Saltysiak (Olneyville Boys Club); sixth, Justin Callahan (Columbia). Time, 3:32.7.

Mrs. Cronin Able to Return Home

Sarasota, Fla., April 8 (AP).—Dr. David Kennedy, superintendent of Sarasota Hospital, today announced that barring complications Mrs. Joseph Cronin, wife of the manager of the Boston Red Sox, would leave Sunday for her Washington, D. C., home.

Boy and girl twins, born prematurely to Mrs. Cronin, died yesterday.

Saddened by the death of the children and worried about his wife, Joe Cronin will stay behind when the rest of the team leaves tonight for Atlanta, Ga., the first stop on its homeward journey.

Shortstop Eric McNair is visiting his motherless baby at Meridian, Miss. Mrs. McNair recently died in childbirth.

Chattanooga Bows To Nat Attack, 4-3

Jesse Hill stretched an ordinary single to left into a double in the second inning, with two out, and Buddy Lewis moved him home with the second of his three consecutive singles. That made it 4 to 0, and it was just as well that it did, because Washington couldn't get a runner past second base after that.

In fact, the Nats only got one runner that far in those last seven innings.

McCormick Named Mt. St. Mary's Coach

Emmitsburg, Md., April 8.—The Rev. John L. Sheridan, acting president of Mount St. Mary's College, today announced Joseph H. McCormick had been appointed head coach of athletic activities to succeed Jo Jo Lawler.

Lawler resigned before the Easter holidays after serving as head coach for two years.

McCormick was a physical director and coach of baseball and football at Mercersburg Academy for 12 years; coach at Roxbury Prep, Cheshire, Conn., for a year, and associate professor of physical education and head coach of baseball and football at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

The college council picked McCormick from a large number of applicants because of his success in coaching baseball, basketball and football, the three sports that Mount St. Mary's has given the most attention.

Tech Favored In First Series Contest Today

Wilson Slight Underdog; Bortz's Hurling May Upset McKinley.

By John R. Vosburgh.

Each with a substantial victory under its belt, Woodrow Wilson High and Tech resume interhigh operations this afternoon at Roosevelt Stadium in the opening game of the 1937 series. Although it is Wilson's first venture in interhigh baseball, Tech rules only a slight favorite to win.

Wilson's one-man firing squad, canny Kilmer Bortz, has jacked up his team's stock higher than a foul fly with his talent as a strike-out specialist. Whether this right-hander can master Tech's veteran team as he has virtually all opposition this year and last, is the vital question.

The Techmen are eyeing the title now in the keeping of Western. Coach Rusty Thompson's diamondless outfit stormed to a 9-to-8 victory over St. Peter's Prep of Jersey City, Wednesday, in its opening game, and the result was convincing.

It was as convincing as Wilson's 8-4 conquest of St. Alban's last week in which Coach Carl Heintell's squad made its '37 debut to the accompaniment of 18 strike outs by Mr. Bortz. Tech's opposition was considerably stronger and forced the Maroon to salvage the ball game in the last half of the ninth with two runs.

The old-timers playing the trade for Tech comprise the entire outfield, Joe Ciomi, Walton Merchant and Abe Fillah, Catcher Jim Wise, First Baseman Charlie Kendall and Third Baseman Roy Lemeriese. One of the newcomers, red-headed Charlie Curtis, has been installed at second base and the clean-up post with Jack Gordon taking the short-stop assignment and batting fifth.

Tommy Doonis of last year's pitching staff is again tossing 'em up for Tech, but big Jim Webb and lanky Leory Linkins are also likely to get the starting assignment. Lefty Sorrell saw considerable service against St. Peter's.

Grant-Sabin Win.

Houston, Tex. April 8 (AP).—Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, and Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, won Atlanta, Ga., tennis tournament doubles championship today by defeating Robert Riggs and Joel Hunt, of Los Angeles, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 12-10.

Oregon Inlet—the very name conjures visions of white water and blue fish, screaming, wheeling gulls and circling boats. Anyone who has ever fished it during the few short weeks of the first run, which is always made up of the big fellows, is never wholly satisfied until they get back to experience again the thrills that no other inlet on the Atlantic Coast can supply the sports angler in quite so lavish a manner.

ACKERMAN

Hardly known a decade ago, except by the typical beach-combing surf fisherman and the few commercial netters of the neighborhood, it was two Washington anglers nosing around with a local guide in search of fishing that was different, that kindled the spark to make a trip of 300 miles seem as nothing.

The stories of these two anglers, John Level and Don Carpenter, upon their return, so captured the imagination of their listeners, that they, too, were soon on their way to try out first hand the voracious strike of the blues and the plunging runs of the great bronze-backs. And so, year by year, grew the numbers of converts to a section with fishing so abundant that it can easily become hard work instead of the fun it should be, until the spring of 1935 with its hordes of bluefish that actually took possession of more than 20 miles of the beach and made the name of Oregon Inlet familiar to every fisherman along the coast.

It is seldom given to any angler the chance to see hundreds of acres of rapacious fighting fish, gone completely berserk in their demand for food, cutting, slashing and disgorging when too full to take more; driving the bunkers ahead of them through the surf and even upon the beach, and not content with that—following them, as the recession of a breaker would leave them flopping on the sand.

* * * *

Grown up with this fishing port is a fleet of some sixty-odd sport-fishing boats, able and capably captained. Dean of all is Sam Tillet, that original fishing guide and with never an accident to mar a long record on a bar noted for its liability to trouble.

It is seldom that Tillet has an open date for his own boat, but he has 10 or 12 others with good captains and can almost always place parties. The exception is the month of May. There are few open dates left on any of the boats. Should you want to try, do it through the booking service that Capt. Tillet runs and is reached through the phone Wanchese 123. The rate for a call is $1.25 during the day and 60 cents after 7:30 in the evening. It is money well expended, because the long trip down is more than disappointing if you are unable to get out or have to take one of the old hulks with farm boys for captains, that lay in wait in the canal at the side of the road on Roanoke Island. Unreliable, their cut rates are never cheap. The standard price for a good boat is only $15 a day and four or five can fish comfortably.

Beach fishing is well worth while during the great run in May, if it is impossible to get a boat. Sam is again the one to see. He will tell you where to go and where to get the bait. There is no good reason why fishing parties should not go to Oregon Inlet during the months of July to and including October. Tuesday Post Notes will try to show you why and tell of odds and ends on fishing relative to this place.

Milton Youdle and Tony Caruso, fishing off the point of the polo field in Potomac Park on Tuesday evening caught a 4¾-pound rock and on the following evening a couple more weighing about 2½ pounds each.

Ed Meske Throws Hader in Fast Bout

Ed Meske, a reformed wrestling hero, threw Jack Hader in 24½ minutes at Turner's Arena last night. Edward, who converted himself into a real rowdy for the occasion, bashed Hader with a drop kick after being dropped on his head from the ring no less than three times.

In supporting bouts scheduled for 30 minutes, Wee Willie Davis flopped George McLeod in 12½ minutes; Hank Barber downed George Lenihan, Floyd Marshall subdued Ernie Powers, and Ted Key worked to a draw with Jim Comeld.

Golf followers will be given a choice opportunity today to hear one of their favorites, Helen Dettweiler, describe over the radio some of her experiences as a tournament player. The Congressional Country Club star will speak over Mel Champ's Skipper program at 5 p. m., Station WJSV.

Cornell Meets Terps; Hoyas Play Harvard

Georgetown Is Confident After Debut; Old Line Favored.

In a confident mood after their record 31-0 victory over Western Maryland Tuesday, Georgetown's Hoyas tackle a more formidable foe on the Hilltop plateau this afternoon in Harvard, one of the Ivy League's outstanding nines.

The game is one of two on this afternoon's collegiate program. Maryland and Cornell, playing at College Park, supply the other. Their game yesterday was rained out.

Harvard served warning on the Blue and Gray that its attack is functioning in good order by swamping George Washington, 19-0, earlier in the week. Later it dropped a 12-10 victory to Navy, but this was the fault of pitching, not batting. The Crimson moundmen simply didn't have it that afternoon.

Either Mike Petroskey or Hank Bertrand, both of whom worked against the "Green Terribles" Tuesday, will pitch today—maybe both, if the Harvard bats continued to boom. Nick Nicketakis is being held in reserve for warmer weather.

Maryland rules a slight favorite over Cornell, although the Ithacans are loaded for b'ar. Coach Jimmy Tatum has eight hurlers available for duty, compared with Maryland's three, but if "Bull" Wood is right that's all the Old Liners need.

Francesco Comes From Last to Take Jackson Purse at Bowie

Victor Gets Good Ride By Gilbert

Daily Double Pays $64; Le Blanc Up on Pair of Winners.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., April 8.—Running a remarkable race, Francesco, a 3-year-old imported from England by John Hay Whitney, won the Mayor Howard W. Jackson Purse, feature of today's program at this track. Last and apparently going nowhere in particular with half of the six-furlong sprint history, the son of Jacopo-Heloise suddenly began running like a wild horse and passed the five other horses to emerge on top for a 2-length victory. Isadore managed to hold second place from the grip of Cruis. Aglow, Tuleyeries Lad and Gay Jack finished in the order named.

Francesco was in charge of the veteran jockey, Johnny Gilbert, and his victory was a popular one. He was installed the favorite and paid a $4.10 mutuel while running the route in 1.15 1-5.

The colt, which had raced overseas, had to overcome trouble other than being outrun in the early going. Nearing the stretch, Francesco moved up on the outside of Tuleyeries Lad and the latter went wide carrying the favorite far to the side of the track. The backers of Francesco moaned, but they did not know of the real speed and courage of the colt.

Double Pays $64.30.

Gilbert swung him clear in a moment and then set him on a line for the imaginary wire. The colt, running with his head down, fairly ate up the ground. Gilbert refrained from whipping and depended upon hand riding which was enough to carry Francesco to the wire with daylight to spare.

Mayor Jackson of Baltimore watched the race from the stewards' stand and presented a cup to Bill Norton, trainer for John Hay Whitney.

Rain did not fall until the feature had been run and a crowd of 8,000 saw the action take place over a fast track.

Those who teamed Pretty Busy and Merrily On in the daily double collected a $64.30 mutuel.

Pretty Busy Pays $14.

Pretty Busy, a daughter of Busy American and ridden by W. Duffy, a promising apprentice jockey, won the first race at $14.40 mutuel. Gold Clip, one that set a brisk pace most of the way, was second, a neck off the winner. Third money in the limit field of 12 went to Golden Key. Barnstormer, the favorite, could do no better than fourth. The time of 1:15 1-5 was creditable on the slow track here.

Mrs. W. H. Denham, of Washington, saw her Little Argo win his third straight race of the meeting. Hubert Le Blanc had the mount today and he steadied the son of Happy Argo off the pace of Prince Turley, taking command in the stretch and downing Cruising by a length and a half. Patch Pocket salvaged the third money in the field of seven. Despite his record, Little Argo produced a $9.30 mutuel and was clocked in 1:14 4-5.

Merrily On, ancient son of John P. Grier, picked up 121 pounds and outclassed a field of 12 sprinters in the third race. Paying a $6.10 mutuel while in the role of favorite, Merrily On gave his backers few anxious moments, having an advantage of four lengths over My Blond at the end. Saxopal was third. Merrily On stepped the 6 furlongs in 1:15.

DEWEY FRAGETTA, the New York fight manager, boasts the most chaste and ultra-ultra looking stationery known to the fisticuffing business . . . . his letters might well be sent out by an exclusive brokerage house, if they weren't boosting pugs . . . . incidentally, Dewey feels very badly about FRITZI ZIVIC, who is now burning up the welterweight division . . . . Fritzi fought here at the Washington Auditoriuum a few winters past . . . . and his performance was so bad they are still fumigating the joint . . . . "I was sole manager of Fritzi at that time," writes Fragetta, "and was far from impressed with his dismal showing against Jadick. . . . I thought it best if Fritzi stood in business and only fought now and then to add a few chips to his family bank account . . . . No sooner had we parted than results came pouring in of Zivic kayoing Falco, Dublinsky, Celebron, dropping Locatelli . . . . and that established him as an ace money maker."

SPIKE WEBB.

All of which is very interesting . . . but more amusing is Dewey's crack about should have "stood in business" . . . . we thought JOE JACOBS was the only one who could make cracks like that.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRETTY BUSY, $14.40, $6.80, $5.50; GOLD CLIP, $8.90, $7.20; GOLDEN KEY, $11.20.

PRETTY BUSY, rushed into the thick of contention at the start, was steadied along behind the pace of GOLD CLIP to the stretch and withstood a long drive to survive. GOLD CLIP had good speed from the start and continued gamely when displaced. GOLDEN KEY was hard ridden and saved ground to close with good courage. BARNSTORMER broke alertly, but could not threaten while running forwardly. PADDY'S SISTER showed an even effort. WHITE SWEETS had early speed. The others were outrun throughout.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:02. Off at 3:07. Winner, Mrs. W. H. Denham's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE ARGO, $9.30, $4.30, $2.80; CRUISING, $3.60, $2.70; PATCHPOCKET, $2.70.

LITTLE ARGO, away alertly, and steadied along closest to the pace of PRINCE TURLEY, took command in the early stretch and held CRUISING safe to the end. CRUISING was forced to go to the outside while making his run for home and was wearing down the winner at the finish. PATCHPOCKET came with good speed for the final test while under punishment. DISTRACT saved ground and closed full of run. PRINCE TURLEY drew out to a long early lead, but faltered through the stretch. BRIGHT EMERALD broke on top but could not keep up.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:39. Winner, D. L. Ogle's ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MERRILY ON, $6.10, $4.10, $3.00; MY BLONDE, $4.60, $3.70; SAXOPAL, $5.30.

MERRILY ON shook off early contention from ROYAL VEIL to take command approaching the stretch turn, opened a long lead and was being taken in hand at the end. MY BLONDE worked her way up on the outside and gained sharply, but could not menace the winner. SAXOPAL closed gamely after gaining gradually during the final quarter. EPITAPH was used up reaching contention. TULEYRIES STAR showed a good effort. CHIEF HOLLIS had early speed. ROYAL VEIL went to the front and ran well for a quarter.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:08. Winner, J. H. Whiting's b. c. (3), by Jacopo—Heloise. Trained by W. J. Norton. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48 4-5, 1:15 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRANCESCO, $4.10, $2.60, $2.10; ISADORE, $3.90, $2.70; CRUIS, $2.40.

FRANCESCO, lacking early speed, moved up approaching the stretch turn, was carried wide by TULEYRIES LAD, rallied when clear and came on with bold rush to win going away. ISADORE, first out of the gates, opened a good lead on AGLOW and continued willingly, but no match for the winner. CRUIS went evenly. AGLOW stopped after pressing the pace. TULEYRIES LAD ran out at the final turn. GAY JACK tired badly.

WEATHER, DRIZZLING. TRACK, FAST.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 4:33. Off at 4:34. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINTON, $24.90, $11.50, $7.30; HOLLYHOCK, $6.90, $5.00; CHIEF YEOMAN, $4.80.

MINTON, showing sudden improvement, was within striking distance of the leaders from the start, began to move up leaving the backstretch and closed with a rush under vigorous handling to be up in the final strides. HOLLYHOCK, slightly bothered at the first turn, ran CHURCH CALL into submission and fought it out willingly. CHIEF YEOMAN was allowed to drop far out of it, came around field and was going fastest at the end. CHURCH CALL was used up getting to the front and setting the pace. KOTERITO was poorly handled. QUIET PLEASE stopped after going close up.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, SLOW.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:06½. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Winner, P. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNT ME, $6.40, $3.50, $3.20; FLYING DERE, $4.20, $3.10; FELWYN, $6.30.

COUNT ME, under steadying restraint while running KINDRED SPIRIT into submission, drew clear of FELWYN at the stretch turn and held sway to the end under a drive. FLYING DERE, reserved close to the pace setters, was carried wide at the stretch turn by FELWYN and closed gamely after being straightened out. FELWYN was forwardly placed throughout and lost ground entering the stretch. IRISH VOTE closer than usual, closed gamely. CANPRA loomed menacingly while saving ground entering the stretch, but hung in the final sixteenth. KINDRED SPIRIT stopped. NAVAL CADET was outrun.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT BIRD, $22.10, $10.10, $7.40; JAMES BOY, $12.80, $8.60; HELEN BAB, $4.60.

BRIGHT BIRD, off alertly, and steadied along while closest to the pace of WORTHINGTON, took command when placed to a drive and hung on with rare courage to gain a photo decision. JAMES BOY, fractious at the post and a trailer for a half, came around his field and closed with a belated rush on the outside. HELEN BAB, shut off approaching the stretch, came again on the inside when clear to show an excellent effort. CONTINUITY moved up nearing the final bend but hung. EXAGGERATION saved a world of ground entering the stretch after being shuffled back and closed well. BARBIZON had speed for a half. WORTHINGTON stopped as if needing the race.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MERRILY ON, $6.10, $4.10, $3.00; MY BLONDE, $4.60, $3.70; SAXOPAL, $5.30.

MERRILY ON shook off early contention from ROYAL VEIL to take command approaching the stretch turn, opened a long lead and was being taken in hand at the end. MY BLONDE worked her way up on the outside and gained sharply, but could not menace the winner. SAXOPAL closed gamely after gaining gradually during the final quarter. EPITAPH was used up reaching contention. TULEYRIES STAR showed a good effort. CHIEF HOLLIS had early speed. ROYAL VEIL went to the front and ran well for a quarter.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:08. Winner, J. H. Whiting's b. c. (3), by Jacopo—Heloise. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRANCESCO, $4.10, $2.60, $2.10; ISADORE, $3.90, $2.70; CRUIS, $2.40.

FRANCESCO, lacking early speed, moved up approaching the stretch turn, was carried wide by TULEYRIES LAD, rallied when clear and came on with bold rush to win going away. ISADORE, first out of the gates, opened a good lead on AGLOW and continued willingly, but no match for the winner. CRUIS went evenly. AGLOW stopped after pressing the pace. TULEYRIES LAD ran out at the final turn. GAY JACK tired badly.

Selections at Bowie.

Dear Al:

About the only time Jim Milton gets his name in this column is after a series of poor starts. Let's cross him up today by giving a little credit where credit is due. As long as he sends the fields away in good alignment, no one notices that he is even at the track. However, let them straggle out of the starting gate, particularly in front of the stands, and the air is filled with boos and I take up for the customers the next morning. I don't want to poison Milton, but he has been doing a fine job to date. I may sour on his starting tomorrow but so far he has been battling 1.000 in my book. Although he is well paid for his work, he has one of the meanest jobs at the track. He has to be out in all sorts of weather and must combine good judgment with a world of patience. His job is more than pressing the button that rings the starting bell. He must anticipate moves of horses; he must control the jockeys. He's quick to discipline riders but I have always found that the boys have a good word for him. Any time the Maryland tracks are without Milton, they have another No. 1 man ready to send the horses away. He is Red Palmer, a native of Havre de Grace. Palmer did the starting at Charles Town and turned in a masterful job. In answer to F. G. B., I don't know the name of the camera used here, but the boys in the press box call it the "outside-horse photo finish." BILL.

WheatTumbles With Rumors Of Devaluation

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 8.—Disturbed by persistent rumors of impending dollar devaluation and by stock market unsettlement, wheat prices plunged downward today to 3½ cents under early top figures. Corn also was influenced by unusual liquidating pressure, a result largely of the fact that Eastern centers are shipping corn to Chicago, reversing the usual movement of that grain.

At the close, wheat was 1⅞@2¾ cents lower than yesterday's finish, May $1.38¾@$1.38⅞, July $1.20¼@$1.25¾, September $1.21⅜@$1.21⅝; corn 1⅞ down to ¼ up, May $1.28⅞@$1.29¼, July $1.19⅝@$1.19⅞, September $1.10⅝@$1.10⅞; oats ⅞@1⅜ off, May 49¼@49¼, and rye showing ½@2¾ drop, May $1.15⅛. The outcome in provisions was 2 cents to 15 cents decline.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively,
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Irregular but Firmer; Bonds Lower; Commodities Higher.

New York, April 8.—Most of the minor commodity markets hardened a little and in spite of much price irregularity and erratic behavior in the early trading the stock market tone improved. Sales in stocks failed to top 2,000,000 shares. Government bonds, on the oher hand, turned down. Foreign currencies were upset a bit by a slide in French francs. July wheat dropped 2¼ cents to 125⅜ cents a bushel.

All sides had a crack at the stock market in the morning trading. Prices opened a good fraction to two points higher, and it looked as though a climax had come to the selling, foreshadowing a good rally. When the strong opening was known the opportunity was seized by many who recently have turned bearish or who have become frightened lest more of their profits might be washed away to sell stocks. For a half-hour or so the retreat was even more precipitate than had been the early advance, but toward noon the tone turned steadier and the stock ticker, which had fallen down badly, five minutes behind the trading, caught up with operations.

Steel common illustrated the conditions. Steel opened with 2,000 shares at 113¼, a gain of 1½ points, sank to 110 ¾ and then recovered to around 113, where it held most of the afternoon. Some of the rails found the sellers unprepared. Southern Pacific jumped 3⅝ points, only to slide about 3 points later. The opening-block of New York Central was 8,000 shares. Chrysler regained 1½ points at the opening of the 5 points or more it lost yesterday.

Thin Market.

A number of preferred stocks which failed to appear yesterday suffered severe losses today. On one or two sales a number of them fell 2 to 10 points. General Cigar and American Snuff sold at their lowest prices in two years on declines of 6 to 10 points, respectively. More than 5 points were chipped from Atlas Powder, E. G. Budd, Crucible, Goodyear and Westinghouse. Coca-Cola toppled several points for special reasons.

Sentiment around Wall Street was noticeably better than it has been for several days, in spite of the severity of the decline and the predictions of many that, for "technical" reasons, further selling may be expected. A truce apparently has been called for the time being on rumors of deflationary steps to be taken at Washington, partly because the shakeout in commodities as well as in stocks seems to have removed the obvious reasons for restrictive action.

Meanwhile the tone in commodities heartened a bit, nothwithstanding a reduction in the price of copper and weakness in some other commodities, including grains. In London some measure of equilibrium seems to have been regained. On this side nothing yet has taken place to change the deep-seated feeling that the eventual answer is inflation, whether we are nearer or farther from it now than was the case a fortnight ago.

Gold Price.

Whether the Administration actually has action toward reducing the dollar price of gold in mind is a question, but unquestionably it wishes the markets to think it holds the card in its hand and is not afraid to play it. Secretary Morgenthau's reply to the question yesterday that the gold-buying price of the Treasury would not be cut "right now," shows that the Government is not unwilling to keep the markets guessing. Uneasiness of that sort might bring down prices, but rapidly falling commodity prices act quickly on business activity, and business men are already facing about all the uncertainty they can stand. Meanwhile the confirmed stories that one large bank here, and possibly one or two smaller institutions, have withdrawn from the gold-shipping operations, give vivid color to the gold-cutting rumor. Such action may not be taken, but the chances are it was seriously threatened.

Speculation.

Returning visitors from London say that the speculative mania over there in commodities has been paralleled only by the spree on this side in stocks in 1928-29, when quick profits in speculation was the chief topic of conversation in any gathering. Everybody with a little money, it appears, took part in the affair, which helps to explain the violence of the recent declines on the other side. Over here a considerable speculation also had been built up, as is shown by the expansion of brokerage house facilities for such treading; but it had by no means reached the proportion of the London operations, as Americans never have been particularly commodity minded, except for wheat and cotton.

Commodity Prices.

The rout of the commodity market bulls in London is having its repercussions here. Base metals are taking the rap, as a starter. Copper, after being cut to 16 cents from 17 cents, day before yesterday, was further reduced to 15½ cents a pound today, when the market wondered if the new price would satisfy President Roosevelt, who recently said 17 cents was too high, or if the decline had just begun. Lead and zinc prices also were reduced late yesterday. One reason for the breakup of the commodity markets, which is extending to rubber, silk, cocoa, and other staples, is said to be the rumors of a cut in the gold price.

Russian Gold.

The story that Russian inquiry for a 60-day guaranty from the Treasury on the $35 an ounce gold price, which they are supposed to have failed to receive, started rumors of intention by Washington to cut the gold price hardly ring true. It has been a matter of public knowledge all along, acquired from definite statements from the Treasury, that its gold price was subject to change without notice and that it would not give any promise to anybody to maintain the price for as much as a day. The Russian government, which lately had been shipping here large quantities of gold, knew all that perfectly well, and it is highly unlikely that they made any request for a guaranty. The Russians, now that they have gold enough to cover their currency plans, are using a part of their rapidly growing gold output to build up balances in this and other countries to provide for the purcase of goods.

Interest Rates.

Interest rates for the most part ran true to form in February, that is, they declined from January levels, according to the Federal Reserve Board's monthly compilation of average rates charged bank customers. The fall in New York was from 2.50 to 2.41 per cent, and in Southern and Western cities from 4.16 to 4.15 per cent, but the average rate hardened from 3.36 to 3.43 per cent in Northern and Eastern cities. In New York City the rate stopped at the lowest level recorded. For Southern and Western cities the bottom was reached in December, and the January average rate was the low point for Northern and Eastern cities.

The purpose of the conference is to obtain the most recent views on the bond market outlook, money rates, railroad, municipal, and all other securities in which investment bankers are interested. Each address will be followed by a forum discussion.

Local firms expected to be represented at the conference include: Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, Y. E. Booker & Co.; Brown, Goodwin & Olds, Ferris & Co.; Folger, Nolan & Co.; Hemphill, Noyes & Co.; Henderson, Winder & Co.; Johnston, Lemon, & Co.; William W. Mackall, jr., Waggaman & Brawner, and K. S. Security Savings Birthday.

Security Savings & Commercial Bank began its twenty-fifth year of business this week, having opened its doors April 7, 1913, at a site other than its present location at Ninth and G streets northwest. It moved to its present headquarters shortly afterward and these have been improved and enlarged several times. In 1928, the bank opened a branch at 1518 K street northwest, which also has had as successful a history as the parent institution.

The bank's growth has been steady and substantial. Deposits which aggregated $32,226.32 on the opening day had grown to $7,447,605.43 on December 31, 1936, date of the last call by the Compitroller of the Currency for statements of condition.

Francis G. Addison, jr., a past president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, is president of the bank, and Col. Julius I. Peyser, first president of the bank, is now chairman of its board of directors. Mr. Addison is chairman of the committee on law and legislation of the local bankers association and a former member of the executive council of the American Bankers Association. He has also been prominently identified with the work of the Better Business Bureau and in the home modernization campaign.

Building and Loan League.

A local delegation of savings, building and loan association managers, whose institutions loaned $28,910,547 to 7,337 home-owners last year will attend the Southeastern Conference of the United States Building and Loan League in Nashville, today and tomorrow.

Mortgage money rates from the long-time point of view, the objectives of public housing, and modern loan plans for the acquisition of a home will be the chief topics for discussion by an expected attendance of 300 from 13 Southeastern States. Justin E. Langille, Leesburg, Fla., is president of the conference, and Carl J. Bergmann, is Washington's member of the executive committee.

Banking Notes.

Robert L. Flather, assistant secretary, American Security & Trust Co., has returned to his office after several months' illness.

Reserve Purchases Government Bonds

The Federal Reserve Board, reporting on its operations to maintain "orderly" conditions in the Government bond market, disclosed last night that it had bought $29,000,000 of Federal securities during the week ended April 7.

Acquisitions through Federal Reserve Banks comprised $25,000,000 of Government bonds and $32,000,000 of Treasury bills, offset in part by sales of Treasury notes totaling $28,000,000.

The transactions brought aggregate reserve bank holdings of Government securities to $2,459,000,000—$29,000,000 over the same week last year and the highest level since 1934.

The board's decision to buy in the open market came Sunday night after a study of the erratic course of Government bond prices, which had tended downward for several weeks. Informed authorities said the action was designed to iron out sharp fluctuations rather than to support the market.

Purchases bolstered the supply of idle cash in member banks which sold Government securities, and this was reflected in a $45,000,000 increase in member bank reserve balances during the week to $6,684,000,000.

On April 7, excess reserves of member banks, which form the basis for credit expansion, were estimated by the board at $1,440,000,000, an increase of $40,000,000 for the week.

628 Closed Banks Now Liquidated

J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of Currency, announced yesterday the completion of the liquidation of 25 receiverships during March. This makes a total of 628 receiverships finally closed or restored to solvency since the banking holiday of March, 1933. Total disbursements, including offsets allowed, to depositors and other creditors of these 628 receiverships, exclusive of the 42 restored to solvency, aggregated $212,342,559, or an average return of 79.08 per cent of total liabilities, while unsecured creditors received dividends amounting to an average of 66.77 per cent of their claims.

Total dividends paid and distributions to depositors of all receiverships from March 16, 1933, to March 31, this year, amounted to $772,414,610.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, April 8 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agr.).—Buyers displayed a hesitant attitude in the wool market today. Only immediate needs were covered and volume of purchases for this purpose was small. Principal interest was in finer grades of territory wools in original bags. Small lots of bulk average to good French combing-length fine territory wools moved in original bags at 1.03@1.06, scoured basis, while original-bag lots of bulk average French combing-length, half-blood territory wools sold at around 1.00, scoured basis.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 8.—Dealings in the stock market continued erratic today and at the close prices were mixed. Gold-mining shares were in ample supply and industrial group and foreign bonds sold lower. Gilt-edged securities maintained a firm tone as sellers of stocks transferred their funds into less speculative issues. Transatlantic stocks remained quiet. There was considerable liquidation in the commodity sections.

Paris—French rentes finished the day at unchanged quotations to 35 centimes lower and Bank of France dropped 5 francs. Suez Canal was strong, advancing 370 francs, and Royal Dutch gained 30 francs. The closing tone was irregular.

Liverpool—Wheat futures advanced 1¾d to 2½d early today on Continental bidding for American wheat and short covering on October position. A late reaction took place and prices finished ½d higher to ⅝d lower. Cotton closed firm at net advances of 6 to 7 points, and although early declines uncovered stop orders, the market recovered on local support being influenced by steady Eastern advices and Bombay and London replacement buying.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

A slump in French francs in world currency markets was attributed by some traders yesterday to a reported change in the gold-buying price of the French government.

In New York the French unit was down .03¼ of a cent to 4.56 cents. Earlier in Paris the dollar had closed at the equivalent of 4.59 cents to the franc.

New York foreign currency dealers said weakness in French francs reflected heightened international tension over Spain and internal political difficulties.

The New York quotation for the pound sterling was down ⅛ of a cent to $4.89¼. In London earlier the dollar had finished at 4.89⅛ to the pound.

Dust Victims Depart as if On Gold Rush

86,546 Poverty Stricken Persons Depart for the Northwest.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, April 8.—The 1936-1937 rush of dust bowl emigrants to California is greater than the '48 gold immigration, relief authorities said today.

Resettlement Administration officials said 86,546 virtually destitute persons, mostly from the "dust bowl" and Great Plains, entered California in the last 15 months. The figure does not include thousands who rode in on freight trains, tourists and others able to support themselves.

Census figures show the gold rush brought 86,000 persons to the State in two years following discovery of gold.

Many Destitute.

Washington State officials reported about 8,000 families had moved into the Pacific Northwest. They said many of the transients were destitute but about 3,000 families had found farms.

The majority of the California arrivals look for work, said J. C. Byrne, of the State relief administration, but added that re-employment could not keep pace with the rising tide of immigration.

Byrne said a few large agricultural operators had circularized some Midwest areas urging the migration, apparently to make certain of a plentiful supply of harvest labor. He said State officials had sought to persuade some of these operators to desist.

Byrne said most of the migrants received no relief money.

Unsolved Problem.

By the Associated Press.

Federal relief leaders said yesterday one of their big unsolved problems was caring for between 100,000 and 150,000 farmers and their families who left the Great Plains drought area for a new start in the Far West.

The Resettlement Administration and State relief leaders in California, Washington, Oregon and Utah contend the migration is a national problem calling for Federal action.

A Federal report described the mass movement from the region of drought and dust storms as "probably the last great migration of settlers to the Far West."

Peace Is Reached Over Guffey Bill

By the Associated Press.

Senate and House conferees reached an agreement yesterday on Senate changes in the Guffey-Vinson coal control bill, which is designed to permit Government price fixing in the soft coal industry.

Representative Cullen (Democrat), of New York, one of the conferees, said the most important change accepted by the conference committees was a tax of 1 cent per ton on all soft coal. The bill originally provided a tax of 1½ per cent on the sale price of coal at the mines for this purpose to provide funds to administer the law.

Proponents of the change said the 1 cent tax would produce the same amount of revenue as a percentage levy on prices—approximately $4,000,000 annually—and would prevent fluctuation of that revenue with changes in the price of coal.

The 19½ per cent penalty tax for producers who failed to comply with the code of fair trade practice prescribed by the act was not disturbed.

Other amendments accepted by the conferees would exempt coal purchases of farm co-operatives from price regulation. The National Bituminous Coal Commission would administer the law.

Mrs. McAllister, 38, Becomes Director Of Women's Group

By the United Press.

Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, 38, a Grand Rapids, Mich., matron, whose hobbies are reading French, playing tennis and rearing two small daughters, has taken office as director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee.

High points of her induction were a luncheon at the White House as the guest of Mrs. Roosevelt, along with women party leaders and Government officials, and her first press conference which revealed a keen wit behind her flashing eyes.

Mrs. McAllister couldn't help gloating a bit for yesterday, her husband, a Democrat, was elected to the Michigan Supreme Court. She was preening herself, she said, "because the spring elections in Michigan are proverbially Republican and the fact that my husband led the other three candidates shows what the people think of the President's judiciary reorganization program."

Although she has been steeped in politics since her marriage, Mrs. McAllister is a comparative novice. It was not until 1932 that she made her first political speech—on behalf of President Roosevelt—and she began right at the bottom of her own precinct.

G. O. P. Group At Arlington To Honor Ahalt

County Committee Giving Reception for New State Secretary.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, will be the guest speaker at the reception and ball being held tomorrow, at 8 p. m., in honor of Clarence R. Ahalt in the Colonial Village ballroom. Ahalt recently was elected State chairman and secretary of the State Republican Committee.

The reception is being sponsored by the Arlington County Republican Executive Committee. Music during the evening will be furnished by the Columbian Orchestra.

John M. Stewart, chairman of the county school board, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Patrick Henry School. The meeting will be held in the school auditorium.

Among other guests will be County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, the Rev. Walter Wolf and Arthur Wilson, school board members. The program will include a number of musical selections by Louis Colangelo's orchestra. Officers will be elected.

A three-act comedy, "Chintz Cottage," will be presented by the Walkers Chapel Dramatic Club tonight, at 8 o'clock, in the Robert E. Lee School auditorium. The play is being sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of the school.

Attention is called by County Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel that persons burning trash are first required to obtain a permit. Not only is a permit necessary, but fires must not be left burning without someone watching them, he stated.

The American Legion Auxiliary will sponsor a benefit bake sale tomorrow morning in the Elite Laundry Building, Clarendon.

The Arlington County Police Benefit Association, at a meeting held at the courthouse yesterday, completed its plans for a dance. The dance will be held May 7 at the Army-Navy Club. The committee consists of Harry L. Woodyard, Hugh Jones, W. Harry Johnson, James J. Scott and H. A. Barnett.

The spring inspection of all Boy Scout troops in Arlington County will be held tonight at the Lee High School. There will be a program by the Scouts and court of awards.

2 Reliefers Must Wear Sign Saying 'I Bought Whisky'

Clifton Forge, Va., April 8 (AP).—"My money went for whisky, not for food," printed on placards prepared by Mayor Frank Wheeler, will swing from the backs of two relief workers here tomorrow as they start serving sentences prescribed in police court for drunkenness.

Lloyd Montgomery was instructed to wear the placard for 12 days, and Len Lyle for six, beginning tomorrow. A special guard will see that the cards remain in place during the term of the sentences.

He Rises to the Occasion

Motorcycle leap frog, designed to thrill spectators at the royal military tournament in London, is being practiced by British soldiers. Here is a soldier rising to the occasion as a motorcycle rider speeds under him.

Amick Slayer To Ask Lesser Term in Prison

John Wallace, convicted of second-degree murder for the slaying of Grover Amick in the Old Colonial Tea House shooting at Bladensburg, Md., in 1932, and Bryan Davis, former town clerk and treasurer of Takoma Park, Md., convicted of embezzlement in 1934, will appear before State Parole Commissioner David J. Tilghman in Baltimore Wednesday, to plead for reduced sentences.

Wallace was sentenced to serve 18 years in the Maryland Penitentiary, but this was later reduced to 13 years. The murder occurred during an attempt to hold up the tea house. Davis is serving a six-year term in the Maryland Penitentiary for embezzlement of approximately $12,000 during his five years in office.

Leon Schmidt, convicted of first-degree murder for the killing of Patrolman Frank Latham, in Baltimore in 1924, will also plead for parole. Schmidt was sentenced to a life term but the sentence was reduced by the Governor in 1932 to 18 years. Latham was fatally shot when he entered Schmidt's home to investigate a report Mrs. Schmidt was being beaten.

Robert W. Gibbs, convicted in Prince Georges County last year of malicious destruction of property, and Milne Swann, colored, convicted in Montgomery County last year for bigamy, also will appear before the commissioner.

Other prisoners who will be heard on their applications for parole include:

Edward Armstrong, convicted in Garrett County in 1936 of abduction and sentenced to 19 months in the penitentiary.

Eugene Dorsey, colored, convicted in Carroll County last year of receiving stolen goods and sentenced to 19 months in the House of Correction.

Lost Searchers Arrive Safely at Wreck of Plane

McNary, Ariz., April 8 (AP).—A posse trudging out of the White Mountains with bodies of eight plane-crash victims said tonight four fellow searchers, reported missing, had made their way to the wreckage and joined the funeral party.

The four had been unreported since they left Greer shortly after noon Tuesday to seek the crashed Douglas airliner. Ground parties from McNary reached the wreckage yesterday.

An alarm was spread when Clifford Wentz returned to Greer and said he left the four when he feared he would be stricken with snow-blindness.

Wild Life Unit Meets Monday At Alexandria

Rep. Robertson Will Address Chapter; Lodge to Confer Degrees.

Representative A. Willis Robertson, of the Seventh Virginia District, will address a meeting of the Northern Virginia Chapter, Virginia Wild Life Federation, in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service building, Washington and Prince streets, at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

Representative Robertson, as a member of the Virginia State Senate, was instrumental in the framing of legislation under which the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries was formed and now operates, and was the first chairman of the commission, serving from 1926 to 1932. He also has served as presiding officer at several international conferences on wild life.

Motion pictures of trout and bass fishing will be shown, as well as motion pictures of the stocking of Colvin Run, Fairfax County, with trout from the Virginia commission's hatcheries.

Poppy Sale Arranged.

Russell Mitchell Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will participate in the sixteenth Buddy Poppy sale, according to Commander John A. Duncan, of the local post. The sale will be held the latter part of May, in conjunction with the Nation-wide practice of conducting the sale prior to Memorial Day, November 30.

The entire proceeds of the sale will be devoted to the relief and welfare work of the V. F. W., among disabled and needy veterans of this vicinity, and for the Nation-wide program of veteran rehabilitation and child welfare, sponsored by more than 3,500 units of the organization throughout the country.

Commander Duncan has explained that one cent from the sale of each poppy goes to the V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., where the organization cares for children of deceased veterans. The poppies are assembled by disabled veterans in Government hospitals.

A grand jury will convene in the Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls, presiding, at 10 a. m. Monday, and will consider one murder case, and five of other offenses. The murder charge was placed against Loder Strong, charged with slaying Alfred Johnson, March 20. The shooting was staged on the 500 block North Pitt street.

The jury summoned includes Michael T. Dwyer, A. H. Oliver, O. Ashby Reardon, C. Page Waller and E. D. File.

Alumnae Unit Formed.

A chapter of the Fredericksburg Teachers' College Alumnae Association has been formed in Alexandria, with Mrs. Frank Perry, president; Miss Mallory Hufty, vice president; Miss Frances Gaines, secretary and treasurer, and Miss Mary Frances Rowe, publicity chairman.

Meetings of the unit will be held on the fourth Tuesday in each month, and the local unit will also meet semiannually with the Fairfax group of the alumnae association.

Benefit Concert Arranged.

The Washington Staff Band of the Salvation Army will give a concert in Elks' Hall Wednesday evening for the benefit of home and foreign missions of the Salvation Army. The soloists of the program will be Adjutant Walter Needham and Capt. Jackson Martin, trombone, and the bandmaster, Albert E. Baldwin, cornet. A special pianoforte number will be presented by Jean and Harold Wilkins.

Dr. John Paul Tyler, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Following the services the body will be taken to Winchester, Va., by motor, and burial will be in Mount Hebron Cemetery, at that place.

Pallbearers will be Wesley Padgett, Allen English, Paul Mooney, L. E. Becker, Sam Clinkescale and Thomas Schmidt.

Living Standards of 100,000 Va. Farmers Called 'Marginal'

State Official Sees Serious Problem in Growth of Tenant System; Asks Liberal Policy of Credit Aid From Public Agencies.

Richmond, Va., April 8 (AP).—W. E. Garnett, rural sociologist of the Virginia Agricultural Experimental Station, in a statement submitted to the National Tenancy Commission, said that approximately half of Virginia's white rural population, or about 100,000 families, "may be classed as marginal from the standpoint of income, education and living standards."

The sociologist who is also chairman of the marginal population commission of the Virginia State planning board, said that one-third or more of farm operators in one-third of Virginia's counties were tenants in 1935, while seven counties had over 50 per cent tenants.

The increase in this type of farmer has been marked in the past 25 years, Garnett pointed out, adding that "probably the angle of most significance in the long run is the biological aspect—an aspect commonly ignored in discussions of the tenancy problem. The 100,000 white rural marginal families in Virginia have between 50,000 and 100,000 more children than an equal number of higher standards."

The sociologist said that efforts should include a liberal policy of credit aid from public agencies for the purchase of places by those with small capital, but with sufficient ability to manage their affairs with reasonable efficiency; development of the habit of co-operative buying and selling, education policies to more effectively meet the needs of marginal groups, and policies designed to lift the wholt level of agricultural income to a point where owners of farms can afford to give rent or wages which will make it possible for their tenants and laborers to have a decent standard of living.

Holdup Suspect Cleared.

Lunenburg, Va., April 8 (AP).—A. S. McGuire, member of a prominent Charlotte County family, was free today of charges of participation in the holdup of the bank of Lunenburg at Kenbridge last December.

Cash Bag Explodes And Gasses Bearer In Revolving Door

Baltimore, April 8 (AP).—The next time James Scroggs, a hotel porter, carries his patented money bag through a revolving door, he will be careful.

Scroggs and his bag, designed to discourage hold-up men with a cloud of gas and two .45-caliber cartridges, got mixed up in a revolving door today as he was leaving a bank.

The cartridges banged and the gas filled the door chamber. Bank officials jumped and tellers reached for alarm buttons.

Scroggs emerged, gasping, but still with the satchel.

Large Estate Sold.

Leonardtown, Md., April 8 (AP).—Joseph F. Crew sold his 500-acre Wicomico River estate, Brambly, to Joseph J. Tunney, of Philadelphia.

Board Meets Monday.

Leonardtown, Md., April 8.—A meeting of the St. Mary's County Board of Education will be held on April 12.

Strikers' Move nQuittingFirm Pleases Peery

Governor Hopes Action Will Lead to Settlement of Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

Covington, Va., April 8.—Evacuation of the Covington plant of the Industrial Rayon Corporation by "sit-in" strikers was a source of "gratification" today to Gov. Peery, who expressed the hope it would lead to an early settlement.

"It seems to me," the Governor said, "that the move will promote more friendly relations between the employes and the employer, and both should approach a settlement in a more friendly and co-operative spirit."

Charles H. Dasher, manager of the plant, who said the evacuation by 160 employes under the leadership of Robert Gaffney, U. T. W. organizer, came as a "surprise" to him, also expressed the opinion the development might contribute to a strike settlement.

Gaffney, in active charge of the strike, now in its tenth day, said there was no reason to expect "any trouble" and that a "peaceable picketing of the plant will now be carried on."

It costs over half a million more to make

GENERALLY speaking, we're pretty careful with money. Nevertheless, the methods we follow in making Four Roses cost us over half a million dollars more a year than other methods we might use.

And we spend it cheerfully! We spend it for extra time, extra care, extra steps that give Four Roses its insuperable quality.

Four Roses, you see, although all whiskey, is more than one straight whiskey. It's a combination of several straight whiskies. Magnificent whiskies—every one distilled the unbeatable but expensive old-fashioned way. Distinctive whiskies—each outstanding for some particular virtue.

Blended together our way, these whiskies join all their virtues together in one liquor superlative for all whiskey virtues—Four Roses.

"But it costs me so little more to buy!"

"SIPPING Four Roses for the first time, I knew right away I'd found the grandest whiskey that ever sparkled out of a bottle. I could hardly believe its price is only a quarter more a pint than the whiskey I'd been buying. But it's a fact!"

FOUR ROSES

A blend of straight whiskies—94 proof

We Believe Four Roses Is America's Finest Whiskey, Regardless of Age or Price

Frankfort Distilleries, Incorporated, Louisville and Baltimore, also make Paul Jones (92 proof), Old Oscar Pepper brand and Mattingly & Moore (both 90 proof)—all blends of straight whiskies. Also Paul Jones Four Star Gin (90 proof), distilled from 100% grain neutral spirits.
